For the Marching Cavaliers, it's getting to be a habit

Meet the Court of Neptune IV

By MARK RICHARD
SUN Reporter

The princesses for this Court of King Neptune IV were chosen Saturday night at First Colonial High School from 21 contestants. Kathy Callan of Princess Anne, Kim Worley of Kempville, Shannon McCormick of Cox, Linda Osburn of Cape Henry, Jackie McGare of Kellam, Nancy Bates of Bayside, and Cynthia Wermers of First Colonial will all participate in this fall's Neptune Festival. Rices-Nachmans provide the fashions for the girls as they appeared in the swimsuit, casual and evening wear showings. Each girl also gave her reasons for wanting to become the representative from her high school. Selection of the princesses was made by judges Charles Daws, Barbara Simson, Pearl Smith, Barbara Smith, Charles Willis and Charles Forbes, King Neptune III. Scholarship money that is given to a finalist of the preceding year was awarded to Miss Ann Logheed, Cox

High School representative and member of the 1976 Court of King Neptune. Nellie Bryan, managing director of the Neptune Festival, announced that future scholarship monies will be equally divided between the princesses.

The girls selected Saturday night will now assume the responsibilities of the Neptune Court and will act as representatives at pre-festival and festival events.

Status of school boundary changes

The following is published in an effort to keep you up-to-date on the progress being made toward establishing new elementary school boundaries in Virginia Beach for the 1977-78 school year.

At the request of the Virginia Beach School Board, the Superintendent of Schools met with the presidents of 20 elementary school PTAs on the evening of March 24. At that meeting, the presidents were asked to notify their memberships of some impending elementary school boundary changes for next year and to solicit their comments on a proposal for these changes prepared by the school administration.

The suggestions were to be considered by the PTAs of the schools concerned and forwarded to the Superintendent's Office, with comments or recommendations, by April 21. As a result of this action, the school division has received individual or group responses from 11 of the 20 schools involved.

Six alternate proposals for boundary changes were forwarded: one each from the Kempville and Point of View Elementary School PTAs, one from the South London Bridge Civic League concerning Seatack Elementary School, one from a parent representing some residents of Indian Lakes currently attending Fairfield Elementary School, one from a group of citizens from Birdneck Village, and one from a group of parents from Old Donation Elementary School.

In addition, 13 individual letters were received from city residents, and four from PTAs, indicating either support or concern, but making no specific proposal. There was also a petition forwarded by a group of Kempville Elementary School parents supporting the school administration's proposed boundary changes.

All of the material received will be reviewed by the Department of Research, Planning, and Development, and the suggestions will be incorporated into a final proposal which will be presented to the School Board on May 17.

Copies of the proposal which will be recommended to the School Board will be forwarded to the principals and PTA presidents of the schools involved at least seven days prior to the scheduled Board meeting for review. Final comments on the proposed changes will be heard at the meeting of May 17.

—Public dedication—

Rec center opens Friday

After a year and a half construction time, plus some slight delays on final touches, the multi-million dollar Virginia Beach Recreation Center at Kempville will open its doors to the public.

Dedication ceremonies are set for this Friday morning at 10 a.m., with open house to the public to follow after a week. The 82,000 square foot center, located at 800 Monmouth Lane behind Kempville High School, will offer three floors of activity space, from a 25-meter swimming pool to bowling alleys to classrooms to a performing arts center.

The recreation center will be open to all citizens of Virginia Beach—including the handicapped—but an identification card is necessary. During the open house, from May 6 to May 15, the identification cards may be purchased for one dollar for a one-year period. In order to be issued a Rec Center ID card, an individual must have two pieces of identification providing residency in Virginia Beach, i.e., a driver's license, letter with current postmark, etc.

The center is the first of its kind in Tidewater and believed to be the only one of its kind in the Commonwealth.

The public is invited to attend the dedication ceremonies, after which center supervisor John Giles and his crew will hold open house until 9 p.m. The open house continues, Saturday, May 7, from 10 a.m. - 9 p.m., Sunday, May 8, 1 p.m. - 9 p.m., Monday thru Friday, May 9-13, 10 a.m. - 9 p.m., and again Saturday and Sunday, May 14 and 15.

The center will be assigned to the city's parks and recreation department, which will supervise activities such as crafts classes, swimming, gymnastics, etc. Registration for classes at the Center will be held from Monday, May 16 through Friday, May 20. For information concerning what classes are available and their costs, call the Recreation Center at 459-1231.

After the open house, the regular operating hours for the center will be 9 a.m. - 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 1-9 p.m., Sunday. Activities will be curtailed each evening at 9:30 p.m. in order to clear the building by 10 p.m.

You could bankrupt your family by dying

Editor, Virginia Beach SUN:

Enclosed is an article about which consumers need to be informed. I think you will find it extremely accurate. Most articles published in recent months on the subject have been written by reporters, and because of the ambiguous language used in the funeral industry, even the most astute reporter was not able to ask the proper questions to arrive at accurate conclusions.

I have 25 years experience in funeral connected services, both as a cemetery owner and as a funeral home owner. My reason for writing the article is my desire to see funeral merchandise sold by businessmen, funeral services conducted by funeral service directors, and the public made aware of the difference.

Sincerely,
Charles Carlin Kirkpatrick

If there was ever an industry in which a Consumer Information Agency is needed, it is the funeral industry. We have "truth in lending" which requires that those loans lending money spell out in explicit terms how much it is going to cost you to use their money; we have "truth in labeling" which requires manufacturers to tell you what's in the can of beans you're eating; what's in the cosmetics you use on your body and if the "cotton" dress you are wearing is nylon with only 5% cotton; laws which require that the purchaser be told how long he can expect an automobile tire to last; warranties must tell you exactly what is warranted and for how long. Why shouldn't there be a requirement for "truth in the cost of funerals"?

The Rules and Regulations of the Funeral Director and Embalmer of the Commonwealth of Virginia prohibit the solicitation of business without defining "solicitation" but no where do they state that people should not be informed. Perhaps what we need instead of "truth in the cost of funerals" is a "RIGHT TO KNOW" law.

Funeral directors refer to themselves as professionals and they are also businessmen. As professionals they perform a licensed service; as businessmen they must make a profit or close their doors. In no other business is "making a profit" so cloaked in secrecy as the funeral industry. Any car dealer, for instance, would dance with joy if he knew that 98 per cent of the people who came into his place of business had never shopped for a car before, didn't have any idea how much the fellow down the street would charge for the same thing, didn't know that there is no law saying that a racing stripe down the side is required and had to make an irrevocable decision within a few hours—how sweet it would be! The funeral director who usually will not divulge his prices or method of pricing unless you go to him—is almost sure, when a person walks into his place of business to make funeral arrangements, he is going to buy. Rarely would a person "shop around" at the time of death. No businessman ever had so many disadvantaged customers.

The funeral service industry is one of the few industries in which it is necessary for the customer to go out on his own and really work to find out how much a funeral costs, and even then it is almost impossible to ferret out exactly what is needed.

There is no reason why a person should not be able to pick up his telephone and call a funeral home and get an answer to such questions as: how much is charged to remove a body from place of death to the funeral home; how much is charged for embalming; how much does it cost to use the limousine; or how much does the funeral director charge for his professional services. However, rarely is it done that way. The receptionist who answers the telephone usually can't give an answer. The funeral director's secretary can't give an answer. The only person privy to that elusive information is the funeral director himself and on the telephone his lips are sealed. He's a businessman so surely he must know why does he make himself look guilty of some wrong doing if he has nothing to hide? Can the simple answering of someone's questions on the telephone be considered "selling" of business?—hardly!

The casket

The Seattle regional office of the Federal Trade Commission has prepared a consumer survey entitled "Price of Death" that states that sometimes low-priced or suitable colored low-price caskets are not displayed at the funeral home, and if they are they are in a different location from more expensive caskets. They are available if you specifically ask for them. While no one has actually told the customer that what he sees is what he buys he does not know to ask and often winds up spending more money than he can afford and should spend. To not inform is misleading by silence.

Once the body of the deceased is in the funeral home it would be most unlikely that the survivor would move it to another place to see if it were less expensive. Here is where the fine art of "gentle persuasion" really starts. The funeral director leads his customer gently to the "selection" room to pick out what most likely will be the most expensive item in the burial rite—the casket. The consumer might venture to ask what makes one casket cost $695 and another has a price of $3,500. He will probably be told that it offers more protection to the deceased—protection from what? Certainly not from decomposing. There is no casket, no vault, no grave liner, not even embalming, NOTHING is going to keep the body from decomposing. The purchaser at the time of death doesn't want to hear that, and no funeral director would be crass enough to mention it. One of the favorite statements seems to be that the casket protects the deceased from water and other undesirable of the earth. If the public were informed before death, he would know that the selection of the more expensive casket is its special appeal to him over another—it doesn't keep the body from decomposing and its costs do not show greater love for the dead; it certainly doesn't lighten your load of grief.

The sealer casket

There is now a new word in the casket-selling business which has emerged in recent years—the "sealer." The "sealer" is sold by most funeral homes, and many of these sealers do not keep out air or water; there is no foundation for the impression that a sealer stops decomposing of the remains. A leading funeral director stated that a Batesville casket salesman told him that "sealer" was becoming a dirty word because it had been misused so often. Some caskets sold as "sealers" are not true "sealers" and quite possibly the public has been ripped off. The sale of a rubber gasket sealer casket could result in the consumer paying as much as $500 more than he would pay for the same casket without the sealer.

Pricing

Different funeral homes have different systems for pricing.

One might have a price on the casket which includes all their services and the next might have a price for their professional services and a separate price for the casket. Some funeral homes might not have any prices on their caskets (too commercial?). In at least one Northern Virginia funeral home, where no prices are placed on the casket, you might receive two different prices for the same casket, depending upon which co-owner/director of the funeral home took you to the selection room.

Since all businessmen should know what each service they offer costs, it would be no great task for all funeral homes to itemize their services and their costs. If each service has a cost, the elimination of that service should bring about a lowering of the total billings in an exact proportion to the itemized cost. If you use a service, naturally you pay for it; by the same manner of reasoning, if you do not use a service you should not pay for it. The Federal Trade Commission has suggested in their proposed rules that the funeral director should inform the family, before arrangements are made, which items are not required by law.

Embalming

There is no law in the Commonwealth of Virginia requiring embalming under any circumstances. More bodies are embalmed in the United States than in any other country, and Americans have become so accustomed to embalming that they do not even question the need. Indeed, in many instances, the next of kin are given no opportunity to accept or decline the service—it is simply done routinely. Embalming is one of the subjects the Federal Trade Commission has addressed in their proposed regulations. The next of kin is somehow given the vague impression that embalming will preserve the body—actually it does not completely preserve the body for more than a few days, and in this country it is often nothing more than a cosmetic enhancement. It also enhances the pocketbook of the funeral director.

Funeral directors, upon being questioned, will tell you frankly that there is no law requiring embalming but that it is recommended "for health reasons." Funeral Service Insider, an industry professional newsletter, reported in the April 18 issue that funeral directors are now seeking information on embalming that goes beyond the "for health reasons" statement, and in June the New York State Funeral Directors Association Convention in Syracuse will offer a workshop on the subject in an effort to justify wholesale embalming.

Vaults

There is no law in the Commonwealth of Virginia which requires the use of a vault. Most memorial parks and many other cemeteries require at least a concrete liner to prevent the caving in of the grave; most church cemeteries and some municipally-owned cemeteries do not require even the concrete liner.

Cash advances

There are some services and merchandise provided by the funeral service director on a "cash advance" basis. The funeral service director pays for these services and, naturally, he is entitled to receive his money promptly. Sometimes these charges can be substantial. The services may include such things as flowers, music, arranging for pallbearers, the clergy's honorarium, and the cemetery interment charge. However, it should be understood whether he simply passes along the exact charges to you or if he adds a service charge to the total charge. To know in advance of the need could often result in considerable savings.

Cremations

If there is to be immediate cremation there is no need for embalming or even a casket. There are many suitable containers for a corpse being cremated. One funeral home in the Tidewater area is offering a low price cremation service for as little as $295 and a full service funeral and cremation for $695.

Viewing

The viewing room is generally a well appointed room in which the casket is placed for friends and family to come pay their respects. In some instances it may be more desirable not to have a viewing; if you do not care for a viewing there should be no charge for viewing. Perhaps you'd rather have friends call at your home and have no viewing at all; perhaps the next of kin would want the deceased viewed in his own home. Ask if the viewing charge is deducted and if not, why not.

Pre-arranging vs. Pre-paying

Many people feel that because they have visited a funeral home and sat down with a funeral director, told him what they wanted and he wrote it all down, that they are going to be able to buy these same products and services at the time of death at the price they saw when they visited his establishment. Not so. The funeral directors' own code makes it almost impossible for him to "freeze a price." In order for the price to be frozen at today's cost, the purchaser would need to pay for the product or the service, a contract would be drawn, notarized and recorded with the Clerk of Court in the city where the funeral home is located, a copy recorded with the Clerk of Court in the city where the purchaser resides, and a copy given to the purchaser and one retained by the funeral home. The funeral director must then place 100 per cent of the money received in trust.

Most cemeteries allow the pre-paying for their products—vaults, memorials, and burial sites. That is true "pre-arranging"—the price is frozen on the product you buy before you need or use it. There is a contractual agreement and the price cannot go up—its paid-for-you actually own it.

A "RIGHT TO KNOW" regulation would allow the consumer to know exactly what a funeral costs and certainly could not be considered "soliciting of business"; certainly educating the public on what is required by law could not be considered "soliciting of business." The funeral home is always going to have business; it is always going to have funerals for people who don't really care how much they spend, and it is always going to have funerals for those who wish to be informed about what is available and what they need to do so that their grief is not compounded by unnecessary charges. People are always going to pick one particular funeral home over another because of location, religion, or some other personal reason.

"Truth in funeral costs" or a "right to know" is desperately needed to allow the consumers to learn of the wide variety of choices of services and merchandise in this industry. Let it be hoped that it is the funeral directors themselves who bring about the change and not another government agency. Perhaps the best place to start in this direction would be with the Funeral Directors Board—would the public not be better served if this board was made up of persons other than funeral directors? Or even dispensed with entirely? The trend is to merge all self-serving regulatory boards which purport to protect and look after the consumers' interests into one board.

Who is the culprit?

There is an old saying that when you point a finger of accusation at another, three fingers are pointed at the finger culprit—YOU.

Most people are so afraid of dying or are so sure of living forever they never question the cost until it's forced upon them. Some people tend to shy away from questioning a funeral director, not because they are afraid to discuss death, but because of the funeral director's reluctance to question a professional. In the Federal Trade Commission's proposed rules and regulations, they stated that the funeral director plays two roles: "There is his public relation image as a professional serving people at a time of stress, and there is his role as a salesman of goods and services." He must sell his high profit lines in order to prosper. The more the public accepts the professional role, the less it will require, shop, or bargain.

The funeral director changes hats from professional to salesman but he doesn't tell the customer when the change takes place. It is right and proper that he make a profit but the profit should be as a salesman—not as a professional suggesting ever so subtly that any thought of economy on a funeral is inappropriate.

Until July 1, 1972, there were many funeral directors who did not pass that part of the State Examination on embalming. They did, however, pass that part which concerns itself with the "merchandising and counseling." These directors are protected by the "grandfather" clause in the law and there are, today in the Tidewater area, many funeral directors whose expertise lies in "arranging a funeral and selling"—no forget your hangups about questioning a professional and ask your questions.

A new ruling established July 1, 1972, requires that there be no more split licenses—there is one license called "Funeral Service Licensee" which means that in order to be a funeral director you must also be an embalmer—there has done nothing except increase cost to the consumer. There are many businessmen who could run an efficient funeral home but aren't interested in embalming. There are individuals who are not interested in being businessmen; they are interested only in being embalmers. They need to acquire the skills to prepare the body for viewing, learn what chemicals to use for the correct skin tones, learn to arrange hair, and in many instances, know how to do reconstruction work. Embalming has nothing to do with counseling a family nor selling a casket.

The consumer should know when he talks to the funeral director that "THIS IS A SALESMAN" and he's usually a darn good one.

Funeral service charges

A survey of local funeral homes came up with these revealing figures: the lowest figure for funeral service charges was $535 and the highest was $950. Funeral service charges are those covering the removal of the body from place of death to the funeral home, professional services, use of facilities, and use of motorized equipment (hearse, flower car, limousine). The highest price was not the price of the largest funeral home in the area, the one with the newest buildings or newest equipment as you might expect. The services are essentially the same—wouldn't you rather know before you need their services that there can be such a vast difference? All you have to do is get in your car and drive around to all the funeral homes—make an appointment with the funeral director before you go—remember he's usually the only one who knows the prices. Don't allow yourself to be confused by words—"Professional" service has to do with the picking up of the body, embalming, going to the cemetery, etc.; "Cash Advances" pertains to those services rendered by the funeral home for which you must pay in advance, and of course, the casket. Don't think of the words pre-arrange and pre-pay as meaning the same thing—there is a vast difference. Pre-arrange is deciding what you want and pre-paying is actually buying what you want thereby freezing the price.

It's a big business

The potential expenditures for funerals in a year in the immediate Tidewater area (Richmond, Norfolk, Chesapeake, and Virginia Beach) is $10,000,000 plus (That's ten million dollars plus). There are approximately 5,500 deaths a year in this area. The figure of $10,000,000 alone was arrived at by taking a median figure at $725 for funeral service charges, $795 for a medium to low-price casket and $500 as the least expensive vault. A rather impressive figure, wouldn't you agree?

'She Stoops to Conquer' sharp, charming comedy

By ALICE DUBOIS
Special to the SUN

Oliver Goldsmith's comedy "She Stoops to Conquer" at the Virginia Beach Little Theatre unfolds so easily and charmingly that it is like a canvas of Hogarth scenes brought to life to make a comic statement.

The play, written in 1773 just before the death of Goldsmith, is presented by the Virginia Beach Little Theatre for the next two weekends and may possibly be held over.

Bill Britton, director, excels in Restoration comedy. His is a delicate, romantic touch with such subtle shades that the play never meanders in wordy or ponderous dialogue or caricatures its characters. He keeps the cast in rein and as a result the play is enhanced and embellished as a comedy of today rather than a period piece.

The basis of the comedy is the multitude of deceptions that make up the story. A marriage has been tentatively arranged between young Marlow and Kate Hardcastle by their fathers. Neither has seen the other. A pookish stepbrother Tony Lumpkin chances to meet Marlow and his friend Hastings and directs the two to Hardcastle's home which he states is an inn. Marlow who is comfortable only with women of the lower class mistakes Kate for a maid and further complications ensue when Constance Neville, in love with Hastings, also appears to be living at the inn. Mrs. Hardcastle who controls the fortune of her niece Constance plans to marry her to Tony (son by a first marriage) on whom she dotes. Ultimately the affairs are happily concluded; Mrs. Hardcastle gets her comeuppance and the hero becomes his natural self with Kate. The experience of so much deception brings him to the knowledge of where and what he is.

The play had its own trials and tribulations. The leading lady Mrs. Penington was hospitalized and the leading man had to leave the cast on business. George Topper who took the part of Mr. Hardcastle on a week's notice is solid and secure in his characterization and Anne Penington as Anne Hardcastle displays her flamboyant spirited style in sharply humorous fashion. She is a mistress of comedy.

Steven K. Malik is a vigorous, prank playing Tony Lumpkin. Two young ladies, Stephanie Herrin who plays Kate Hardcastle and Nancy Miles Shriver as Constance Neville, are both graceful and beautiful. James Craft as Charles Marlow and John C. Hinkle as George Hastings play in fine and classical tradition.

Bruce Foster, Michael York, Joyce Coyle, and Stan Kematine make the most of their modest roles. Costuming is elegant and becoming to the entire cast. Never has an entire company seemed so picturesque. Jennifer Kruger has created a varied set that does not overwhelm or detract from the play. It is soothing and soft to behold.

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre is located at 550 Barborton Avenue and reservations may be made by calling 428-9523.

Lack of will can hurt!

Add up the value of your home, your savings, your personal property, your life insurance, group insurance and retirement plan. What have you got?

An estate. That's right. You don't have to be a millionaire to have an estate. If you own assets, you qualify. And no matter how small that estate may be, there's one thing you need above all else: a will.

Way a will? Because, one way or another your assets are going to be collected and distributed and it ought to be the way you want it.

"Without the guidelines of a properly drafted will, the state disposes of your property through a process called 'intestacy'. While intestacy laws vary from state to state, they sometimes spell bad news for your best intentions," says Charles M. Fuller, a Charter Life Underwriter who represents Connecticut Mutual Life in Virginia Beach.

Fuller cited the case of one couple who had no children and never saw the need for a will, since each assumed that the surviving spouse would retain the property. The wife was double shocked when her husband died suddenly and the state statute dictated that half of his property would go to his parents.

In another case of a man dying without a will, the state gave equal shares to his wife and three children - leaving her with only a fourth of what her husband had intended her to have.

Some people turn to joint ownership to alleviate estate problems, but while joint ownership has its role in estate planning it should not be a substitute for a will, Fuller said.

"Joint ownership may avoid probate, but not estate taxes," he said. "Furthermore, by requiring property to pass to one of the joint owners, joint ownership restricts the flexibility of an estate plan. Depending upon the size of an estate, there may be tax advantages to maintaining separate ownership on one's assets."

Fuller said the pitfalls of intestacy may be one reason for planning a will, but the best reason is to direct one's assets, both large and small, to those who would benefit most from them: family, charity, and friend, or a favorite relative.

"A will can help you delineate what you've got, and life insurance can complement your plans by helping to meet the cash demands of taxes, settlement costs and the fulfillment of your goals without the necessity of selling off assets to raise funds," he explained.

The Connecticut Mutual representative said that an attorney is the best person to prepare a will, so that it meets state intestacy and related laws.

Fuller also recommended periodically reviewing a will to make sure it hasn't "depreciated."

"A will stashed away and forgotten could ignore the possibility of children being born at a later date, same as beneficiaries people no longer living, or name as executor an individual no longer available to serve, plus other complications which would arise if a will becomes outdated," he concluded.

Students analyze school trash

Seventh grade students from Kempsville Meadows School took a close look at trash as part of an environmental study by their instructors.

The students, equipped with large plastic trash bags, collected litter around the school grounds and met afterward to discuss its origin.

Most of the children agreed that their own classmates were responsible for the trash found on the school playground which is next to a fast service store.

Ray Kirk, an instructor at Kempsville Meadows, said the project was also in observance of Earth Day, an event observed in the late sixties, when environmental awareness was on every activist's list. He said he hoped his students would learn the benefits of a clean environment and realize the causes of its pollution.

Story and photos by Mark Richard, SUN Reporter

Dan Grebb, Jimmy Themides and Scott Lamascus

Dana Rafael, Kellie Russ and Sonja Armour made up their minds quickly that trashing collecting just wasn't their... uh... bag.

Seventh grade teacher Ray Kirk talks with his students on the origins of the litter they found and asks them to list the different types they found.

Beach couple a Navy team

By GARY GRADY
Special to the SUN

According to a Virginia Beach husband and wife, it was a pizza that first brought them together.

The couple, both members of the U.S. Navy, now make their home at 957 East Piney Branch Dr. in Virginia Beach. But they were living on separate floors of a barracks at the Naval Air Station in Meridian, Miss. when they met.

Steve A. Cook of Benton, Mo. happened to be sitting beside Yvonne Lucas of Fereidsburg, W. Va. in the barracks television lounge one day. "I was the shy type," he says, "so it was up to Yvonne to introduce us."

ing a pizza. "But the smallest one you could have delivered was too big for me to eat by myself. I asked Steve if he wanted to share one, and he said, 'Sure, if you're buying.'"

Eight months later (in January 1975), after both had been transferred to the Tidewater area, they were married.

Steve, a tradesman (the Navy's term for training device expert), maintains a computerized helicopter simulator at the Norfolk Naval Air Station, while Yvonne is the operations department yeoman for Fighter Squadron 43, one of the Navy aviation squadrons based at the Oceana Naval Air Station.

It was the draft, plus a desire to travel and learn, that prompted Steve to join the Navy back in 1971, he says.

Today, the 26-year-old Navyman works at the Fleet Aviation Specialized Operations Training Group, U.S. Atlantic Fleet, headquartered in Norfolk. He helps maintain an advanced helicopter trainer there.

"It's a very impressive device," he says. "Inside it's exactly like a helicopter, down to the sounds and the motion. Outside the windows are television screens which duplicate, using computer animation, what the aircrew would see during a landing on a carrier, a destroyer or an airstrip on land."

What they see depends entirely on what the pilot is doing with the controls, so it's very realistic.

"We use the simulator to train pilots, flight officers and enlisted men in everything from instrument flying to antisubmarine warfare. We can simulate a hundred malfunctions to train them to react correctly when their lives aren't endangered."

"Simulator training is not only safer, it's tremendously cheaper than burning up fuel in a helicopter," he notes.

Yvonne, who graduated as valedictorian from Hart (W. Va.) High School in 1964, says she "always wanted to join the Navy." Travel and job security are things she says attracted her. So in 1973 she enlisted. After training and a brief tour of duty with a squadron in Meridian, she came to Oceana.

As senior yeoman in her squadron's operations department, she supervises all the departmental paperwork.

"Fighter Squadron 43 is the only squadron here handling instrument training and ground school," she notes.

"That means that I'm involved with preparing the instrument training records for every pilot and flight officer stationed at Oceana, plus quite a few from other places."

Her daily routine includes scheduling Oceana-based flyers for their annual ground school and simulator training, updating the flight records for the squadron's officers and a host of other duties.

"She goes to work early and comes home late every day," says her husband.

Her hard work for the "Challengers" of Fighter Squadron 43 (as they are nicknamed) has not gone unappreciated. On two occasions she was named "Challenger of the Month." More recently, the officers Life for a married couple in the Navy is a mixed bag. The Cooks say they are generally happy with what they are doing now, but Yvonne may be leaving the service when her enlistment expires in September.

"The Navy tries to keep married people together as much as possible," she says, "but it would be difficult for them to do so in our case."

Thalia Lynn Baptist commits to expansion

By MARILYN J. WEBER

Signs of burgeoning growth in Virginia Beach are everywhere and the Rev. Junius E. Foster Jr., pastor of Thalia Lynn Baptist Church, is proud that the church he serves is a part of that expansion and progress.

At a recent meeting, 83 percent of the church members present voted approval for a $1.4-million building program which will nearly double the size of the existing 44,350 - square - foot church facility, on Virginia Beach Boulevard near to Princess Anne High School.

The plan that the church membership has committed itself to will add a new octagonal sanctuary with a seating capacity of 1,100 which will highlight and dominate the church complex.

A Family Life Center with a regulation size gymnasium, rooms for arts and crafts and adult Sunday school rooms is another feature of the extensive expansion program.

An administrative office suite with facilities for the entire staff, which numbers 28 and includes five full-time ministers, will be added along with a music studio with complete rehearsal facilities, the size and shape of the sanctuary and a media center for the books, films, records and equipment maintained by the church for its members.

The present sanctuary will be converted into a social hall with kitchen facilities and present offices and kitchen facilities will be converted into Sunday school rooms. Paved and lighted parking and landscaping will complete the master plan.

Speaking about the plan, Foster says, "It will be very nice, but it won't be extreme or lavish." Continuing, "The whole church feels excitedly comfortable about this. This is what we are going to do. We are committed."

What the parishioners have agreed on is a commitment to the master plan. The architects, Pentecost, Wade and McEllion, have been authorized to proceed with detailed working drawings and complete specifications.

When the plans are complete and actual cost figures can be determined, the church membership will meet again to decide whether the plan will be executed in one undertaking or whether the extensive building program will be completed in stages.

Reflecting on the past and present financial record of the church, Foster pointed to the fact that the present facility was last expanded a little over 10 years ago at a cost of $500,000. The building program at that time was financed with a 15-year loan which will be paid off in May of this year, nearly five years early, leaving the church debt free.

The early amortization of that loan will be a significant accomplishment in a strained economic period. During that same period, Thalia Lynn Baptist Church has completely air conditioned its entire facility at a cost of $100,000, a new organ has been added, a commercial kitchen installed, and the building complex has been completely re-roofed.

With all that has been accomplished, it is most significant, according to Foster, that mission giving at the church has increased 800 per cent.

"We're not just providing for ourselves and forgetting about the rest of the world," he points out.

The planned expansion will enhance the church's ability to serve its approximately 1,700 resident members in a wide variety of church programs and to maintain its firm and active commitment to community activities.

In addition to the kindergarten and day care center operated by the church, Thalia Lynn Baptist Church provides facilities for a special education Girl Scout troop, the Adult Blind of Virginia Beach and several mental health groups. The church lends its facilities to a counseling program for juveniles and their parents operated through the probation office, and the Virginia Beach school system uses an entire wing of the church daily for continuing education classes for teenage girls.

With a capital fund campaign to begin soon which is expected to raise $350,000 for the building program and an additional $250,000 which is expected to be set aside from budget receipts, Foster anticipates no difficulty for the congregation to complete the master plan at one time.

Beach U. Methodist church hosts Durham boys choir

The 43 voice concert choir of the Durham Boys Choir Inc. will be presented in concert in the sanctuary of Virginia Beach United Methodist Church, 207 18th Street, in the heart of Virginia Beach, on Saturday evening, May 7, at 8 p.m.

The concert is being sponsored by Virginia Beach United Methodist Church. The Durham Boys Choir is singing in Virginia Beach for the second time, having presented a concert last year. A member of the Choir, Mark Freundt, is a former resident of Virginia Beach.

The Durham Boys Choir, Inc. is an organization of singing boys, age 9-14, all chosen by audition. It is the only full time boychoir in a three state area. Members in the organization are from not only Durham, but also Chapel Hill, and Hillsborough. There are two choral groups: the concert choir and the training choir. The concert choir prepares for two heavy concert seasons each year, November-December, and April-May, and each is a different program.

The concert at Virginia Beach United Methodist Church will include music for boychoir spanning several centuries by Purcell, Palestrina, Pfitzner, Bach, Mozart, and Faure. Included on the program will be a duet for two sopranos from "Hymn of Praise" by Felix Mendelssohn.

Of particular interest is the fact that the Durham Boys Choir will be the third boychoir to include in its programming the moving work by Cantor Charles Davidson - "I NEVER SAW ANOTHER BUTTERFLY." This work is a musical memorial to the 15,000 children between the ages of 3-15 who passed through Treblinka on their journey to execution at Auschwitz. These are their poems and prose set to music. The musical derives its title from one of the poems, written in April 1942. The Durham Boys Choir joins the Columbus Boychoir (now the Boychoir of Princeton) and the Atlanta Boys Choir as the third boychoir to perform this work.

The Durham Boys Choir is under the direction of its founder, William Graham, a native of Florence, S.C.

The choir will be the guests of members of the Virginia Beach Church, and the boys will sing again at the 11 a.m. morning worship service on Sunday, May 8. Their appearance at Virginia Beach is a part of a Spring Tour which will take them on to Alexandria and Washington. The Concert is open to the public at no charge; however, an offering will be taken. Bernard S. Via and Robert L. Consolvo are ministers of the church.

Harold DeWolf, dean emeritus of the Wesley Theological Seminary and a former president of the American Theological Society, will address the graduates at a special evening vespers service at 7:15 on May 20.

Approximately 120 students are expected to receive bachelor of arts degrees during the commencement ceremony on May 21. Both the vespers service and commencement ceremony will be held on the plaza of the College's Hofheimer Library.

Go where he will, the wise man is at home,
His hearth the earth, his hall the azure dome.
- Ralph Waldo Emerson

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof."
- Psalm 24:1

Ever though your faith and your Church have their regular place in your daily walk of life, do you remember to include them in your vacation plans? Whatever highway you travel, God is there to provide you and your loved ones with His unfailing guidance and protection, if you will only reach out and avail yourself of it. He is everywhere, in the beauty of all the mountains, lakes and valleys of this world which He created, and so are His Churches. You can easily find them anywhere throughout the land. Remember that God never takes a vacation from you; don't take a vacation from him!

A new priest at Ascension

A year ago, Michael D. McCarron was ordained a deacon of the Roman Catholic Church at the Church of the Ascension on Princess Anne Road in Virginia Beach. Since that time, he has been serving his diocese at the same parish.

Now, almost a year later, he will be ordained to the priesthood-but this time at the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart in Richmond.

He will be one of five men to receive priestly orders from the Most Rev. Walter F. Sullivan, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Richmond, on Saturday, May 7, during a special Mass at 11 a.m.

The next evening, the new Father McCarron will return to Ascension Church to celebrate his first Mass after ordination at 6:30 p.m.

Where he goes from there is anybody's guess, but he just says he hopes wherever it is, that it's in parish work. He says he likes the broad spectrum of activities available in the parish. McCarron also calls the parish "the most fundamental building block of the church."

Born in Washington, D.C. the 25-year-old deacon grew up in Wheaton, Md., where he graduated from Our Lady of Good Counsel High School. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. James McCarron Sr. who recently moved to Ocean City, Md.

He has one brother and three sisters.

McCarron received a bachelor's degree in humanities from St. Mary's College Seminary in Catonsville, Md., and has a master's in theology from Catholic University in Washington.

He has been very active since joining the Diocese of Richmond, serving on the Diocesan Commission on Campus Ministry, and working with the high school and college retreat programs and the Charismatic Renewal movement.

Rivers of Living Water

But you shall remember the Lord your God, for it is He who is giving you power to make wealth, that He may confirm His covenant which He swore to your fathers, as it is this day.

"Give, and it will be given to you; good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, they will pour into your lap. For whatever measure you deal out to others, it will be dealt to you in return."

Now this I say, he who sows sparingly shall also reap sparingly; and he who sows bountifully shall also reap bountifully.

Let each one do just as he has purposed in his heart; not grudgingly or under compulsion; for God loves a cheerful giver.

And God is able to make all grace abound to you, that always having all sufficiency in everything, you may have abundance for every good deed;

Beloved, I pray that in all respects you may prosper and be in good health, just as your souls prosper.

(Deut 8:18) (Luke 6:38) (2Cor. 9:6-8) (3 John 2) (NAS)

but whoever drinks of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall become in him a well of water springing up to eternal life.

Blood pressure

There's a silent killer on the loose in Virginia Beach, reducing the life expectancy of one in every six residents. Is it street crime? Cancer? Air pollution? The testing will be done in the Emergency Department waiting room from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. It is painless, and no needles or undressing are involved. When the condition is detected in its early stages, it can usually be controlled by treatment. Therefore, those whose readings are elevated will be urged to contact their personal physicians for medical follow-up.

B.J. SCHWARTZ

BJ Schwartz packs a lot of service in with her flowers and plants and she considers that the key to her success at BJ's House of Flowers at London Bridge Shopping Center.

"We're very particular about what we do for our customers," she says and adds with a note of pride, "In some cases we're working for the third bride in a family. Those people are sold on our flowers and our service. They know that we're personable people and they keep coming back."

treatment. Customers come to BJ for fresh flowers for holidays and special occasions of all kinds and each customer is as important as a bride.

In addition to a variety of fresh flowers ready to be arranged in a container and style of the customer's choosing, the shop is vibrant with permanent flowers in luscious silks, wood fiber and other dried natural or contrived blossoms.

BJ indicates that people who grow tired of a permanent arrangement after having it in their home for a time bring back their flowers to rearrange, sometimes in a different container and with a few new blossoms tucked in, to entirely change the arrangement.

trees and shrubs and wanted to know what to do for them," she explains.

She was instrumental in the formation of the Wolfsmare Plantation Garden Club and served as the first president of the club. Though she now lives in Sandbridge, last year she was made an honorary life member of the Wolfsmare club.

Through the garden club, her interest widened to flower shows and arranging. She took courses at VPI and is now a national accredited flower show judge. She is past president of the National Accredited Flower Show Judges' Council in the Tidewater area and currently serves as a member of the Board of Directors of the Allied Florists Association in Tidewater.

BJ has owned and operated the House of Flowers at London Bridge for six years. It's a family business of sorts with daughter, Pam, working at her mother's side for the past three years and son, Doug, now a student at VCU in Richmond who helps out with deliveries when he's home on weekends.

BJ is well known in flower and garden club circles and got the "bug" which led her to her own flower shop seventeen years ago.

An arrangement by BJ.

What is the service a customer finds at BJ's? When she's doing a wedding, BJ and her daughter, Pam, who works at the shop along with her mother, go to the Church to arrange the flowers on the altar. They bring the bouquets for the bride and her bridesmaids and instruct them carefully how the flowers should be carried.

"We're there and we do whatever we can to help out," BJ relates.

At BJ's House of Flowers it's not just the brides who receive preferential the color scheme and decor of the home and of the particular room and setting where the arrangement will be used. Customers may bring their own containers or select from the containers available in the shop.

Permanent arrangements are important accessories in today's home and the silk flowers available at BJ's are a wise investment. The array of color and kind of blossom is wide enough to suit the taste and desires of all and the realistically created flowers last for-arrangements for every mood and setting.

Painting the Beach

...with Eric Stevens

Emerging from the express elevator a guest will find his way between two green pools; he'll be greeted by the sound of footfalls before he hears the sound of music. Music by Frank Sorrell will be on the menu for 20 Mondays starting May 23 at the Top of the Cavalier.

Frank and his band play all kinds of music, and are especially known for their Latin rhythms, but the set list caught emphasis on romantic songs...the seldom heard "Poor Butterfly"...Michel LeGrand's "Watch What Happens"...Glenn Miller's theme, "Moonlight Serenade"...and the longest song ever written, "Begin the Beguine." But he really tickled my nostalgia bone when we discussed the Brooklyn Dodgers, Dixie Walker, Mickey Owen, Duke Snider, Ebbets. Although we both root for the Los Angeles Dodgers, we still call them "Brooklyn"...something like two decades after the fact.

Brooklyn is where Frank worked his first gig (music job), at the age of twelve. He carried his harp in a paper bag to a party in a store. The pay, 25¢! To this day Frank has never worked a "day gig"...a nine-to-five non-music job, which is extremely rare in a field that has been devastated by automation.

Sorrell worked for such bachelors as Sammy Kaye, Leroy Holmes, Enoch Light, and Raymond Scott (Mr. Dorothy Collins). His own combo played long runs in Manhattan's top hotels and at the Blue Angel. Don Cornell recorded one of his compositions. Frank was being groomed as RCA Victor's rival for Alvino Rey, but he was stricken by bad luck just as he was slated to maestro the Lucky Strike Hit Parade. Frank Sorrell had gone to war.

The mid-1950's saw him settling here, and he was soon playing on WTAR-TV with Morty Nevins, who had left the Three Suns after composing "Twilight Time." His own group later featured a Beach girl, Jeannie Isbell Thomas, who went on to sing with Frank Sinatra, Jr., and to marry bandleader Sam Donahue.

The sound of the Frank Sorrell Orchestra is probably unique in this area, with accordion and the leader's guitar backing brass. Much of the melody is carried by Doc Scheier, another New Yorker, on trumpet and trombone; he used to play in the show band at the Latin Quarter, and has backed many stars. Accordionist Hartley Barnette, a West Virginian, blends tasteful simplicity into the framework. The versatile drummer is Johnnie Burruss, from Nashville, who works as a photographer. Frank takes only about one-fourth of the solos; the remainder of the time he is strumming in a "make-you-wanna-dance" style.

Jonathan Winters and Chuck Connors have been among recent clients to the Cavalier "Top." The dance floor is crescent-shaped, and it is easy to spot two of Tidewater's top terpsichoreans, bandleader Jack Dennis and Mrs. Dennis, as they glide in a manner reminiscent of Fred and Adele Astaire.

Maitre d' John Woodard possesses the elan one would expect in this impressive setting. If you're lucky you might get Joanne Griffith for your waitress. She keeps the Virginia Beach spot shining brightly after dark. Joanne came here on a vacation from Wheeling, and like so many of us, fell hopelessly in love with this unique city.

The top of the Cavalier offers what is probably the highest view from any public dining room in Tidewater. It calls to mind that Cole Porter composition, "You're The Top."

Chiefs out front

The Beach District baseball title was up for grabs last week, with Kempville, Princess Anne and Kellam all tied for first place at 3-1, and First Colonial close behind at 2-3.

But Kempville beat Kellam, Bayside topped First Colonial, and Cox, without a victory yet in Beach play, bested Princess Anne to put the Kempville Chiefs in the driver's seat.

There is not much doubt but they are now the team to beat. Their pitching has been coming through (Joe Beaton 7-2, Mike Sage 4-0), and hitters like Tom Reap (.444) and Sage (.441) make it tough to bet against them.

But if any sport is unpredictable, it's baseball, and until anything is mathematically clinched, it should be a dogfight.

Princess Anne tracksters utilize new baton exchange

Princess Anne girl's track coach M. J. Waldman just instituted a new baton exchange, and she thinks it may have won her a track meet. "It's called a Las Vegas exchange," explained coach Waldman, "it's a visual exchange because the runners are side-by-side when they pass the baton."

Using this new handoff, Princess Anne won both sprint relays in a dual meet with Cox last Wednesday, and eventually won the meet, 58-52.

P.A.'s Sue Jarrett won fifteen of those points, taking a first in the 220, seconds in the 100 and long jump, and thirds in the shot and discus.

Patty Van Patten broke her own school record in the mile with a time of 6:16.3.

Malibu students vie for 'tops'

Eight boys and girls from Malibu Elementary School received trophies for being top performers in their school's field day events held on April 20.

In order to become a top performer they had to compete to qualify for all or many of a variety of field events which include a 600 yard race, competitive pull ups, the 50 yard dash and others.

The boys and girls who did better than anyone else in their grade level earned enough points to be "tops."

This year's trophy winners are Debbie Traynor and Mark Robbins, 7th grade; Janice Johnson and Calvin Sutton, 6th grade; Andrea Johnson and Dean Henline, 5th grade; and Patricia Marshall and Johnny White, 4th grade.

Life is like a baseball game, or, (as I want to believe) pants do not a player make

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

Thurman coolly steps into the batters' box, and knocks the imaginary dirt loose from his cleats. His icy stare chills the pitcher, who is trying to protect a three run lead in the bottom of the seventh, with the bases loaded and two outs. The high school conference championship is at stake.

Thurman works the count to 3-2 before reaching down and away for a sharply breaking curve, ripping it to straight-away center for a dramatic, game-winning home run.

He magnanimously tips his cap for the delicious joy-third baseman on the junior varsity. Our team had driven over an hour for a contest with a school rival. I followed my usual ritual of getting dressed-first my sleeves and shirt, then my sanitaries and stirrups. But then, to my great dismay, I discovered that in my haste to pack, I had forgotten my pants.

My pants. Possibly the most important part of my uniform. I hesitated to tell my coach on the presumption that he would be upset. Can a ballplayer who forgets his pants be counted on to pick up a hit-and-run sign?

I pulled the manager (who once forgot to bring our bats to an away game) aside and told him my dilemma. He said he'd visit the visitor's lockerroom and try to rustle up a pair of extra pants, and, as both teams wore grey uniforms, I thought I would not be found out. I hollered "28-inch waist!" as he left.

He returned with a size 40 waist, justifying it by assuring me it was the only available pair of grey pants.

Having no reasonable alternatives, I donned the trousers. The elastic that keeps the bottoms of the legs tight below the knee was non-existent, and the baggy blanket covered my feet.

I looked ridiculous.

My coach was agast, yet opted to play me. I wish to this day he had not. I played third base, and the opponent's dugout (a bench) was no more than 15 feet to my right. The jeers and catcalls I was subjected to were many, the players merciless.

Defensively I played without mishap, but while running out a grounder to the shortstop, I tripped over the baggy legs, and went sprawling headfirst towards the base.

High school baseball can teach you about a lot about life. I like it my imaginary way better.

Cook cookin' for Bayside

At halftime of last Friday's Kempsville-Bayside soccer game, Chief coach Erich Becker thought his team had outplayed the Marlins, and chagrined their precarious 1-0 lead.

"I told them to keep doing what they had been doing, and the goals would come," said Becker.

And come they did. Eight of them. Led by Mark Holman's three goals, Kempsville swamped Bayside 9-0, upping their record to 5-1, setting the stage for this Friday's encounter with First Colonial, which is at this writing is the only undefeated school at the Beach, and the only team to beat Kempsville, which they did 4-1. Also scoring for the Chiefs were Steve Prince (2 goals, 1 assist), Steve White (2 goals), Mark Slayman (1 goal, 2 assists) and Mark Hellinger (1 goal).

Cox wins thriller

Cox coach Jeff Steckroth says he just doesn't see how his team's 5-4 victory over Princess Anne could have been more exciting. The facts bear him out.

The Falcons were trailing 3-1 with three minutes left in regulation play when striker Billy Cave scored, to bring them within one goal of the Cavaliers.

The seconds were counting down, but with 30 of them left, Cave again scored, knotting the score at 3, sending the game into two, five-minute overtimes.

Princess Anne's Sean O'Leary tallied first, and the 4-3 edge held throughout the first OT period.

But in the second and final OT period of the game, John Lipscomb, a halfback, scored two goals, the winning shot coming with just 19 seconds left.

"I had thought we were out of it," said Steckroth after the game. "We've been down by two before and given up, but not today."

Scoring P.A.'s other two goals was John Garcia. Cavalier assists came from Pat Foster, who had two.

Andy Lyon and David Lyon (no relation) each had an assist for Cox.

Cox goalie Joel Butts had 11 saves before being knocked out of the game in the first OT with a concussion.

Harriet Cook of Bayside High is playing two sports this spring, but it doesn't appear to be hurting her performances any. According to Bayside softball coach Norag Nocher, who gets to utilize Harriet's athletic ability about half the time, she works hard enough that she can go full steam in track as well. In fact, she has been recording top Beach marks in the shot and discus all season. "Her last school period of May is free," said coach Nocher, "and she works on track. Later, after we've started softball practice, she joins us." In last Tuesday's 14-6 win over First Colonial, Bayside upped its record to 5-0 with the aid of Harriet's triple and two runs batted in. New Jones added a home run and three rbi's, while pitcher Donna Rattle played what coach Nocher called "an outstanding game, both pitching and on defense." First Colonial fell to 2-3.

Beach NJROTC compete

The annual NJROTC field day and awards ceremonies for Virginia Beach public schools will be held Friday, May 6, at the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, between 9:30 a.m. and 12:00 noon, on Sullawski Memorial Field. In case of rain, the ceremonies will be conducted indoors in Rockwell Hall.

More than 500 Navy Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets from the six Virginia Beach high schools will participate in the field day competition which will begin with a cadet personnel inspection in summer dress blues at 9:30 a.m. and will include a 10:45 a.m. "pass-in-review", along with drill and marching demonstrations.

Several individual and unit awards will be presented during the program including the "Captain C. E. Catton Award for Excellence" which will be presented by Virginia Beach School Superintendent, Dr. E. E. Brickell, to the unit judged the winner of the inspection and "pass-in-review".

Rear Admiral William H. Ellis, Commandant of the Fifth Naval District, and representatives from the Fleet Reserve Association, the American Legion, Military Order of the World Wars, Retired and Reserve Officers' Associations, Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, and the National Sojourners will also present awards to individual Virginia Beach cadets.

The Princess Anne NJROTC unit won the Catton award last year.

Rissell outstanding

Peter John Rissell of Virginia Beach has been recognized for his outstanding classwork at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Rissell, who lives at 4412 Kent Mary Road, is a senior at Missouri-Columbia's arts and sciences division. Because of his high grade average during the past semester, he has earned a place on the school's dean's list.

Coast Guard warns

Severe winter destroys signals

Tidewater boaters, beware!

The Coast Guard is faced with the massive task of rebuilding aids to navigation that were destroyed by severe ice conditions this winter. Approximately 650 structures that were damaged or destroyed must be replaced in the waters of Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina. It will be September before the task is completed, Coast Guard officials say.

Boaters are urged to use caution until all aids to navigation are restored and possible underwater hazards are removed. The use of reliable fixed objects ashore to establish position and the practice of extreme caution in navigating previously ice-covered areas is essential.

Civic chorus presents 'Small World'

The Virginia Beach Civic Chorus, under the able direction of Walter Noma, will present its annual Spring Concert on Sunday, May 7, at Plaza Junior High School, 3080 S. Lynnhaven Rd.

The concert this year is titled, "It's a Small World," and will again feature numbers light in nature as well as some more serious numbers. Both night's performances start at 8 p.m. The first half of the program will include numbers by Morley, Palestrina, Brahms, Faure, and Rimsky-Korsakoff. The Brahms work consists of six folk songs titled: "I'd Enter Your Garden," "The Fiddler," "How Sad Flow the Streams," "At Night," "Awake, Awake," and "A House Stands 'Neath the Willows' Shade."

The Second half, of a lighter nature, will include the following: "It's a Small World," Alexander's Ragtime Band, "A Sentimental Journey Thru the 40's," "Send in the Clowns," "Feelings," "I Write the Songs," "Ease on Down the Road," and "Joy to the World." The Sentimental Journey work will recall many fond World War II memories.

In addition, Joyce Coulters, soprano, and Gregg Walter, baritone, will perform in solo numbers, and a ladies trio, "The Andrews Sisters," will sing for us. Tickets are available in advance, from any chorus member, or at the door on the evenings of the performances. Prices are $2.75 for adults and $1 for students. Come and enjoy a very happy and nostalgic evening.

Skateboard tracks on the way

Skateboarding, the sport of the streets for the young and fearless, is finally coming into its own in Virginia Beach.

Enthusiasts have the prospect of soon having two skateboard courses to maneuver in where now they have to be satisfied with skating wherever the terrain suits them.

The city is planning to build a course at Mount Trashmore between the soapbox derby course and the new parking area, and a commercial course is being planned at the beach.

City Manager George L. Hanbury has told City Council that six months ago asked the Parks and Recreation Department for a track at Trashmore. Good engineering plans are needed to design the dips and curves of a track so John Herzke, city engineer, prepared some plans. Herzke, who admitted he was not a skateboarder, "but I am an engineer," sought the help of enthusiasts and drew a plan for two tracks, one a 250-foot long many-curved strip with an incline varying from 3 to 6 percent, and the other a bowl type affair measuring about 45 feet across with 12 foot high banks. Leading to the bowl is another curved strip about 100 feet long.

Hanbury said the city may be able to use money left over from the parking lot construction. The track will cost about $20,000 to $25,000 with city labor.

The track can be a good blend of another recreation at Trashmore he said, which has had problems with children skating on the soapbox derby ramp. Grant helps fund juvenile program

Virginia Beach will start a program designed to keep juvenile delinquents from becoming adult criminals.

The program, the Comprehensive Juvenile Delinquency Prevention and Control Plan, will be made possible by a $26,383 grant from the Division of Justice and Crime Prevention. City Manager George L. Hanbury said the grant will allow for the direction, monitoring and implementation of the City's Comprehensive Juvenile Delinquency Prevention and Control Five Year Plan. He said the program will be for 12 - 18 year-olds, an age range not included under present programs.

Hanbury said that the interest of the Federal Judicial System in the program indicates a continuation of grant awards in the future. Treatment at the juvenile level, he said, is expected to eliminate incarceration at the adult level.

The plan would be operated out of the city manager's office with Sam Clay, assistant to the city manager, in charge. A juvenile plan coordinator also will be hired to implement within one year 23 of the 37 proposed solutions to the juvenile delinquency problem in the city.

City Council has accepted the grant and appropriated matching funds of $1,319.

Trails at Seashore park added to national system

Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus has designated the Seashore State Park Natural Area Trails System, within the Seashore State Park in Virginia Beach, as a National Recreation Trail.

The 23-mile trails system is within a two-hour drive of approximately one million people, most of whom live within the heavily populated Norfolk, Newport News, and Virginia Beach areas.

Seashore State Park has nine trails, many interconnected, each is an entity in itself and laid out to show some unique aspect of the 2000-acre Seashore State Park Natural Area. The system contains one bicycle path which connects with the city of Virginia Beach and the state park bicycle trails complex. With the exception of an additional 4.5 miles of bicycle trail, the trails are designed for hiking. The trails and the park are administered by the Virginia Division of Parks.

The uniqueness of the area has resulted in its addition to the National Register of Natural Landmarks.

Mary Lou Grier, acting director of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation which administers the National Trails System gives deserved recognition to this trail system which affords fine opportunities for outdoor recreation in a natural setting.

The Trail is the 109th National Recreation Trail in the Nation. National recreation trails are usually located near urban areas and serve diverse recreation users. They may be designated by the Secretary of the Interior or, if on national forest lands, by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Severe winter destroys signals

Tidewater boaters, beware!

The Coast Guard is faced with the massive task of rebuilding aids to navigation that were destroyed by severe ice conditions this winter. Approximately 650 structures that were damaged or destroyed must be replaced in the waters of Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina. It will be September before the task is completed, Coast Guard officials say.

Boaters are urged to use caution until all aids to navigation are restored and possible underwater hazards are removed. The use of reliable fixed objects ashore to establish position and the practice of extreme caution in navigating previously ice-covered areas is essential.

The Virginia Beach Civic Chorus, under the able direction of Walter Nouns, will present its annual Spring Concert on Sunday, May 3 and Monday, May 9, at Plaza Junior High School, 3080 S. Lynnhaven Rd.

The concert this year is titled, "It's a Small World," and will again feature numbers light in nature as well as some more serious numbers. Both night's performances start at 8 p.m. The first half of the program will include numbers by Morley, Palestrina, Brahms, Faure, and Rimsky-Korsakoff. The Brahms work consists of six folk songs titled: "I'd Enter Your Garden," "The Fiddler," "How Sad Flow the Streams," "At Night," "Awake, Awake," and "A House Stands 'Neath the Willows' Shade."

The Second half, of a lighter nature, will include the following: "It's a Small World," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "A Sentimental Journey Thru the 40's," "Send in the Clowns," "Feelings," "I Write the Songs," "Ease on Down the Road," and "Joy to the World." The Sentimental Journey work will recall many fond World War II numbers.

In addition, Joyce Coulson, soprano, and Gregg Walker, baritone, will be featured in solo numbers, and a ladies trio, "The Andrews Sisters," will sing for us. Tickets are available in advance, from any chorus member, or at the door on the evenings of the performances. Prices are $2.75 for adults and $1 for students. Come and enjoy a very happy and nostalgic evening.

Skateboard tracks on the way

Skateboarding, the sport of the streets for the young and fearless, is finally coming into its own in Virginia Beach.

Enthusiasts have the prospect of soon having two skateboard courses to maneuver in where now they have to be satisfied with skating wherever the terrain suits them.

The city is planning to build a course at Mount Trashmore between the soapbox derby course and the new parking area, and a commercial course is being planned at the beach.

City Manager George L. Hanbury has told City Council that six months ago the Parks and Recreation Department for a track at Trashmore. Good engineering plans are needed to design the dips and curves of a track so John Herke, city engineer, prepared some plans. Herke, who admitted he was not a skateboarder, "but I am an engineer," sought the help of enthusiasts and drew a plan for two tracks, one a 250-foot long many-curved strip with an incline varying from 3 to 6 percent, and the other a bowl type affair measuring about 45 feet across with 12 foot high banks. Leading to the bowl is another curved strip about 100 feet long.

Hanbury said the city may be able to use money left over from the parking lot construction. The track will cost about $20,000 to $25,000 with city labor.

The track can be a good blend of another recreation at Trashmore he said, which has had problems with children skating on the soapbox derby ramp. The city's basic insurance policy would provide coverage against liability. Skaters would be required to wear the proper equipment, he said, and some charge may be made if major supervision is needed. It will take about 60 days to complete the construction, he said. Mayor Clarence A. Holland, a physician, noted that the hospital emergency room has at least one injury a day from skateboards and sometimes there are as many as eight a day.

The commercial track will be constructed by Pipelines, Inc., which was granted a conditional use permit Monday afternoon for the recreational facility. It will be located on the southside of Virginia Beach Boulevard approximately 700 feet east of Birdneck Road, Lynnhaven Borough.

Bob White, principal of the company, and beach surf-board manufacturers, plans to include on the one-acre site restrooms, a first-aid station, a pro shop and picnic area. The course will be 250 feet long with varying widths.

Grant helps fund juvenile program

Virginia Beach will start a program designed to keep juvenile delinquents from becoming adult criminals.

The program, the Comprehensive Juvenile Delinquency Prevention and Control Plan, will be made possible by a $26,383 grant from the Division of Justice and Crime Prevention. City Manager George L. Hanbury said the grant will allow for the direction, monitoring and implementation of the City's Comprehensive Juvenile Delinquency Prevention and Control Five Year Plan. He said the program will be for 12-18 year-olds, an age range not included under present programs.

Hanbury said that the interest of the Federal Judicial System in the program indicates a continuation of grant awards in the future. Treatment at the juvenile level, he said, is expected to eliminate incarceration at the adult level.

The plan would be operated out of the city manager's office with Sam Clay, assistant to the city manager, in charge. A juvenile plan coordinator also will be hired to implement within one year 23 of the 37 proposed solutions to the juvenile delinquency problem in the city. Points of interest along the Beach waterway were pointed out by a guide as the passengers enjoyed views of homes along the creek as well as a look at Seashore State Park which received assistance from area garden clubs for its continuation.

Martha started turning nothings into somethings on a farm she and her two children lived on in Missouri after her husband died. Using the lower half of a window shade (people in the country don't need window shades says Martha) and some old cans of paint, she produced a painting that hangs on display in her office home.

"I couldn't decide what to take, but every time I flipped through the art section of the catalogue I became more and more interested."

After graduating with honors Mrs. Henry taught art for seven years at a school for exceptional children which she says was the most rewarding period in her life. "It turned out that so many of the children were very talented and could turn sticks and string and old bones in-

Martha has slowly incorporated calligraphy (the art of fine penmanship) into her work. During the bicentennial she turned famous documents into patriotic figures and says she enjoys that type of work the most. On tour with some of her favorite pieces, she gave many of them away to high schools.

Ryals a winner, Sailor of Quarter

Learning he was the first Oceana Naval Air Station's Sailor of the Quarter, Aviation Fire Control Technician Second Class (AQ2) Charles "Steve" Ryals flashed a big smile. The 24-year old ABE radar technician was Aircraft Intermediate Maintenance Department's (AIMD) nominee for the station award which recognizes outstanding personnel for an entire quarter. This award replaces the Sailor of the Month award program.

Steve, assigned to the Avionics Division, strives for quality workmanship because of the satisfaction he derives from doing his best. His outstanding performance was not unnoticed. Steve was awarded as AIBD's Sailor of the Quarter and nominated as their representative to the station command.

Steve holds down a part-time position as bingo official on Wednesday evenings and Sunday afternoons at the Seahorse Club, the Enlisted Mess (Open). He and his wife, Margaret, have set mutual goals, and the added income will help reach these.

Steve feels lucky to have been accorded the honor of the Quarter Horse, although Jack did not play a role in his selection. However, he did have some real luck several months ago when relatives visited. Steve did some extra grocery shopping in a local supermarket and received a card for the supermarket's horserace game giveaway. The ticket was a 100-1 winner!

Steve joined the Navy shortly after graduating from Crickenridge High School in San Antonio, Texas. Typically, he has traveled many parts of the world.

OPINION

Editor, Virginia Beach SUN:

I cannot understand why the Virginia Beach City Council believes that development in the area of London Bridge Road and Oceana Boulevard is necessary at this time.

The Planning Department's report indicates that Oceana Boulevard is currently overburdened with traffic volume exceeding road capacity by 3,250 vehicles per day. There are highways proposed to be built in the area in the 1980's but until that time Oceana Boulevard will be a progressively dangerous highway. Furthermore, it seems that highways are seldom completed on schedule.

Highway deficiency is only one of many factors against these developments. Additional schools will be needed for the area, and agriculture in Virginia Beach will be one step closer to extinction. I can only hope that the Council will give more careful consideration to any future rezoning applications in that area.

School census survey

On May 9 school census questionnaires will be mailed to all residents in Virginia Beach who did not return a completed survey form to a public or private school in March. This will be the second phase of the school division's effort to locate all children between 1 and 19 years of age, and all handicapped persons between 1 and 21 living in the city.

Virginia law requires that a school census be taken

Just passing through

A visitor to Virginia Beach finds a bench on the boardwalk suitable for a seaside seista.

every three years by every school division in the Commonwealth. The law directs school divisions to collect the name, age, race, sex, and other pertinent information about each child residing in the school district.

Statistics from the census are used by the State to determine the distribution of specific state funds to all counties, cities, and towns in Virginia. These monies should total more than $17 million for Virginia Beach

Phase one of the census, which was handled by the city's individual private and public schools, was extremely successful. Some 77,700 children were located through this initial survey.

In order for the school division to accurately plan for the future of public education during the next three years. The census will also be used by Virginia Beach and the state of Virginia to plan for the future educational needs of our young people in the city and insure receipt of its share of the special state funds, an accurate census is absolutely essential.

The Virginia Beach public school division has requested that residents with children between the ages of 1 and 19 or handicapped children between the ages of 1 and 21 who receive a school census questionnaire in the mail, complete the survey form and return it in the pre-addressed envelope which will accompany the questionnaire.

20 WORDS FOR ONLY $3.20

HOW to Write a Person-to-Person Classified Ad that Sells!

GIVE ENOUGH INFORMATION

An ad that's too short becomes expensive if it doesn't sell your item. "Golf Clubs, 000-0000" leaves the reader with too many questions. What kind? What model? Condition? State the price or say "Make an offer."

STATE THE ITEM

Tell your readers exactly what you're selling right away. Don't bother with fancy features yet. They don't want to know it's "Wilson K28" until after they know it's a set of golf clubs.

BE HONEST

Don't omit obvious flaws or exaggerate the quality. "Never used" might get lots of calls but "damaged number three iron" may get more offers. Your readers want to buy from someone they can trust.

MAKE SURE CUSTOMERS CAN REACH YOU

Just a phone number is enough if you will be home all the time the ad is running. If not, your caller may get discouraged and decide not to call back. By adding "After 6 P.M." your customer knows exactly when he can reach you.

GET TO THE POINT

Avoid long-winded language when short phrases will do. "Super deluxe, attractive blue and white Atlantic bag" can be shortened to "blue and white Atlantic bag." That way you can convey a lot of information while taking advantage of our low Person-to-Person rates.

GOLF CLUBS, Wilson K28, full set, with blue and white Atlantic bag, damaged number three iron, cost $400. Will sell for $225. Phone 000-0000 after 6 P.M.

Foster homes needed not for kids but adults

By GARY FULLERTON

You've heard of foster homes for children, but have you heard of foster homes for adults?

That's right, foster homes for adults: those elderly persons and physically and mentally disabled persons who cannot live alone.

The Virginia Beach Social Services Department is looking for volunteers to be a foster home provider, to help these persons who need room and board and other minimal care.

Right now, according to Dot Davis, volunteer services coordinator, the Social Services Department has about ten foster homes for adults but is anticipating an "immediate need for more."

As of May 10, MEDICAID begins a screening process for those elderly and disabled persons seeking admission to foster homes under MEDICAID. The new screening process will determine that some of the applicants may not be qualified because they will not need nursing care but still cannot live alone.

Unless these persons have a family or friends to turn to, their only recourse will be to foster home. They themselves will be able to take care of themselves but will need the help of someone in fixing meals, taking medication, arranging trips to physicians, laundries, etc.

Through a variety of referrals, the Virginia Beach Social Services Department expects to have an increase in foster homes needing foster homes. Social worker Betty Elder, who works exclusively with the department's elderly assistance programs, says they something to give a caring person. Mr. Elder indicated that on the adult foster home program, ability to match the person with the volunteer so that they are compatible, i.e., personality traits, interests, area, etc.

"The homes we have so far have worked out very well, and we are very pleased," said Mr. Elder. "We don't know how many more foster homes we will need but we hope to have seven more volunteers by the end of the month."

Basically, the need is for elderly persons, Mr. Elder said it will require a much greater and careful effort in placing mentally or physically disabled persons in foster homes.

Volunteers who offer room and board under the program will not receive any financial assistance from the city. "So far," Mrs. Davis said, "the city has not received any money to handle this volunteer program. However, we do expect the volunteer and the boarder to work out some sort of financial agreement equitable to both parties," she said.

"We sincerely hope the citizens of Virginia Beach will respond to the needs of these people and volunteer to be a foster home provider," added Mrs. Davis.

In addition to adult foster homes, volunteers are also needed by Social Services to work in the juvenile and domestic relations courts, assisting those children and families involved in court cases and acting as a liaison between them and the Social Services Department.

"These volunteers will need some training but would be most effective in easing the difficulties children and families encounter in a court case," Mrs. Davis explained. Volunteers are needed Mondays through Fridays from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. each day.

There is also a need for volunteers to work in the financial and social services at the 25th and Artie Avenue office. "Often-times a case worker will need to leave his office to investigate eligibility in food stamp or aid to dependent children cases. If a volunteer can take the case worker's place at his or her desk and answer phones, respond to inquiries, open mail, etc., this would relieve the case worker of a great deal, and he or she would be able to concentrate more on specific cases," said Mrs. Davis. All volunteers for this work would also re-

A fourth area in which volunteers are needed is the department's Parent Aide program. In it, volunteers are needed to act as a friend to adults having problems. "There's no counseling done by the volunteers," said Mrs. Davis. "But they do have to know how to be a friend and help people and not expect to receive this friendship back. When a person is having trouble, just knowing he or she has a friend to really depend on helps them considerably, and it takes a special kind of volunteer to fill this role."

So there are a great many ways you can help as a volunteer. If you are interested, call Dot Davis at 421-4451. You will find the call a very satisfying one.

Skateboard arena

World's largest wanted at Mt. Trashmore park

By LEE CAHILL
SUN Public Affairs Writer

Virginia Skating Parks Inc. wants to build the "world's largest skateboard rink" in Virginia Beach provided it's in Mount Trashmore on land leased from the city.

City Council Monday afternoon listened as Charles R. Hofheimer, representing the company, outlined plans for the $350,000 facility and agreed to look into all the legal and other ramifications. The city staff was given 60 days to return with a report.

But before the Council meeting was over, the Hofheimer plan hit a snag. Mrs. Michael A. Negro Jr. told Council she had already inquired about leasing land in Mount Trashmore for a skateboard park -- at least three months ago. She had talked to Harold Whitehurst, director of Parks and Recreation, who had expressed doubt that city land could be leased to private interests.

City Manager George L. Hamerly, she said, also indicated that the project would not be possible. So Mrs. Negro started looking for private land and leased six acres at the intersection of Holland and Lands-down Avenue with an option to buy. If the Mount Trashmore land was to be leased to anyone, Mrs. Negro said, she would have preference because she owned it.

Virginia Skating Parks, an organization of Norfolk and Virginia Beach businessmen, is the same company that is building the skating park near Jant Shopping Center in Norfolk on private land.

The company wants to lease three acres at Mount Trashmore -- four if more parking is needed, and will build a facility with four major runs, each capable of taking 100 skaters at a time, Hofheimer said. The company can guarantee six television exposures a year and a pro-am tournament. In addition, Hofheimer said, the company will teach skateboarding safety in classes at the park and in schools. The company is sanctioned by the American Skateboard Association, he said.

There is some precedent for leasing public land to private interests in other cities and in Virginia Beach, Hofheimer said, the Industrial Authority leases land. He said money received for the use of the land would pay for other development in the Park.

When Councilman Floyd E. Waterfield asked why Mount Trashmore, Hofheimer said the park had passed national recognition and should be developed as a national recreational program.

What was wrong with the five acre piece of land across the street from Mount Trashmore? Councilman John R. Griffin asked. He was concerned with the dwindling supply of public recreational property.

Hofheimer replied that in many cities private enterprise has been taking over public jobs. For instance, McDonald's is offering a school lunch program in many cities.

Mrs. Negro said later that it was much cheaper to lease land from the city than from private property owners. She had been asked for as much as $25,000 to lease one site.

Councilman Henry McCoy seemed to think the idea of free enterprise was good, but said the property would have to be leased on a bid basis.

Waterfield said that once the city started leasing "there would be no end to it."

Councilman R. L. Riggs said it might save taxpayers money. He remarked, however, that the Norfolk park was billed as the "world's largest," and now the Virginia Beach park would be the "world's largest." "I want some assurance that it would be the world's largest," he quipped.

Griffin noted that Hofheimer participated in the Virginia Beach Tomorrow program which even supported a bond referendum for more park land. "I am unwilling to lease any city land," he said.

Hofheimer said the city needs to utilize the land it has and maintained that his company was not prepared to enter Virginia Beach at any location other than Mount Trashmore.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorff noted that the company was using private property in Norfolk.

Hofheimer said his company wanted to be first, and it would take longer to locate on private property.

In the meantime, the city is constructing a small skateboard park at Mount Trashmore for $20,000 to School boundary update

By GARY FULLERTON

Dr. E. E. Brickell, superintendent of Virginia Beach public schools, has submitted to the School Board for consideration a proposed plan for redistricting certain elementary schools effective next fall, plus several recommendations from various parent-teacher organizations.

The redistricting plan, along with the recommendations, will be considered and final decisions made at the board's May 17 meeting.

The plan, which calls for students shifts at 20 Beach elementary schools to alleviate overcrowding and underutilization at certain schools, was introduced to the leaders of the parent-teachers groups late last March. At that time, Dr. Brickell asked the PTA heads to take his staff's proposed changes back to their groups for consideration.

In forwarding the recommendations to the school board, Brickell said these basic premises applied: (1) New boundary lines should remain stable for the longest period in our rapidly growing city. (2) The number of students to be transferred should be kept to a minimum to allow effective use of all available space, and (3) Maximum use should be made of all existing space.

Other premises used in drawing the boundary changes were keeping subdivisions and apartment and townhouse complexes together at the same schools, do not over crowd one school to ease overcrowding in another, those areas closest to the receiving schools should be the ones reoned, and all-elite zoning should be avoided except as a temporary measure.

Brickell said he and his staff were gratified by the efforts of the PTA and other groups in helping prepare a proposal which would do the most possible good for the school populations. Brickell said the suggestions, alternatives and endorsements received reflect careful consideration of the situation and generally all respondents recognized the problem and complexities involved. But the only thing upon which there was not an agreement is which children should be moved to what school.

The proposed change considered the elementary schools at the Beach and in the Great Neck area, whose boundaries had not been changed since 1971. To reduce overcrowding at Trantwood, it was proposed to move 90 to 150 students to Cooke, 30 to 50 students to Seaboard and 150-210 students to Trantwood.

Brickell said the Cooke, Seaboard and Trantwood PTAs, which represented about 1500 students, voiced no objection to the proposal, but several individual proposals were received.

School boundary change update

About 64 parents in Birdnest Village apartments wanted their 74 students kept at Lighthouse Park and made three alternative suggestions.

Two hundred fifty seven property owners in Seabach requested that their areas be rezoned from Seabach to Transtwood and move students in Eastwood Villa, Maney Manor and Laskin Village from Lighthouse Park to Seabach School to Transtwood.

In submitting the individual proposals, Brickell's staff indicated that, when the changes were considered in the whole, the suggestions were not feasible.

The proposed boundary changes considered the Bayside, Kempville and Plaza areas together, trying to reduce student membership at Fairfield, Green Run, Holland and Kempville elementary while better utilizing space at all schools in the Bayside, Kempville and Plaza areas.

It called for increasing Arrowhead by 50-50, increasing Argosy 50-200, increasing Bayside 60-120, increasing Brookwood 60-100, reducing Kemp-ville 200-300, and increasing the following schools: Kemp Landing 50-75, Lantford 30-200, Old Donation 50-150, Pembroke 100-180, Pembroke Meadows 100-140, Point O'View 120-180, Plaza 80-120, and Williams 100-150.

Brickell told the Board that letters of support for the proposed changes came from the PTAs of Bayside, Fairfield, Kempville Meadows, Kemp Landing and Lantford. The PTAs of Argosy, Arrowhead, Brookwood, Green Run, Holland, Newtown Road, Plaza and Williams offered no alternate rezoning plans and did not object to the plan as proposed. These groups represent the parents of some 11,000 students enrolled in the 13 schools.

However, Brickell did receive recommendations for proposals other than the one planned. These alternate recommendations came from:

A group of 135 Old Donation parents, the Kempville PTA, 300 Kempville Elementary parents, 305 parents and not-parents of Indian Lakes, and Point O'View PTA.

Where appropriate, these recommendations were incorporated into the staff proposal, and where not, it was explained why.

$25,000. It won't be the world's largest, but it won't cost city residents anything either although a small charge may be imposed later to defray expenses of park personnel.

Mrs. Negro said that she had intended to oppose the city park on grounds that the city was competing with private enterprise but realized that the city should provide a place for local youngsters to use their skateboards free.

Mrs. Negro, president of the Winmar Company, which is building the Holland Road park, also said that one council member told her it would not be possible to lease the Mount Trashmore land.

Council passes budget, no change in tax rates

By LEE CANELL
SUN Public Affairs Writer

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon adopted the $350,628,359 budget proposed by City Manager George L. Hanbury making no changes in the real estate or personal property tax rates.

Since its presentation several weeks ago the budget elicited little comment or opposition from the citizenry except for a small flurry of activity when some councilmen suggested increasing tax rate from three to five per cent to make it possible for the city to have a larger reserve.

Mayor Clarence A. Holland Monday referred to criticism he received for his endorsement of a tax increase because of his concern about the reserve. He also pointed out that the city manager did not ask for the tax increase and in fact is not expected to ask for a tax increase or decrease. Mayor Holland said that a larger reserve would have to come from a tax increase or cutting services, and "I proposed the tax increase." He also noted that there was little opposition to the budget.

Hanbury remarked that the mayor's position was a financially sound one and that any manager would like to have a larger surplus.

Councilman J. Henry McCoy, addressing the mayor, said, "I don't see why you have to sit there and take the blame." He said he also had backed a tax increase, but the will of the people prevailed.

Hanbury said the budget is sound if all the assumptions are true and requested his support of promoting a diversified economy to insure fiscal stability.

The budget had the lowest percentage of increase (6.5 per cent) since 1966. The real estate tax rate remains at 87 cents per $100 valuation, the lowest in the state for cities of over 25,000 population.

The reserve, at $2,500,000 represents only two percent of the budget, which Hanbury considered low. He said he would recommend a tax increase before allowing the reserve to become any lower.

Real estate taxes provide for $58,494,793 of the budget for 1977, and 5.5 and 6.5 percent projected for 1978, the budget increase is minor, Hanbury said.

625; other local taxes, $20,003,000, from the reserve of 1976-77, $3,513,237, with the State, $41,958,008 and the federal government, $5,382,876.

Schools will take the biggest chunk - $58,718,990; city operations, $52,031,934; utility operations $7,738,914; city debt retirement, $4,778,932; school debt retirement, $4,119,775 and utility retirement, $3,245,794.

Hanbury said that the budget before presentation to council was set by $13 million and that the general government increase was only 3.8 percent.

With this year's population increase of six percent, an inflationary spiral of 5.5 per cent for 1977, and 5.5 and 6.5 percent projected for 1978, the budget increase is minor, Hanbury said.

Viet refugees speak

Open letter to the President, and Honorable Senators and Representatives of the United States of America.

Today, April 30, 1977, we Vietnamese refugees residing in Southern Virginia gathered together at Redwing Park, Virginia Beach, to commemorate the second anniversary of the fall of our beloved country, the Republic of Vietnam. Our Republic was once a part of the free world, now it is under the domination of the communist regime. Our purpose is to discuss the actual situation existing in our country after two years under the communist regime.

The present regime has expended considerable effort through public declarations to demonstrate that there has been no revenge, no repression, and no "blood-bath" in the wake of the fall of Saigon. To listen to the communist propaganda one might believe that the present regime is an epitome of patience and tolerance. However, news carried by expelled missionaries, journalists, and recent refugees, plus rare letters from our relatives in Vietnam cause us to conclude that revenge is commonplace and human rights have been seriously abridged by the new government in Vietnam.

Many hundreds of thousands of people are forced to go to "re-education" camps. Where are they? How are they living? Are they alive or dead? When may they return to their homes? Their location and condition are completely unknown to their families. Millions of people have been forced to leave their homes in cities to go to the so-called "new life areas" in the mountains and uninhabited land far away. Many of these locations are nothing but concentration camps for people that the new regime does not like. In these areas many people are quietly dying - eliminated. By denying scrutiny international observation, the communist government is attempting to avoid the word "blood bath."

We hope that the government of the United States will join with other governments in the world in a common voice to stop this selective bloodshed and abridgement of human rights. We pray that dialogue between the United States and the communist government of Vietnam will permit reunification of the families separated after the fall of Saigon.

The Vietnamese Refugee Community of Southern Virginia.

Editor, Virginia Beach SUN:

Hooray for Charles Kirkpatrick. Body death is difficult for most people to confront and as a result the public has been historically "ripped off" by the cost of death. This has, in many cases, caused great hardship to the surviving members of the family who are already overwhelmed by the emotional impact of death.

Congratulations, also to the SUN for printing this honest evaluation in the face of the controversial nature of the subject matter. You have performed a true public service.

VDAC warns of 'gypsy' painters and home improvement crews

Once again this year, the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Commerce (VDAC) warns all Virginia Beach homeowners to be on themselves from unscrupulous itinerant painters. The advice could also be applicable to gypsy home improvement crews:

guard against the itinerant, or gypsy, home improvement crews who each year seem to re-appear in Virginia along with spring.

Many of these crews are flim-flam artists who often pose as paint contractors, usually offering to spray paint your house or roof for an unbelievably low price. But don't be fooled—some of these "bargain" paint jobs wash off with the first hard rain. Sometimes these traveling contractors will pose as roofers or asphalt pavers,

These con artists often take advantage of elderly citizens in rural areas, but urban citizens have been victimized also. Therefore, VDAC advises that citizens immediately report to their local law enforcement agencies any suspicious strangers offering home improvements. The police would like a description of the person or persons, their vehicle, and license number.

Charles G. Rock, assistant supervisor of VDAC's Paint Section, offers the following tips for consumers to protect Cleaning up a street by vacating a plot isn't so simple a solution as the City of Virginia Beach is finding out.

It's been six months since a resident of 79th Street asked the city to turn over some of the city-owned street to the abutting res-

Cleanup project

The Keystone Club of the Boy's Club of Virginia Beach began one of their community service projects on Saturday, April 23, by starting to clean out the brook next to the United Way Family Center on South Boulevard.

Those participating in the ecological effort were: Robert McKinney, Paul Weinstein, Terry Vickers, Steve Jones, with Virginia Beach advisor Mr. Thomas Rubin.

--Never pay in advance. See if your contractor will agree to a 30-day credit plan. If he is reluctant to accept such an agreement, chances are that he may not be around if trouble develops after the job is completed.

--Try to be around to inspect the paint work while it's in process to see that the contractor is conforming to the agreement.

Armed forces concerts

Commemorating Armed Forces Week, a combined ensemble of Tidewater's military bands will present free community concerts in Virginia Beach and Hampton May 19 and 20.

Joining for two concerts will be selected members of the U. S. Continental Army Band, the U. S. Atlantic Fleet Band, the U. S. Air Force Tactical Air Command Band and the Marine Corps element at the School of Music, Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

Thursday, May 19, the band will play at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base Theater. The scene shifts to the Hampton High School auditorium in Hampton the following night.

Both concerts begin at 8 p.m. and are open to the public. The 64-piece ensemble will play a wide variety of music from contemporary symphonic pieces and pop hits to traditional military marches.

The concerts will be the first since 1970 to include representatives from each of the area's military bands, representing among the best in the nation.

Controlling night revelers more difficult than thought idents so that they could control the undesirable happenings there. Monday afternoon Council, by a vote of 8-2, deferred the matter until the city administration could study the matter with the North Virginia Beach Civic League.

Grover Wright, who lives at the west end of the street which adjoins Seashore State Park, had asked for a vacation of a portion of the plot so that the abutting property owners could control the property. The matter was deferred indefinitely then.

The street apparently is a haven for night revelers and Wright said he would like to keep out the motorcycles, and the people who litter, smoke pot and drink beer.

Peter Agelasto, attorney representing the North Virginia Beach Civic League which opposes the vacation, said that the same problem exists on other streets at the north end which dead-ends into the park. If a solution is to be reached, he said, it should be the same for the whole area.

Along with the vacation ordinance was accompanied a list of stipulations which, Agelasto said, wouldn't allow be property owners to do anything they can not do now except build fences and tell people to get off their property.

In a briefing at Council's informal session, City Manager George L. Hanbury said that the streets in the north end have an 80-100 feet right of way only 20 to 30 feet of which is paved. The adjoining property owners have infringed on the unpaved portion by landscaping and even building. However, he said, there is not a subdivision today that has that large a right of way giving the city more ownership of property in the north end than any other part of the city.

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing said that the problem is that the opposition was hoping that anything that came out of the 79th Street settlement would be applied anywhere.

Hanbury said that any general settlement would involve a survey of 63rd to 89th Streets, a massive undertaking. He added that there could be no uniform closure because the circumstances differ. He said one street closing on 89th Street requested recently differed in that it was for construction purposes. Wright does not intend to build on the property and the vacation ordinance stipulates this.

Councilman Robert B. Cromwell Jr. said that vacating and replating would deny the public parking areas on right of ways.

Councilman George R. Ferrell was all for letting it stay the way it is.

Standing said the overall solution should include some provision for a play area for the children of north Virginia Beach. He added that short of solving the entire problem, Wright's solution was an admirable one and we may end up doing exactly what Grover has suggested.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sillis, who lives on 86 Street, had other ideas. A member of the executive committee of the Citizens Committee of Virginia State Parks, said the land belongs to the beach and the public should not be deprived of it. She suggested that the street ends be left in their natural state or replanted if there has been some destruction. That the beach and the Commonwealth wealth erect signs stating that littering is illegal; that the city and Commonwealth erect appropriate barriers on both the western and ocean side of the street, and that street lights be placed strategically to discourage night parking and revelry.

Mrs. J. C. Kelly, a resident of 89th Street, said measures to keep out undesirable will also deny the residents the use of the park.

The main part of the road paved by the city, she said, and the end should remain open.

Opposing the deferral were Councilmen John A. Hays and Councilwoman Virginia Crawford.

Council honors Beach heroes

Beach services available to all

The City of Virginia Beach will make it easier for the handicapped to participate in community activities and services.

City Council has agreed to purchase two 15-passenger vans, each with a hydraulic lift to transport Virginia Beach clients to the Adult Activity Center and the Virginia Beach Recreation Center. A State grant provides 90 per cent of the cost of $17,800 with the city paying $1,780.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that the sheltered workshop will be located in the former Miller's Department Store Building when it is renovated. He said he would soon bring before Council the bond issue for the Miller's and other projects which have been delayed in the Capital Improvement Program until the water and sewer problem was resolved.

The Mental Health/Mental Retardation Services Board requested the vans for the mentally retarded and other severely disabled adults who are totally dependent upon relatives and/or friends for transportation. In cases where family members and friends are unable or unwilling to transport their relatives, participation in community activities and services is almost an impossibility, Hanbury said.

At Apple Blossom Festival

By BUD LOWE
SUN Bands Writer

The activity--APPLE BLOSSOM FESTIVAL.
The place--Shenandoah Conservatory of Music, Winchester, Virginia.

The time--Apple Blossom Time.
The big festival in the northern part of the state is held each year on the last weekend of April. At this festival there are competitions for the high school bands in both concert and field show.

This year the Beach was well represented by four of our high schools. The schools that went were: First Colonial, under the direction of Max Gonano; Kellam, under the direction of Jack Sperry; Kempville, under the direction of Jerry Cole; and Princess Anne, under the direction of Ronald Collins.

All four schools played grade six music, which is the most difficult class to play. In concert each band is awarded a rating score of how they did and the following is the rating each received: First Colonial, a rating of II; Kellam, a rating of II; Kempville, a rating of II; Princess Anne, a rating of I.

In the field competition Kempville High took third place in Class "B". This is the first big win for Kempville High this year and what a place to do it! Kempville's team is under the direction of Jerry Cole and the drill team is under the direction of Parker and Betsy Baine. Their drum major is Allan Kirk, and the drill team captains are Teresa Adcock, Cheryl Sauls and Debbie Erwin.

The Kempville Marching Chiefs changed their marching style at mid year and entered the Apple Blossom Festival Field Competition as their first competition in Corps style. Allan Kirk was awarded the first place trophy for the most outstanding drum major in Class "B" competition. This is quite an accomplishment. Allan is only a sophomore at Kempville. This is a big plus for Kempville, for they will have the leadership abilities of Allan for another two years.

Marines from the U. S. Atlantic Fleet Marine Drum and Bugle Corps helped the students at Kempville make the big change to Corps style to get ready for the competition. "I would like to personally thank all the Marines from the Fleet Marines Drum and Bugle Corps for their assistance in Corps style marching", said Jerry Cole, band director for Kempville.

Princess Anne High School, being a two year winner in Class "A", was exceptionally strong this year. It seems that every school around had got the word that Princess Anne was going all out for the Queen's Cup to make it the third year in a row. This is a feat that no other school has ever accomplished before in the history of the Apple Blossom Festival. To take the Queen's Cup for three consecutive years is something unheard of, yet our Princess Anne High School's Marching Cavaliers DID IT. They are the Grand Champion for three consecutive years. Any school that wins the Queen's Cup for three consecutive years becomes the proud owner of the "CUP."

"The Marching Cavaliers from Princess Anne have retired the Apple Blossoms' Queen Cup as the Grand Champion in the field show competition by winning for three consecutive years", said Ronald Collins, band director for Princess Anne. In winning this year's award Princess Anne High School defeated 88 marching units, representing 16 states.

"The Queen's Cup is home where it belongs, here at the Beach," said Gary Wirt, Drum Major for Princess Anne.

The Cavaliers are under the direction of Ronald Collins, band, and Sam Reynolds for the drill team. The field commanders are: Gary Wirt, senior drum major; Pat Kaiser and Laura Hockey, junior drum majors; Gina Cook, captain of the drill team; Mata Payton, co-captain of the drill team.

As well as taking the Queen's Cup their drum major Gary Wirt was awarded a trophy for second place most outstanding drum major in Class "A".

Other school winners for the day were:
Class "B"--first place, Madison Central High School; second place--Claymont High School; third place--Kempville High School.

Class "A"--first place and winner of the Queen's Cup--Princess Anne High School; second place--Sylvia-Webster from Sumter High School; third place--Vestal High School.

The Queen's Cup is an award for the most outstanding band in the field show competition from either Class "A" or Class "B" Divisions.

The SUN would like to take this opportunity to congratulate both Kempville and Princess Anne on their outstanding accomplishments while at Winchester.

The Queen's Cup is home where it belongs," says P.A. senior drum major Gary Wirt.

33 PA Jr. Highers make honor society

By HEIDI MARKS
Special to the SUN

Thirty-three 8th and 9th grade students from Princess Anne Junior High School were inducted into the National Junior Honor Society in a ceremony in the school's library on May 3rd.

Members were selected by a faculty council for meeting high standards of scholarship, service, leadership, citizenship and character. Scholarship standards were a 7.5 average for the first semester. Leadership is based on the student's participation in community or school activities, or election to an office.

To meet the service requirement, the student should be active in service projects in the school and community. Character is measured in terms of integrity, behavior, ethics and cooperation with both students and faculty. Citizenship is a concept of participation and may be assessed in terms of attitudes regarding freedom, justice, patriotism and respect for fellow human beings.

Kellam High School Honor Society members tapped and inducted these Princess Anne Junior High students:

Valerie Beaudette, Donna Collins, Ramona Consoivo, Doug Dion, Victoria Lamontagne, Mark McKenzie, Eugene Rivera, James Sawyer, Agnes Sullivan, Jo Jo Alcantara, Rebecca Cole, Doug Carmody, Dawn Dodson, Yvonne Evans, Raulina Farinas, Trisha Franko, Sandra Fuller, Rola Gilbert, Wayne Gordon, Kimberly Hoffmann, Sammy Kamel, Lorraine Keenan, Lisa Kneets, Lisa Kulppenberg, Karne Kruskop, Gina Marcelli, Taysu McCoy, Joseph McDonough, Wendy Moewland, Terri Morstad, Marti Pachey, Jera Swarts and Michelle Timmes.

Karen E. Elliott of Virginia Beach, a freshman art major at Virginia Tech, is the winner of a logo design contest sponsored by the American Legion Boys State of Virginia Inc. She received $100 and a certificate.

Miss Elliott's design will be used as the official emblem of Virginia Boys State in the form of shoulder patches and decals and on stationery and honorary membership certificates. The design was chosen from 64 entries, all done by Tech art students in a fall quarter visual communications class taught by Victor Huggins, associate professor of art.

The other finalists in the design contest were: second place-- Kim Hollandsworth, a freshman from Virginia Beach; third place--Terry M. Mathieson, a freshman from Arnold, Md. and fourth place--Patsy L. Oliver, a junior from Blacksburg. They also received cash awards and certificates from the Legion.

The top four designs were selected by Huggins and Robert J. Fields, assistant professor of art and graphic design specialist. Final judging was done by state and national leaders of Boys State, Girls State and the American Legion.

The awards were presented to the students at the annual awards banquet of Blacksburg Legion Post 182 by Rex F. Tillotson, director of Virginia Boys State, and George T. Blume, assistant director, who also is on the Tech faculty.

The Boys State organization offers an opportunity for about 650 Virginia high school students to participate in a two-week learning activity in state government each summer. The program began in the 1930's and was held at Tech from 1959 to 1964. The Boys State site was then moved to the College of William and Mary for nine years, and since 1973 has been held at Lynchburg College.

MARKET PLACE

advertising can do. This is because the customers in your neighborhood turn to the classified pages and search out the advertisement for what he or she wants to buy.

Rivers of Living Water

Consider it all joy, my brethren, when you encounter various trials, knowing that the testing of your faith produces endurance.

And let endurance have its perfect result, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing. But if any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all men generously and without reproach, and it will be given to him.

But let him ask in faith without any doubting, for the one who doubts is like the surf of the sea driven and tossed by the wind. For let not that man expect that he will receive anything from the Lord, being a double-minded man, unstable in all his ways.

But let the brother of humble circumstances glory in his high position; and let the rich man glory in his humiliation, because like flowering grass he will pass away.

Blessed is a man who perseveres under trial; for once he has been approved, he will receive the crown of life, which the Lord has promised to those who love Him.

Let no one say when he is tempted, "I am being tempted by God"; for God cannot be tempted by evil, and He Himself does not tempt anyone. But each one is tempted when he is carried away and enticed by his own lust.

Then when lust has conceived, it gives birth to sin; and when sin is accomplished, it brings forth death. JAS. 1:2-10 11-15 (NAS)

IC-HI drive

A meeting of the IC-HI Club will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 12, at the Emmanuel Lutheran Church, 301 Lynn Shore Drive at Virginia Beach Blvd. The purpose of the meeting is to plan future recreational activities, finalize plans for a rummage sale to be held on May 14, sign up new members, and ratify the constitution and vote on by-laws for a new club being incorporated as a replacement for the Virginia Beach chapter of the I Can't Help It Clubs.

The club's primary purpose is to organize meaningful recreational activities for handicapped persons. April's activity was a dance attended by about 80 club members. Plans are now being made to have a family-type picnic for our May event. These are some of the kinds of activities the club hopes to organize in the future, and success of these events depends upon your interest, support and participation. All parents and families of handicapped persons in the Virginia Beach area are urged to attend this meeting. Other persons interested in helping handicapped people and wanting to volunteer their time or services are also welcome.

The customers at Wally's are cuddled and pampered while owner Wally Rash and her three full time employees transform them into well trimmed, neatly groomed canines.

"Most of my customers are regulars who have been coming here since I opened or since they were puppies," she explains and adds, "when a regular customer moves away I want to cry."

Wally, who has operated her Poodle Salon at London Bridge Shopping center for eight years has a special place in her heart for all her steady customers.

Wally spoke affectionately of "Angie," a dog she had groomed since puppyhood who recently moved to the midwest with her owner.

Grooming 15 year-old Beau Gillo, a steady customer at Wally's for eight years.

"I am so worried about her," she said in her slight and delightful German accent. "I wrote a long letter to go to her next groomer. I spoiled her. I want to be sure she keeps getting special treatment."

"I like to be in a cage so we let him wait there," she explains since most customers wait their turn to be groomed in roomy cages and then return to the cages when their grooming is finished to await their master's return.

"When we're ready for Wally grooms all breeds, large and small, along with groomer Diane Clark and shampoo girls Jody Ritter and Sandy Vandershire.

Dogs who come to Wally's for the first time are apt to be difficult. Sometimes their resistance to the grooming process is due to not having been groomed for a long time, not ever having been groomed or perhaps having been injured in grooming by a well intentioned but unskilled groomer. Wally and the girls work carefully with the dogs and eventually the dogs come to enjoy their visit to the Poodle Salon.

"We have one who comes to the door by himself. His owner lets him out of the car and he comes to the dog and scratches. When we hear him scratch, we know that's 'Toby' Washburn and we let him in," Wally says with a laugh. "Another standard poodle named 'Jacques' is so big he can almost open the door. He comes in with his leash in his mouth and goes straight to the bathroom to wait. He doesn't 'Jacques', we just say, 'Come on Jacques' and he comes right to the grooming table. When we're finished he goes back to the bathroom to wait for his owner," Wally relates.

In addition to grooming which starts at $12 and is determined by the condition of the dog and the style of trim, Wally carries a line of pet supplies which she considers best for her customers and a good stock of collars, leashes and other items for dogs.

Offering advice to dog owners in Tidewater whose pets have been plagued with flea problems during recent years, Wally urges they start now with a good flea collar and change it often during the summer months.

Asked about recently publicized theories about controlling fleas with the addition of certain vitamins or garlic to a dog's diet, Wally shakes her head.

"If it has worked for some people I think it's a coincidence. I doubt fleas really check a dog out that carefully before they hop on."

Beach tracksters prime for Eastern Regional

This pole vaulter strains on his way to the bar

Beach tracksters are getting primed for the Eastern Regional.

Stellar performances by several boys and girls in Saturday's Beach District competition gives the Beach a solid look as the season nears its state meet conclusion.

Ray McDaniels of Cox ran a 4:14.5 mile to establish an all-time Tidewater record, and the Falcon runner says he will now gear towards the mile instead of the 880, which he recently considered his specialty.

Jesse Williams of Princess Anne sprinted the 100 in just 9.4, despite being pushed. No one has been able to touch him all season.

Dan Krueger paced Bayside's team win with victories in the shot and discus, and has marks unmatched in the region in those events.

Ron Foreman of Kellam ran just his second 440 of the year, yet set a school record for the second straight time, while racing the track in 48.4 seconds, fastest in Tidewater this year.

The Bayside girls won the team competition, but Kempville speedster Judy Washington ran the 100 in 10.8, .2 off the national record.

Carol Belcher of Cox set a Tidewater record with a 58.2 440.

Teammate Sharon Donan and Kempville's Sharon Geer both bettered the old Tidewater standard in the 880, Donan winning the race.

The Tidewater medley relay record also fell, as the Bayside team of Bernadette Mosley, Lovie Price, Gwen Jones and Undra Herbert ran the course in 1:52.4.

Resting under the bleachers and listening to music soothed this runner

Beach Recreation Center opens

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

At 10:30 Friday, the long-anticipated opening of the Virginia Beach Recreation Center was finally consummated. The beautiful facility, open to Virginia Beach residents for the nominal membership fee of only $1, was symbolically opened as the mayor, Dr. Clarence Holland cut the ribbon draped across the entrance.

Plans from an idea four years ago by the Mayor's Youth Council, when the lack of teen-oriented facilities was lamented, the Recreation Center has planned for activities for those of all ages.

The remainder of this week is for membership, residents of Virginia Beach urged to come to the facility (on MacArthur Dr. between Providence Rd. and Princess Anne Rd. in Kempsville) and apply for a photo I.D. card which will grant full free privileges to the general activity areas, such as the gymnasium, pool, handball court, etc.

Going to the center this week will also give a better opportunity to see everything it has to offer, as staff personnel are present for just that purpose.

The number of activities available at the Recreation Center is mind-boggling.

Mayor Holland said during the opening ceremonies, that the Recreation Center was "a facility that equals anything on the East Coast that I know of." He was surely not off the mark. If anything he understated.

William E. McClurg of McClurg and Wall Architects, who designed the structure, said that the Recreation Center was "one of the few buildings that is anything but singular in purpose," citing that therapeutic and preventative activities were both given strong regard during the planning.

That is evident as one tours the Center.

Bowling lanes, carefully structured for use by even those limited to a wheelchair were built, and activities such as wheelchair basketball, wheelchair square dancing, bowling for blind adults and swimming and archery for the physically handicapped are all available.

There are organized activities and classes for those of all ages, such as pre-teen archery, teen co-ed volleyball and adult gymnastics.

Wormholes, golf, shuffleboard and swimming in the six-lane, 85 meter indoor pool are all considered general activities and require only an I.D. card.

Classes of jazz, gymnastics, mother and child dancing, aerobics, stretching, disco dancing, water aerobics, hatha and crewel are but a few available.

Summer teen activities include a Gong Show, pizza party, table tennis tournament and other get-togethers. The teen area includes a lounge, pool tables, ping-pong tables and every board game imaginable. Even pinball machines.

Adults have their own lounge, pool table, bumper pool table and games such as chess, backgammon and checkers easily accessible.

Public auditions for plays like "Jonathan Livingston Seagull," "Belle of Amherst," and "Frankenstein" will be held by the Performing Arts Unit of the Recreation Center, which will also sponsor a pantomime workshop, ballet for teens and other theater-oriented activities.

Much has been left out of this brief description of what the Recreation Center has to offer. The best way to find out what it has to offer has for you, is to go down there this week, tour the facilities and become a member. It would be a multi-million dollar shame if Virginia Beach residents didn't take advantage of this unique facility.

Lynnhaven teams ringed the outfield in opening day ceremonies

Lynnhaven Bronco ceremonies held

With the sun shining brightly and a slight breeze stirring for perfect baseball weather, young ball players ringed the outfield at Trant Memorial field while parents, brothers and sisters and friends crowded the stands and lined the fences for opening day ceremonies for Lynnhaven Bronco league Saturday.

The ceremonies were simple with a presentation of colors by a Marine Color Guard from NAS Oceana and singing of the national anthem by Mrs. Joan Simpson, a member of the league board of directors. Rev. Jerry Holcomb, pastor of the Kings Grant Baptist church, delivered the invocation and League President Joe Libbon addressed the teams and the audience.

Libbon's remarks contained an apology for the recent cancellation of Ted Williams who had accepted an invitation to address the young players on their opening day. Last week's visit by Miami Dolphin quarterback Bob Griese was arranged by Libbon as an unexpected treat after the League president learned that Williams would be unable to attend Saturday's opening day ceremonies.

The presentation of two Trant Awards to Bob Simpson and George Spradlin, gentlemen who through the years have actively participated in the Bronco league, was a highlight of the ceremony. The Trant award was first presented last year and is named for the late Ruben Trant who donated the property for the Lynnhaven league's three playing fields to boys baseball.

Two players also received awards for their efforts in ticket sales for the league fund raising activity. Paul Newland of the Astros received a $50 savings bond and a gift certificate from the Jock Shop as high salesman in the minor league with sales of 51 tickets. Robert Hedrick, of the Athletics also received a $50 savings bond and a baseball glove as high salesman for the minor league with sales of 90 tickets.

Ceremonies concluded with the introduction of teams and league officials.

Michael Blankenship, 6, not yet old enough to play at Lynnhaven, plans a season of active spectating.

Cavaliers win district meet

Undeclared as they were during the regular season of Beach District play, the Princess Anne football team had already earned a berth in the Eastern Region meet.

But under the tutelage of Leo Anthony, the Cavaliers, George MacDonald, Alan King, Fred Fryman, Tracy Bowles, Billy Willard and Devon Johnson, still won last week's Beach District, 36-hole tournament at Eagle Haven.

First Colonial finished second, placing them in the Regional as well.

MacDonald (146). Following him were Bayside's John Andersen (147), First Colonial's Mike Hayes (148) and P.A.'s Alan King (150).

Also qualifying for the Regional are Dave Donovan and Gary Evans of Kempsville and Don Kelso of Bayside.

Team finishes were: Princess Anne (506), First Colonial (614), Kempsville (630), Bayside (641), Kellam (654) and Cox (661).

The Eastern Region tournament will be held Thursday 12 at Bow Creek at 7:30 a.m.

Bayside claims regular season girls tennis championship

"We had to win all our doubles matches to win," said Bayside coach Ellen Parker, "but we did it."

What Bayside won was a 5-4 match over Princess Anne in girls tennis, and the regular season Beach District Championship.

Bayside, who will now go to the Eastern Regional as a team, got winning performances from Beth Lake, and Tracy Johnstone and the doubles teams of Lake and Nina Genz, Whitney Vines and Peggy Schaefer, and Johnstone and Ann Bueche.

May Day festival

By MARK RICHARD

May Day was observed by the students of Kempsville Elementary School Friday with song, music and dance.

The students who participated in the festivities were from the school's kindergarten classes to children in the sixth grade.

Songs and dances with traditional, folk, Russian and contemporary themes were presented by the students who had obviously spent much time in preparation for the days' events.

The morning's activities were highlighted by the release of hundreds of helium-filled balloons at 11:30.

The afternoon events began at 1 p.m. with the introduction and seating of the May Day king and queen. Eric LaHaltzinger and Kim Walcott reigned over the festivities that were planned and coordinated by Beth Russell.

Students from the upper classes closed May Day with the traditional Maypole dance on the lawn in front of the schools.

At Old Donation Elementary

Story and Photos
by Gary Fullerton

At Old Donation Elementary School there's a large Snoopy that is gobbling up a lot of dog food...cat food...gerbil pellets, bird seed, too.

It's a 4 1/2 foot paper-mache Snoopy, and the pet food comes from the 554 Old Donation kids who are donating the food to the Virginia Beach SPCA in recognition of "Be Kind to Animals" week.

It took all the kids of Old Donation a week to complete construction of Snoopy and his dog house. His massive legs are made of wood posts, and his skeleton is of wood and chicken wire, covered with layers of flour paste-coated paper, lovingly and messily applied by all the students (kindergarten through 7th grade).

All of the work was done outside on the school lawn, and Monday, May 2, it was discovered Snoopy was too big to fit through the school doors. Snoopy had to have his ears temporarily removed, and one of the front doors was taken off its hinges to allow him to squeak through.

Pet food collector Snoopy gets a hug from William Gordon, 8, 4685 Edgewater Court. William and his fellow Old Donation Elementary students built Snoopy to hold pet food donations for the SPCA.

Snoopy, with a very large hole in his back, now is "eating" cans and bags of pet food brought in by the students. On Friday, May 13, the SPCA will arrive to pick up the donated food and possibly Snoopy himself.

Tiger Jones (front) age 7, and Ed Wilcox, 8, pet their pet food donations into Snoopy, a 4-1/2 foot paper-mache slubee built by the students of Old Donation Elementary. Both second graders, Tiger lives at 4642 Barnaby Court, and Ed lives at 4622 Soho Court.

Boat owners!

Judging by the mail the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries Boat Registration Section is handling these days, there are a lot of boat owners who are having trouble understanding the requirements for registering and transferring registration of a motor boat.

The Motor Boat Safety Act of 1971 requires all vessels propelled by machinery including electric motors to be registered with the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, P.O. Box 1104, or 4010 West Broad Street, Richmond, Virginia 23230.

Applications for a boat number may be obtained from the Game Commission's main office, your local boat dealer, game warden, or hunting and fishing license agent. Applications should be completed in detail, and check or money orders made payable to The Treasurer of Virginia in the amount of $8.00 should accompany the application. Your certificate of number will expire three years from the first day of the month in which issued.

The stub marked "Temporary Certificate of Number" will be returned to the new owner within three days of receipt, unless the application is incorrect. A laminated permanent Certificate of Number will be issued within ten days.

Registered boat owners must notify the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries of address change, sale, loss, destruction or abandonment of a registered boat within fifteen (15) days of such change of status. No fee is required with this notification. Renewal notices are mailed 30 days before expiration to all boat owners. This is why it is mandatory that the Boat Section be advised of any change of address. If the boat is sold, the new owner must apply for a Certificate of Number issued in his own name, even though the boat number will not be changed. The fee is $8.00. A transfer card signed by the previously registered owner must be received before a "Certificate of Number" is processed in the new owner's name.

Change of status forms, orange in color, may also be obtained from the Game Commission, boat dealers, local game wardens, or hunting and fishing license agents.

Remember, you are required by law to have your "Certificate of Number" on board whenever your boat is in operation.

Snoopy's Dog House is full of pet food, donated by Old Donation Elementary students such as (l to r) Heather Wessner, 7, 4642 Blockwatch Court, and Angela Thompson, 8, 533 Langfellow Avenue. Snoopy and his house was built by the students to collect their donations to the Virginia Beach SPCA in honor of Be Kind to Animals week.

11th Annual

Science fair at Kempsville Meadows Elementary

Kempsville Meadows Elementary held its 11th annual Science Fair Monday and it was a good display of hard work and imagination by the students.

Mrs. Leona Russell, coordinator of the fair said it was one of the best exhibits the school has had and said she was proud the many seventh-grade students who participated.

For the first time classes from Roberts Park Elementary of Norfolk toured the fair, which was judged by various city officials. Councilman Claude Staler of Norfolk, councilwoman Meyers Oberndorf of Virginia Beach, Ralph Horton, PTA president and Shirley Cassidy judged the projects. Sen. Joe Canada was honorary judge.

The projects lined the corridors and the library with tables of volcanoes, laser beams, space travel, reptiles, homemade root beer and reams of posterboard. Mrs. Russell said that it was planned in September not to have the fair but some students had actually begun planning their projects and the interest was so great that the fair was held.

It was a tough decision for the judges to select the winners of the fair because so many of the projects were outstanding and had shown a lot of planning and work. After a conference in the office, the judges decided to award Dana Rafal with 1st, Lori Waranch with 2nd, Ray Dickman with 3rd, and Susan Breitenbach and Bessie Littlefield with honorable mentions. It would have been ideal to have awards for all the students who participated in fine fashion.

Winners of the Kempsville Meadows Science Fair were Dana Rafal who took 1st, Lori Waranch, 2nd; Ray Dickman, 3rd; and Susan Breitenbach and Bessie Littlefield who received honorable mentions.

Employment survey set for Beach

How many Virginia Beach workers are holding more than one job? How many are working overtime and what is their overtime pay? What are workers' usual hours on their jobs?

Mr. Joseph R. Norwood, director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Charlotte, announced today that information in response to these questions will be collected during the week of May 16-21 from a sample of households in the Virginia Beach area. The questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment nationwide by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Households in Tidewater are part of the sample of 70,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all U.S. households.

Results of this monthly survey provide a continuing measure of economic conditions in the Nation. The March survey indicated that of the 96.5 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 89.5 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 7.3 per cent, compared to 7.5 per cent in February, and substantially below the recession peak of 9.0 per cent reached in the May of 1975.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Interviewers who will visit households in this area include:

Mrs. Angela A. Coffield, 420 Appian Ave., Virginia Beach 23452; and Mrs. Anne M. O'Neil, 824 St. Clement Rd., Virginia Beach 23455.

Villeneuve a 'strawberry king'

By KEN CURLEY
SUN General Manager

For Bob Villeneuve, life is just a bowl of cherries. Oh... better make that strawberries.

Bob Villeneuve, you see, is the "Bob" of "Bob's Berries," with acres of strawberry fields on Elbow Road and along the Kempville Road, and he's tickled pink—strawberry pink, we presume—with the way things are going.

Bob has something going for him besides his berry success, though. (And he may be on his way to becoming Tidewater's "strawberry king"—who knows?). Bob, you see, is one of those truly unusual men: he really loves what he does for a living—and he lives for what he does.

Don't misunderstand—he isn't a "driven man" (You know, the 18-hour a day executive with the peptic ulcer.) No, Bob takes pleasure from his work, and he beams that satisfaction at everybody he meets.

Bob is unusual in another way, too. He's contradictory—a submarine commander who, after more than two decades in the Navy, opted to give up the drama of his work to become a farmer.

"I used to raise 'em (strawberries) as a kid," Bob explains, noting that he's been brought up on a farm in Pennsylvania. "I was never in one place long enough to raise 'em when I was in the Navy, but I never forgot about 'em!"

"You see, my ship made one of the first Polaris patrols, and if it wasn't for the fact that I could seek down the pike (to his strawberry-growing days)... Well, that kind of gives you an independent feeling—you could tackle things you otherwise wouldn't be able to."

So it was that after 21 or 22 years in the Navy and four more years as a real estate salesman that last year Bob Villeneuve became a full-time farmer. Now he grows some of the best berries around—at a bargain 30 cents a pound—and he makes new friends every day.

"You know," he says, his blue eyes crinkling in a smile, "if you're brought up to appreciate things, you want to relive them. I enjoyed my childhood, and I had a real desire to go back and find that satisfaction again. I did."

Deeply tanned, good-looking, Villeneuve has an enthusiasm about his profession that's infectious. You get the feeling that this guy really cares about his strawberries and the people he serves.

He does. "I want a reputation," Bob says simply. "That's very important to me. I want people to say 'he never cheats' and to have people come back year after year."

And don't get the impression that Bob Villeneuve is just an "Aw, shucks, back-country hayseed." Remember, he was a submarine commander, and he runs his business like he runs his ship. He quotes Extension Service bulletins, profit ratios, statistics. He chose strawberries logically, because as a cash crop strawberries are conducive to a one-man operation, and there isn't the tremendous outlay of cash required for the machinery needed to harvest other kinds of crops.

"Berry farming is a tremendous gamble—like all farming," Bob says. "Last year, for example, was a disaster. It was very poor compared to this year, an early spring and a late frost."

And like any other business we operate on a profit analysis.

People don't usually consider the costs that go into a commercial strawberry operation, Villeneuve points out. Costs here, like everywhere else, are soaring. In 1975 for instance, a grower was faced with a $395 per acre cost for his berries (including labor, depreciation, herbicides and the like) but by this spring the estimated cost had risen to $1235 including costs for mulches, which aren't generally used in Tidewater.

"That requires a different type of conscience," he says simply. "I'm at the end of the stick when they (the customers) start swinging it, so I've got a real desire to please the public."

"That means that I pay out a minimum of $800 to $900 per acre before I get the first berry. And I need a minimum of 2,600 pounds of berries per acre, at 30 cents a pound, before I even cover expenses."

(Now, incidentally, is about mid-season for strawberries in Tidewater. The early berries, picked two weeks ago, are usually the biggest. The first berries always grow singly on the plants, and they ripen "solo." When those are picked, four grow back in place of the original one, and they're smaller.)

Bob has already branched out in his farming business. He has pick-your-own vegetables—everything from pink-eye Crowder peas to okra—all through the summer, and his business there, too, is mushrooming (forgive the pun).

This year he'll open a vegetable stand along the Kempville Road, and this fall he has plans to begin a greenhouse operation for growing vegetable and other bedding plants. He admits, too, that he'd "like to have about five acres of blackberries or blueberries," and that may be forthcoming.

And—while he has troubles just like the rest of us—he's loving every minute of it. "If a person has something he wants to do, I believe he ought to do it. We all need something we like to do, to be successful at. Now we may not be millionaires," he says. "As for Bob, this is his testimony: 'Until I go broke, I don't think anybody can ever say they enjoy their occupation as much as I do. Most people really don't feel real job satisfaction. I'll tell you—it is nice to feel!'"

Strawberries — all to herself

Dot Marquardt of the Dumbarrow area in Kempville appears to have this strawberry field all to herself, but she won't for long. Pick-them-yourself fields, like this Bob's Berries field off Elbow Road, have been doing a land-office business the past two weeks. There's still plenty of time to get some of the succulent berries, though, at fields throughout Tidewater. (SUN Photo)

Hints for harvesting Beach garden crops

By RANDAL W. JACKSON and
RICHARD W. CLARK
Virginia VPI Extension Agents

In order to get the full benefit of your vegetable garden it will be necessary to harvest the vegetables at the optimum time. If they are allowed to become overmature, they may be tough and poor in flavor. They may even be less palatable than those you buy at the store.

Beets may be thinned when the plants are six to eight inches tall, and used as greens. The beet roots will have the most tender quality and flavor when they are not over two or three inches in diameter.

With broccoli, harvest the large terminal bud cluster before any of the flowers begin to open. The small side bud clusters may be harvested for many weeks through the summer.

Cabbage may be used anytime after a firm head develops. If some plants must be left in the garden after they reach full maturity, head them to the ground on one side to break part of the roots, and reduce the possibility of head splitting.

Carrots may be harvested whenever the roots reach acceptable size. Dig only the quantity you need for immediate use and allow the rest to continue to increase in size. Carrots may be left in the ground during the winter, and dug as they are needed.

Swiss chard is a green with soft texture and a mild flavor similar to spinach. Successive harvests can be made all summer by cutting the leaves about 2 inches above the ground when they are 12-15 inches tall.

Collard and Kale for greens should be cut when the leaves are young and not over 12 inches long. Old leaves become tough and stringy.

Sweet corn should be harvested while the husk is still dark green. The kernels should be full size with mature yellow or white color to the tip of the ear, but still in the soft milk stage of growth.

Green or wax snap beans may be picked when the pods are full size and the beans are very small. Or, the harvesting of the newer, more succulent varieties may be delayed until the seeds are nearly full size, as long as the pods are tender.

Lima beans should be picked when the seeds reach full size, but the pods still have nice green color. Half runner beans may be used as snap beans when young and stringless, or as shell beans when mature.

Onions should be harvested when half or more of the tops have fallen over. Do not wait too long after this occurs. Dry thoroughly in the sun, and store in shallow trays not over two or three onions deep.

Potatoes may be dug whenever the tubers are large enough to eat. Dig only the quantity you need for immediate use. They will keep better in the soil of the garden than in a warm home.

Summer squash should be harvested when immature, and only about eight inches long. Winter squash and pumpkins should be allowed to ripen fully on the vine.

Muskmelons develop their best flavor when they ripen in warm dry weather. They taste more like cucumbers if they mature in cool rainy weather. Pick muskmelons when the stem separates readily from the fruit.

Scholarship house to go in Thalia

A Virginia Beach member of the Tidewater Builders Association will be breaking ground Tuesday, May 17 for construction of a "Scholarship House."

R & J Associates will be constructing a house in Thalia Cedars and donating all and profits from the house to a scholarship fund set up by the Tidewater Builders Association. The ground-breaking ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. that day with Virginia Beach Mayor Clarence Bell and of course a large turnout of Thalia builder-members expected.

The principals of R & J Associates are John Jackson and Charles F. Jackson, who have built many subdivisions in Virginia Beach.

Any profit received from the sale of the house will be donated to the scholarship fund, and all subcontractors will be performing their tasks on an "at-cost" basis.

The house site is in the Thalia-Birchwood area at the north end of Carver Drive. It can be reached by turning north off Virginia Beach Boulevard at Lynnhaven Dr. (at McDonald's), then two blocks to Edinburgh Drive, turn right and go three or four blocks to Carver Drive, and turn left to ceremony site.

Council votes 6-5 Water slide for "Loop" nixed

SUN Public Affairs Writer

"The Loop," considered unsuitable for an amusement park, hasn't fared much better as the location of a water slide.

In a close vote (6-5), Virginia Beach City Council denied a conditional use permit to Water-Boggs International, Inc., to construct a slide on the west side of Atlantic Avenue (The Loop), south of Third Street, Virginia Beach and Lynnhaven Boroughs.

The arguments pro and con were similar, almost identical in substance, to those heard when the amusement park corporation, The Loop, Inc., wanted a renewal of its conditional use permit in November of 1975. The vote was 7-3 for denial then.

Councilman John R. Griffin, one of the three in the minority then, made the motion to approve the water slide permit. But Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing and J. Henry McCoy, the other two minority voters, voted for denial of the water slide petition.

James R. McKenry, attorney for Water-Boggs, maintained that 50 to 60 percent of the customers would be "Walk-ons" for whom no parking would be needed. While the area is congested, he said, the traffic picks up momentum. The rides would cost $2 for a half hour.

Realtor Thomas C. Kyros, who with Realtor Lawrence Sancillo and Dr. T. Ross Kazakis own the property, said that $300,000 would be spent to improve the site, and that parking for 100 cars was a "fair estimate" of the need.

McCoy maintained that since the amusement park was denied his petition, the water slide petition should be denied, too.

would be required if necessary.

Neville Rich, director and general counsel for Water-Boggs, said that a 300-400 foot parcel is needed for the structure itself and that initially 20,000 gallons of water is used. Subsequently about 1,000 extra gallons are used a day, he system, however will operate with salt water if necessary.

W. Edward Hudgins Jr., representing Robert Herman, owner of the Light-house Restaurant, said the slide is not the highest and best use for the property. He said the site plan shows seven curb cuts onto the site in an area where traffic is "impossible all the time."

He said that the southeast of the beach with its undeveloped land, is a place "where we can plan." He said at present the area "is high quality tourist-related property. He said a water slide would be poor planning and the area will not support it. Every reason given for opposition to The Loop, he said, "is the same here."

Also opposing the application was David Hendricks, speaking for the CBM Company which owns the Schooner Inn, the Innkeepers Association, residents of Dolphin Run and others.

He said the site was not suitable and that three or four acres were needed for the operation. He also cited the traffic situation and the water pressure.

Richard Guster, who is constructing a water slide at Baltic Avenue and Laskie Road, said that he was required to supply 150 parking spaces and he expected any other applicant to meet the same requirements.

Standing said that an approved site plan should be required for conditional use permits to discourage waivers by the Board of Zoning Appeals of zoning stipulations. He added that "whoever says there is no congestion until after nine o'clock at night just hasn't been there."

Griffin said there is "one big parking problem the whole length of Atlantic Avenue. This will not add to McCoy maintained that since the amusement park was denied his petition, the water slide petition should be denied, too.

Oberndorf advocates state regulation on water pricing

SUN Public Affairs Writer

State allocation and pricing of water resources is advocated by Virginia Beach Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf.

Mrs. Oberndorf suggested to City Council Monday afternoon that Council consider including in its legislative package to the General Assembly a request to have the state take over the allocation and pricing of water. The package, which contains legislation proposed by the city, is generally presented to the city's representatives prior to the General Assembly session January, February and March.

The recommendation follows pro-posal by the City of Norfolk to increase the price of water now sold to

VIRGINIA BEACH
$ It's your money

Virginia Beach for $.48 1/3 cents per 1,000 gallons. Virginia Beach has claimed that an increase in the water cost is in violation of the 20-year contract the city has with Norfolk. Norfolk, however, claims that according to the contract it is justified in increasing the price at the Beach if rates in Norfolk also are increased.

Mrs. Oberndorf, in her statement to Council, said that state control "would remove a life-sustaining natural resource such as water from the political arena and it would equalize the burden of payment so that the residents of one locality would not be at the financial mercy of another municipality. With the state establishing equity in pricing each municipality would be responsible for running its individual governments as financially responsible entities without holding the financial axe over another municipality's head."

Mrs. Oberndorf said she believes the proposal is in line with the Beach's commitment to regional cooperation. She mentioned two studies done in 1976 which support the recommendation. They are studies made by VPI and by the Virginia Water Resources Research Center.

When asked by Councilman John A. Baum whether she thought an agency like the State Corporation Commission should control water pricing, Mrs. Oberndorf said yes in conjunction with the State Water Control Board.

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing noted that no one from Virginia Beach was appointed to the Governor's Water Study Committee although the Beach is the second largest city in the state.

Mrs. Oberndorf said that her proposal may succeed in focusing some attention on the Beach and perhaps result in appointments of Beach citizens to such committees in the future.

The city is currently engaged in a five-year water and sewer construction program which it expects to finance for the most part with a $39.9 double-barreled bond issue which will be presented to voters in a referendum in June. The city also increased its water rates recently from $.82 per 1,000 gallons to $.90 per 1,000 gallons.

Rural medical care to improve in Virginia Beach

Residents of Virginia Beach's rural areas in Poolesville and Blackwater Boroughs will have more convenient access to medical care as early as September.

Floyd E. Waterfield Jr., president of Medical Services Foundation, Inc., said that with approval of a federal grant expected in June, arrangements can be made to equip medical offices and staff them with physicians and a nurse practitioner.

The program was endorsed Monday afternoon by City Council in a resolution supporting the rural health initiative program in the southern end of the city which now has only the part-time services of one doctor.

Waterfield said the Virginia Beach Medical Society has endorsed the project and the people in the area are enthusiastic. Some of the residents have had to travel 75-80 miles round-trip for medical service.

The Foundation, headed by Waterfield, a city councilman, is a non-profit organization set up specifically to bring medical services to the rural areas. Other members of the committee are Councilman John A. Baum, Ruth Bell, Capt. C. H. Dorchester, USN (retired), Maximo Kellam and Attorney Calvin Spain.

The Foundation has applied for a grant of approximately $50,000 for a three year period to get the program started. At the end of the three years, the program is expected to become independent.

The money will be used to assist physicians in Virginia Beach to relocate in rural areas by providing free office space and facilities for a three year period under the rural health initiative program sponsored by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Waterfield said the Foundation will use the first year's grant of about $30,000 to remodel and rent office space to pay the salary of the nurse practitioner and to subsidize salaries of the physicians. The physicians will be selected by the Foundation with the assistance of a medical staff which will be formed after the grant has been approved.

During the second and third year of the operation, Waterfield said the subsidy should be progressively lower as the doctors become Sell a motel? Classifieds will!

"One of the best advertising investments you can make nowadays!"

That's what a lot of people are saying - and proving - about the Virginia Beach Sun's classified ad pages.

Whether it's a $10 bird cage or a $100,000 real estate property, chances are you can find a buyer through the SUN.

Richard D. Younkman knows that for a fact.

Mr. Younkman recently used the SUN's want ads to spread the word that he had a motel for sale.

With a $5,400 investment for his three-time ad, Mr. Younkman reports that he not only found prospective buyers for his property, but that he's already secured a deposit on the motel, which is located a few miles south of the Virginia line on U.S. 17 and the Intracoastal Waterway.

He's pleased with the results, and you will be, too. Most people report great results with the very first running. That's because you're advertising for a select market - your friends and neighbors - down the street. (And those are the people you most want to reach.)

The SUN is a true community paper, and people respond to it.

If you have items or services you want to sell - or even to give away (with a FREE listing in our Free Bee section) - give us a call now at 547-5971 and we'll tell you how to do it!

DAR marks grave at Old Donation

In a simple ceremony in the Old Donation Episcopal church cemetery on Wilchuck road, members of the Princess Anne County Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, recently honored a soldier of the American Revolution.

Little is known of Colonel Edward Moseley other than the date of his birth, 1740, and the date of his death, 1811, and that he served with many other colonists from Virginia in the War for Independence.

Scripture readings by Mrs. Everett A. Mitchell, Regent of the Princess Anne County Chapter, prayers by the Reverend Beverley D. Tucker of Old Donation church, and taps by trumpeter John Goldberg of Cox High School marked the placing of the bronze marker on the grave of Colonel Moseley.

It is the practice of many DAR chapters to place commemorative markers at the grave of Revolutionary War soldiers and patriots when the graves are found. Princess Anne County Chapter, DAR, has done extensive work in locating many graves in the Tidewater area. The findings have been documented in a 125-page book on previously unpublished data from area cemeteries. Instrumental in the chapter's findings has been Mrs. George H. Hamilton who is credited with the locating of Colonel Moseley's grave and many others.

Assisting Mrs. Mitchell in conducting the ceremony were Miss Ruth Ford and Mrs. Bernard White of Princess Anne County Chapter and Reverend Tucker. Flag bearers for the ceremony were Miss Melissa Principe, President-elect of the Cavalier Society of the Children of the American Revolution and Miss Janevett Mitchell of Cavalier Society.

Hospital volunteers save Virginia Beach $80,000

Volunteer workers received service awards at the annual meeting of the Auxiliary to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach

Wednesday. The event also marked a total of 34,000 hours spent by the volunteers involved in patient contact and with work in other areas.

There are volunteers in all departments of the hospital and their efforts constitute an $80,000 savings to the people of Virginia Beach, if a dollar sign can be figured into the invaluable cdonation of time the workers have made.

Mrs. Ann Walkely received a 5,000 hour service pin at the meeting, the first ever to be given at General Hospital. Jane La Giglia and Lillian Morse received 4,500 hour pins and Marty Kinnach was awarded a 3,000 hour pin.

Mrs. Alice Amburn, director of the volunteers, noted the importance of the program. "The volunteers always come through," she said. Men, women and teenagers participated in the program and they can be identified by their uniforms. The men wear red coats, the women wear pink and white uniforms and the teenagers wear candy-striped outfits.

Mrs. Harriet Newburn was recognized last week for 15 years of service to the hospital's business office. She has been with General Hospital of Virginia Beach since it was located on Pacific Ave.

Also at the employee awards program, the hospital administration gave special T-shirts to 12 nurses and administrators who had demonstrated the Heimlich maneuver. The maneuver will dislodge obstructions that cause choking and the persons who voluntarily gave the demonstrations throughout the community were given "Happy Hugger" T-shirts.

Mrs. Mary Alice Lipscomb, president of the auxiliary stands with Ray Johnson, board director and Mrs. Ann Walkely, recipient of 5,000 hour pin.

Tiffany Shops to open soon

Tiffany Shops is nearing completion at 37th and Pacific Ave. as a combination of specialty shops to serve the resort area. The designers and builders of the shopping center hope that the individual shops will benefit by greater public exposure, greater accessibility and more customer parking.

The design for Tiffany Shops by Richard Grimstead, includes clear story windows and cathedral type ceilings. Conservation of energy was helped by using extra insulation in the top ceiling area and directly above the drop ceiling area; and by using bronze glass to cut down the air conditioning load.

Tiffany Shops experienced 100% pre-leasing of the building. Shops that will occupy the complex after completion are: Taste Unlimited, The Nut Shop, Philadelphia Bakery, Key West Hand Print Fashions, The Cage, Coquille and Tensai, Surf & Ski by Dan. Tiffany Shops is being constructed by Hudgins Real Estate.

Building announced by Eastern Int'l.

Eastern International of Virginia Beach, recently announced plans to build a 104,000 square-foot office and light industrial building at Beach Corporate Center here.

Walter N. Alford, vice president of the Real Estate Division of Eastern International, said his firm will start construction next month on the $2 million structure, to be built on an eight-acre parcel at the 160-acre Beach Corporate Center site. The building is scheduled for completion late this year.

Alford said the building will be the first of five planned by Eastern International of $7 million and contain more than 500,000 square feet of office and light industrial space on a 23-acre site.

The Eastern International complex will be known as the "International Business Park."

Tax relief due says Andy Miller

In Virginia Beach last week, Andy Miller said, "It's a realistic goal to provide relief from the burden of the sales tax on food and non-prescription drugs to those who feel its weight the most — those Virginians on low or fixed incomes." The Democratic candidate for Governor told a campaign reception in Virginia Beach, "A sales tax rebate or a state income tax credit for low income Virginians would mean real relief for those who have to spend the greatest proportion of their income for food." "We don't have to put off action until some brighter tomorrow that may never come," Miller said. "This is something we can do now. It is something I will fight for as soon as I become Governor." Some candidates build entire careers around a few

Virginia rescue squads honored

Governor Mills E. Godwin Jr. has proclaimed May 23-27 as Rescue Squad Week in Virginia to pay tribute to the many individuals throughout the state who comprise the network of volunteer rescue squads.

The rescue squad concept began in 1925 at Roanoke to provide free emergency care and transportation for the sick and injured. Last year, state rescue squads took 184,667 calls for assistance and drove over 4,800,000 miles, giving invaluable service to the public and saving $5,500,000 in tax dollars.

Godwin remarked, "Day and night throughout the year members of the Rescue Squads of the Commonwealth stand ready to give of their time and knowledge to relieve human suffering and to save lives."

Rescue Squad Week is an appropriate time for us to reflect upon the important service provided by our Rescue Squads, largely sponsored through public donations. Local Rescue Squads cordially invite the public to visit, and to become better acquainted with their personnel as capabilities during that week.

Village Shops

The directors of Goodman Segar Hogan Inc. have announced the sale of a 1.2 acre parcel of land at the southwest corner of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Avenue in Virginia Beach, to the Ramon W. Breeden Companies.

Negotiations for the $100,000 sale were handled by Robert B. Ricci of the firm's commercial division. Village Shops, a 15,000 square foot retail center, will be built on the site. Robert B. Ricci, vice president of the Breeden Companies, will be responsible for the management and leasing of the new center. According to Ricci, a late summer opening is planned for the center.

Beach Navy officer heads shipyard drive

LT-Mike Beucier

Lt. Clarie M. (Mike) Beucier of Virginia Beach will head the annual fund drive for contributions to the Navy Relief Society (NRS) in the Norfolk Naval Shipyard. Contributions received by the NRS are used to give emergency assistance to area Navy and Marine Corps personnel and their dependents, as well as surviving widows and their children.

Last year's contributions totaled $104,000 and every dollar is used in this area to furnish emergency services in times of crisis. Funds received during the campaign help make it possible to continue the services which support the original idea and foundation of Navy Relief Society — "the Navy and the Marine Corps take care of their own."

Beucier said Tidewater's potential, in terms of active duty personnel, reservists, retirees and Navy family related civilians, who have an interest in NRS activities is great. During this call for voluntary contributions, all are welcome to share in the humanitarian effort, Beucier said.

Beucier and his family reside on Hillridge Court in Virginia Beach.

Drug committee dissolved

At its own request, the Drug Focus Committee will be dissolved and its functions turned over to a committee under the Chapter X Board, Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services. At an informal session of Council last week, City Council decided to send a letter to Mrs. Mary Russo, chairman of the Chapter X Board, asking the board to form a committee on drugs. The Rev. Mark Stone, chairman of the Drug Focus Committee, in a letter to Council pointed out that the committee was formed at a time when drugs were a major problem but that much of drugs had been superseded by alcohol as a community problem. The letter recommended that Chapter X should appoint a drug committee to serve as an advisory group.

Summer theft on rise

By MARK RICHARD SUN Staff Writer

As any police officer or detective can tell you, crime is seasonal, and many in Virginia Beach are soon going to fall victim to summer theft.

Summer theft — generally stems from simple lack of caution on the part of property owners. As the tempo of life becomes more relaxed in the summer, and more people spend time outdoors, they tend to be a bit careless about leaving items out in the open or unlocked. That goes for house and apartment doors, too, which are frequently left unlocked during the summer.

Apartment burglaries rise, as do thefts of lawn and garden equipment, but the one thing that tops all lists everywhere for summer thefts is bicycles, according to Virginia Beach officials.

The number of bicycles stolen each summer in Tidewater shows no sign of decreasing. Last year in Chesapeake, for example, 1,222 bicycles were reported stolen to the police. In Virginia Beach that number was 1,271.

Ten-speeds are popular — but that popularity has also created cases where theft could mean grand larceny. Some of the bikes sell for $200 to $400. Grand larceny can mean stiff fines and jail sentences.

A discouraging note is that there is almost nothing one can do to prevent bicycle theft on the street. Virginia Beach police report that many of the bicycles reported stolen were actually chained to a street sign or post, but thieves used bolt cutters to free the bikes. It is best not to leave a bicycle unattended, officers say.

When not in use, bicycles should be padlocked inside the garage or side room with all entrances closed. Owners should have a written description of their bikes and most important, a record of its serial number.

Many area police stations can tell persons where to go to get articles marked with special engraving tools, many times for no charge. This could speed up recovery of stolen items and could possibly discourage theft, according to Virginia Beach law enforcement officials.

Bicycles lead the list but there are many items affected by summer theft. In this area, boat thefts rise, as well as car theft when the summer sun starts beating down.

Advanced program offered to nurses

A program for Virginia Beach nurses who want to earn a master's degree in nursing through part-time study will be offered beginning this fall by the Medical College of Virginia and the University of Virginia. The course will be taught in the Tidewater area at a site which is yet to be selected.

The courses are being organized through the Cooperative Outreach Program Project in Graduate Education in Nursing, a federally-funded effort of the Schools of Nursing at MCV and U. Va. It is the first such cooperative nursing education program in the United States. Officials of the program say that the master's degree requirements can be completed in four years of part-time study. They say the program, which has been accredited by the National League for Nursing, will initially feature a major in medical-surgical nursing.

The course work in the program will be comparable to the on-campus courses taught at MCV and U. Va., according to the officials. They expect that interest in the Tidewater region may require limitations on enrollment.

Registration information for the Tidewater area program is available from Dr. Eleanor Ropp in the School of Nursing at MCV, Box 638, Richmond 23298.

Beach foster program looks at Fla. training

Representatives from the Virginia Beach Department of Social Services traveled to Fort Lauderdale earlier this month to learn more about Nova University's Foster Parent Project. Three foster care administrators spent a day with the Nova staff sharing information to determine whether the Nova approach could be applied to the Virginia Beach program.

"It seems that because of judicial changes, the Virginia Beach Foster Care System is now required to deal with teenagers that have serious mental, emotional or behavioral problems," says Dr. John Flynn, project director. "Placing these children with an untrained foster parent will lead to rather serious complications. Virginia Beach realizes this and is seeking our assistance in methods of preparing and training foster parents to meet the needs of these troubled youth.

"For the past two years we have been developing methods of training foster parents as mental health workers," says Dr. Flynn. "We feel we are ready to share our research findings and training techniques with others interested in the improvement of foster care in Florida and across the country. We would not directly train foster parents in Virginia, but would hold training sessions for social service workers who would then be qualified to train their group of foster parents," he explains. Tentatively, the Nova staff would travel to Virginia Beach twice a month presenting approximately eight two-day workshops. After the training ends the Nova project will continue its involvement on a consultant basis.

Walter Credle, assistant director of the Virginia Beach Department of Social Services, is currently working with state officials of the Virginia Department of Welfare in the hopes of establishing Nova's approach on a state-wide basis.

Marc Michaels

Friday the 13th wasn't all bad. It marked the first anniversary of Milton Warren's "Ice House" restaurant.

The "Ice House" is near the Ocean on the misnamed street, Norfolk Avenue. Its inside walls are brick. Some of its regulars come all the way from Suffolk and the Peninsula. The menu could make an epicure's esophagus palpitate. My goat got worse just reading it. A lovely lady at the bar especially recommends the mushrooms stuffed with crab; and that's the way the menu reads... no fancy French terms. The vegetables are freshly picked, and the strawberries could scare tomatoes. Host Warren prepares much of the cuisine himself. Wise people phone first for reservations.

But I went there to feast my EARS. Marc Michaels is a regular on Mondays, but was filling in that Friday for the talented Tommy Gwaltney and Al Rinaldini, who will hopefully be the subject of a later column.

Marc "does a single." He sounds like a trio. The kind of trio you might have heard in Miami, Las Vegas, New York, or the Bahamas. In fact, it may have BEEN his trio. He has worked with enough stars to fill this column.

Vocally, Marc calls to mind the sly whispers of Nat Cole, Matt Dennis, Bobby Troup, Buddy Greco, and Page Cavanaugh. His repertoire seems inexhaustible. I requested songs he hadn't done in a decade and got them without a missing word or note.

Although he also plays bass guitar and accordion, on this tour he uses electric piano, evoking a realistic bass sound with his left hand, and deriving ad from an electronic rhythmner. His right hand is phenomenal. In this setting, he capitalizes on the sound of the electric piano to offer a wealth of George Shearing sounds, and the Errol Garner style is an integral part of his performance. During his weeknights at the Harbor Club in downtown Norfolk, however, he uses the excellent grand piano to offer classical selections, schmitts, and Fats Waller raptures; he sometimes makes use of both the acoustic and electric keyboards. In some settings he is known to present considerable comedy.

Many of his songs are so old you can understand the words. He also has a predilection for taking worn out recent slow songs and singing them in that ingratiating medium bounce style he is so at home with.

Michaels has only been in the area a short while, but he is already building a following.

If I were a medieval king and could coose a court minstrel it would be Marc Michaels. And he'd wear out many a clavichord.

Try a Freebee

Faith Conquers Fear...

"Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day; Nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday; A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come near thee." - Psalms 91:5-7

The dark shadow of fear creeps into all our lives at one time or another and threatens to dim the bright glow of our security and peace of mind; regardless of whether the thing we fear is real or imagined. We are often apprehensive about illness, crime, failure, poverty and all manner of human disasters. Instead of succumbing to the paralysis of dread, learn how faith in God will help you conquer your fears and replace them with an absolute trust in His guidance and protection. Bring your fears to Church this Sunday and learn how groundless they can be when seen in the light of faith.

Auction set at church

It's auction time again at Francis Asbury United Methodist church at 1871 North Great Neck road.

Those who have attended the auctions in the past will no doubt attend this one, the third annual auction-luncheon on Friday, May 20th, sponsored by the United Methodist Women of the church and held in the church social hall.

Among the choice items to be sold by Auctioneer Vince Kopeck will be a lovely rose tree quilt. The quilt cover was made nearly 40 years ago by Mrs. Margaret Siler. That was back in the early years of her marriage, according to Mrs. Siler. After creating the cover, she started working, the quilt was packed away and never finished. Mrs. Siler unpacked it this year and ladies at the church are busy helping to finish the beautiful quilt. It will be ready when the auctioneer starts his pitch!

Also going on the block is a dandy bicycle built for two with a child carrier on the back. Just the thing for the family to go biking on.

In addition, the ladies of the church say there will be handmade afghans and more quilts, doll houses, children's furniture, plants and lots more.

The auction sounds inviting, but there's more. The ladies of the church will serve a luncheon featuring hot chicken salad, a variety of gelatin salads, delicious desserts and coffee and iced tea.

The auction will be open only to those who attend the luncheon and tickets for the luncheon are $2.

Tickets are available through the church. Call 481-5016 for further information.

Mrs. Margaret Siler's busy fingers ready a quilt for Friday's auction.

Personal property tax loophole plugged

An ordinance approved by Virginia Beach City Council last week will plug one loophole in the personal property tax.

The ordinance specifies that residents will not be issued city licenses (or decals) unless they show proof to the Treasurer that the personal property taxes on motor vehicles, trailers or semi-trailers have been paid.

Treasurer V. Alfred Etheridge said that most cities already have this requirement. He said that residents will not be mailed registration forms for decals on vehicles unless personal property taxes have been paid so that they will have to go to the treasurer's office for the forms.

Councilman Robert R. Crowell said that he would like people to feel the same responsibility for paying local taxes as federal taxes. "We need the money more." Councilman J. Curtis Payne said that the loophole was one that "has to be closed."

He also noted that some individuals avoid paying taxes by selling a vehicle before the first of the year. By state law, personal property taxes may be charged only on property in possession of the taxpayer on Jan. 1.

Rivers of Living Water

Consider it all joy, my brethren, when you encounter various trials, knowing that the testing of your faith produces endurance.

And let endurance have its perfect result, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing.

But if any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all men generously and without reproach, and it will be given to him.

But let him ask in faith without any doubting, for the one who doubts is like the surf of the sea driven and tossed by the wind.

For let not that man expect that he will receive anything from the Lord, being a double-minded man, unstable in all his ways.

But let the brother of humble circumstances glory in his high position; and let the rich man glory in his humiliation, because like flowering grass he will pass away.

Blessed is a man who perseveres under trial; for once he has been approved, he will receive the crown of life, which the Lord has promised to those who love Him.

Let no one say when he is tempted, "I am being tempted by God"; for God cannot be tempted by evil, and He Himself does not tempt any one.

But each one is tempted when he is carried away and enticed by his own lust.

Then when lust has conceived, it gives birth to sin; and when sin is accomplished, it brings forth death. (JAS. 1:2-10 11-15 (NAS))

Appaloosa show 'barrels' of fun

Schooling for her jumping class, Barbara Nichols on Anita Hamel's McQuee Pay Day.

By JOAN ASHLEY
Special to the SUN

The Tidewater Appaloosa Horse Club had a huge western and english turnout for the first of their annual three show series at Princess Anne Park.

Well planned by Anita Hamel, they offered youth, halter, pleasure, hunter over fences, leadline, game, and trail classes. Most of these were broken into pony and horse sections and into age groups.

The audience most enjoyed the games on horseback and trail classes. A potato was laid on a barrel at one end of the ring. Racing the clock, the rider took off from the other end, grabbed the potato while circling the barrel, and streaked back to the starting line. Horses refusing to get close enough to the barrel and near misses on the potato added to the hilarity.

The trail class held a series of pitfalls. After crossing a large piece of plastic stretched on the ground, the horses were required to trot through a group of barrels strong with bobbing balloons before backing through a dog-leg pole slide. The "Waterloo" for several horses and riders was the umbrella circle. The horse was left standing loose in a circled area while the rider opened an umbrella and remounted. Several horses objected to that strange object waving over their withers as the rider tried to get back astride with umbrella in hand.

The highlight of the day was the pony drawing on dollar chasers sold on a donated gray pony. The lucky winner was Sheila McKenzie after careful determination by Appaloosa Club officials that she wanted and could (properly) care for the pony. Looked like a super combination and a happy ending for a very nice show.

The next show will be June 18th at Princess Anne Park. High score cash awards will be given the top three horses at the end of the series of three shows. Also a trophy will be awarded to the most versatile horse accumulating the most points in performance and halter classes throughout the series.

Every girl's dream is to win a pony. Sheila McKenzie and her prize.

Beach GOPers elect delegates to convention

Virginia Beach Republicans gathered Saturday at First Colonial High School to elect delegates to next month's state GOP convention in Roanoke.

Supporters of State Senator Marshall Coleman came out with an edge over the forces of Delegate Wyatt Dettie with Coleman's supporters holding approximately 90 of the 111 delegate votes going to the state convention. Both candidates are in contention for the GOP nomination for Attorney General. Beach Republicans did resolve to support the convention theme for Attorney General, however.

A resolution to support gubernatorial candidate John Dalton and A. Joe Canada, for Lieutenant Governor was passed unanimously at the gathering. Republicans also agreed to support William R. "Buster" O'Brien and 2nd District Republican Chairman Kent Berchett for House of Delegates seats in November, along with John Atkinson, candidate for City Treasurer. Beach Republicans strongly resolved to stand in opposition of the "last-in-voter registration plan as proposed by President Carter," according to the city's Republican Resolution chairman, Mrs. Mary Barraco.

Mrs. Barraco said the resolution indicated the strong feeling that this plan would "significantly contribute to widespread fraudulent voting" and "would usher in a new era of graveyard voting, tombstone voting and voting of the family pet."

Virginia Beach Republicans plan to send copies of their resolution and indications of the support it has to the President and members of Congress along with a plea that the bill be withdrawn from Congress or vetoed by the President should it reach his desk.

Traditional country store not "eggsactly" newBy JOAN ASHLEY
Special to the SUN

Rural grocery store, Country Oaks, located on London Bridge road, is not "eggsactly" a new store. It is the reopened version of Landry's Egg Farm, well known to old time beach residents for its nest to home delivery.

Stationed in Norfolk during World War II, Clyde Landry married his childhood sweetheart, Gertrude. Super recyclers, they built their chicken houses entirely out of used lumber from the Old Port of Embarkation scrap heap once located where the Staff College is now. They hauled it piece by piece in an old Volkswagen bus whose frame slowly bent from the weight.

"We loaded it so heavy that when we hit a bump the front wheels came off the ground," says Gertrude.

They kept their hens on the floor, allowing three square feet per chicken, who laid eggs in nests not conveyor belts.

Gertrude continued, "we picked eggs three times a day seven days a week. We kept the hens 14-15 months then sold them to Campbell's Soup in Baltimore for 25¢ a bird after city regulations stopped us from killing our own. We graded and packed 125 cases of 360 eggs each. When you do that you really know you're working. We took pride in our eggs and our reputation in business."

"We had an egg washing machine that washed the eggs at 120 degrees with a special detergent that would eat your hands. If you wash eggs under 107 degrees it opens the pores and the egg absorbs the moisture," she explained.

Then they "candled" the eggs. They looked through the shell with a strong light to determine the position of the yolk. It has to be in the center for an AA grade egg. Age and a thinner albumin (white) can allow the yolk to sink or rise from the center making the egg an A or B grade.

"Eggs are not sold according to size but according to weight caused by a heavier yolk and albumin," added Clyde.

He delivered eggs all over the beach until the peddling grew too hard. Meanwhile, friends had asked for bread or milk along with their eggs so the Landrys gradually moved the chickens out and a store in. They added items by item until they had a full scale grocery store.

When they retired in 1975, they sold the store to Don and Don Winslow who are keeping its country store atmosphere.

"We keep it homey and get to know our customers. People come in and buy bread or a coke and shoot the breeze for fifteen minutes. We sell our own produce, and we go to North Carolina for canned goods so we can sell them at a good price," said Don.

They offer several specific "country" services and products. For instance they sell kerosene for lamps and stoves. And in the feed line, they cater to the taste of horses, ducks, chickens, hens, calves, rabbits, cats, hogs and dogs. They sell cracked corn, whole corn and ear corn. They're even putting up a hitching rack for horsebackriding customers. Adhering to the country store hours of 8 - 8 for six days a week and 10 - 6 on Sunday, they are amply maintaining the Landry's tradition of pride in the service and reputation of their business.

Rustic Nail II revisited still a gourmet's delight

By GARY FULLERTON

Back in early February I visited Rustic Nail II, a brand new restaurant in the Stony Point shopping center on Newtown Road.

I was impressed by the cuisine, the atmosphere and the friendliness established by Tommy Pearce and Wall Collins; and thought at the time Rustic Nail II would do very well. It had the planning and the right things going.

So I went back last week. The food...great! The service...terrific! The waitresses...beautiful! The atmosphere...still great!

Even though I walked in during the tail end of the noon rush hour and couldn't find one of those cavernous private-like booths that was empty, there was room at one of the two massive tables. I eased myself into a comfortable padded barrel chair, gave my order to a lovely Farah Fawcett look-alike waitress, and sat back to see if more of my original observations held true.

Even more so. Rustic Nail II is a very relaxing way to spend a lunch hour...or pleasant evening for that matter. The music on the box is soft rock, nothing to jangle your nerves. The booths held a variety of private conversations, and the waitresses bustled about in a quiet way.

Shortly after I wrote the February article, Rustic Nail II received its ABC license, so I ordered a cool one to beat the oppressive heat out of my system.

Since I was on an expense account and usually a hamburger - or taco-for-lunch-guy, I decided to order the Rustic Nail II top of the menu: marinated steak with french fries for only $2.25.

Well worth it; the steak had a habit of falling apart under my knife and sort of melting in my mouth, and unlike many restaurants, there was steak sauce to smush an occasional bite around in.

The combination was hard to beat: good food at reasonable prices, good service with lovely smiles and fetching waitresses, comfortable and relaxing atmosphere, and cooling libations.

I suggested once, and I suggest again trying Rustic Nail II for your next luncheon...or evening dinner. I think you'll be very pleased.

Meet records fall in Eastern Regional Excellent performances by Beach tracksters highlighted the Eastern Region track meet held at Todd Stadium in Newport News Saturday.

Dethroned as regional champs were both the Bayside boys and girls, but they still managed fourth and second place finishes respectively.

For the girls, record showings by Kempville's Judy Washington in the 100 (10.5), Marilyn Smith of Princess Anne in the shot, (40-3 3/4) Sharon Donon of Cox in the 400, (2:13.4) along with first-place finishes by Harriet Cook of Bayside in the discus, and Sharon Geer of Kempville in the mile, give the Beach several athletes capable of exceptional showings in next week's State Meet in Williamsburg.

Bayside and Kempville were both in the running for team honors. When Sharon Geer of Kempville placed fourth in the 800, Kempville passed Bayside for first 54-52 with three events to go. After a meaningless 220 Bayside took second in the 800, ready to go back on top, but neither team placed near the top in the mile relay, Warwick winning the event and the meet. Bethel finished third, between Bayside and Kempville.

The boys got record performances from Dan Krueger in the shot (60-4 3/4), Jesse Williams of Princess Anne in the 100 (9.4), Ray McDaniels of Cox in the 800 (1:52.7) and David Siler of Bayside, who tied the high jump mark of 6-6.

First place finishers from the Beach were: Kevin Harter of Princess Anne in the pole vault (13-3), McDaniels, who won the mile in addition to the 800 (4:14.6), Ronald Foreman of Kellam in the 440 (48.1), Williams, who won the 220 as well as the 100 (21.5).

In team competition, Bayside placed fourth, Princess Anne fifth, Cox sixth, Kellam seventh, First Colonial tenth and Kempville tied for 13th.

The Bayside girls were second, Kempville fourth, Cox seventh, First Colonial ninth, Princess Anne tenth, and Kellam failed to score.

National 100-yard dash record tied by Kempville's Washington

Although her win in the 100-yard dash in the Eastern Regional finals last Saturday was not quite as swift as her sprint the day before in the semi-finals, Judy Washington displayed a kick that resembled a Porsche dropping into a passing gear.

On Friday afternoon, the Kempville sophomore dashed down the track in 10.5, tying the national record. Not bad for a sophomore.

On the following day, with previously undefeated Sherry Cook of Bethel by her side to insure a competitive race, the lithe runner was looking for a 10.5 and an unofficial national record. But times like that come few and far between. Winning the race is what counted though, and after running even with Cook for about 80 yards, Washington simply burst from the pack to win going away.

"I saw her right with me," said Washington of Cook after the race, "and I thought I'd better get going."

She won the race in 10.5 faster than anyone in the Eastern Region had run the 100 all year, but she was still a little disappointed. "I had a horrible start," she said, "this week I'm going to work on coming out of the blocks."

She allowed that the six false starts in the boys' 100, run just before, may have had something to do with her slow start.

Also, the pressure put on her by her time the day before gave her more to think about. "Yeah, the pressure bothered me a little, but once the race begins, I forget all about that."

Washington said that her recent performances have come as a bit of a surprise. "I didn't expect to do so well this year," she said, "but I've been working hard." Her hard work is paying off. Look out Williamsburg.

Knee must wait

Soon after the current track season and school year are over, June 27 to be exact, Marilyn Smith will have her right knee operated on, forcing her to wear a cast for four to five weeks.

She was to already have had it done, but to have submitted to the immediate needs of the cartilage-torn joint would have been to bow out of shot-put competition this year, and the Princess Anne senior had no idea about doing that.

Ms. Smith won the Eastern District championship last

Krueger wants people to remember 'field'

When discussing track and field with Bayside's Dan Krueger, he sure you include the "and field."

It bothers the Marlin junior that everyone always seems preoccupied with the runners, and pay only cursory attention to the field participants.

And he is doing all he can to rectify that careless, or is it rude, lack of recognition.

You see, Krueger thinks he will win the state championship next week in the shot put.

Undefeated in the shot this season, Krueger won the Eastern Region meet Saturday with a toss of 60-4 3/4 and no one around has bettered his mark of 62-5, done earlier in the season.

"I should win," he said, relishing after his regional win. "I'm going for the state record."

Actually that is the state meet record, as state records as such are not kept. And neither Krueger nor his coach, Len Greenwood know exactly what the state meet record is. "About 63 feet I think," estimated Greenwood.

Last year Krueger finished third in the state as a sophomore.

"This year I'm hoping for 65 feet," said Krueger. "I may put up a big '65' in room at home to get me psyched up."

Krueger sees shot putters as a misunderstood breed. "People look at us as just a big hunk of muscle. I like to show them there's more than that. I think technique is more important than strength. You can't just muscle the shot."

This year Krueger began using a spin throw, and feels it has helped his marks, and he is proud of them. "I may sound like a hot-dog," he said, "but I feel anyone can run, but give a shot to someone and see what they do with it." It'll be interesting to see what Krueger does with it next week.

Congratulations, friend

When the 800-yard run had been completed last Saturday in the Eastern Regionals, Ray McDaniels of Cox was the victor for the second time of the afternoon, having already won the mile. After the 800, McDaniels

The decision's been made Ray's going for two

Ray McDaniels, some of you may remember, was this year's Eastern Region cross-country champion, a title earned by a desire to excel in distance running.

Last Saturday afternoon, at Todd Stadium in Newport News, McDaniels was once again the recipient of first place regional honors.

Only this time he won two separate races.

Despite a mammoth bleeding blister on the outside of his left foot, McDaniels beat a strong 800-yard run field with a Tidewater and Eastern Region meet record time of 1:52.4, after already winning the mile earlier in the afternoon in 4:14.6, one-tenth of a second off the Tidewater record he set last week during the Beach District tournament.

The Cox High senior had professed earlier in the season, to harbor hope of competing only in the 800 by the time state competition rolled around. But as he started logging increasingly lower mile times, his interest in that event was naturally elevated.

And after his great run in last week's mile win, McDaniels had all but forsaken the half-mile.

Until Saturday.

The only runner of an 800 field that included Tim Jones of Booker T. Washington High in Norfolk (who owned the previous meet record prior to the race), to have already raced was McDaniels, whose mile victory had been impressive enough.

But his late home-stretch kick that spurred him past Jones revealed a stamina rare among high school tracksters. According to McDaniels, the race was easier to run than he expected.

During his post-victory celebration he said, "After the first 220 yards, I didn't think I could last at that pace. But after the first lap I felt fine, relaxed. Even when Jones passed me I felt good, and I had it at the end."

The result of the double win, remarkable not only for the two victories but the times recorded despite not being pushed in the mile, is that McDaniels thinks he will try to win both events in Williamsburg at the state meet this weekend.

"The Eastern District has the best 800 runners around the state," explained McDaniels, "and I have shown I can beat them, so I have a shot at the states. But my times have been so good in the mile I have to run that too."

The mile and the 800 is quite a double to undertake. Should he win either event, it would culminate the dream of every trackster in the state. Winning both has to be considered unlikely, but McDaniels has proven himself to be an unusual runner.

The state meet record in the mile is 4:11.8, and McDaniels thinks that if pushed, he can break it. "If I have competition I can do it," he said, "I need to be pushed in the middle laps."

Of the 800, which he says is so grueling it is run "on guts all the way," McDaniels, who keeps up with such things, thinks his 1:52.4 may be the second fastest such race in the nation this year, which of course gives him confidence going into the state meet.

Whatever happens in Williamsburg this weekend is icing on the cake. McDaniels has already proven he is a gutsy runner.

Marilyn Smith

Saturday with a meet record loss of 40-3 3/4, remarkable in that she has had to alter her style due to the injury. "I should use both legs," she explained of her technique, "but now I have to hop off my left leg." This weekend, she hopes to hop and push the shot to a state win. It's within her grasp. Last year she was the state runner-up with a 40-11 1/2 loss, but will again face some stiff competition from state regions.

Now also competes in the discus, finishing seventh in the regional meet this year, and fifth in the state in last season, but now it is the shot.

Kempsville wins city baseball title

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

The Beach District baseball season is over, and Kempsville won it going away. Their district record is 9-1, the closest teams being First Colonial and Princess Anne, both with 5-5 records.

Princess Anne was the only team to beat the Chiefs this year.

As one looks at the statistics Kempsville accrued this year, it is not difficult to ascertain the reason for their first-place standing.

Coached by Ray Barlow, (last year's edition won the regular season championship under Puncy Marshall, now assistant in Barlow), the Chiefs complemented a powerful lineup with strong pitching performances.

Mike Sage (6-0, 0.6 era) and Joe Beaton (9-2, 0.8 era) handled most of the mound duties, their stats speak for themselves.

At the plate the Chiefs were equally devastating, batting .324 as a team. Third baseman Tom Resp led the squad with a .421 average, and drove in 20 runs. Sage, who plays first base when not pitching, hit .419 and recorded 22 rbis. Tommy Speelman (.385, 13 rbis), Tony Tata (13 rbis), Gino Wood (.327, 15 rbis) and Del Moody (.325, 12 rbis) gave Kempsville a high school version of "Murderers Row."

The Chiefs will now advance to the first round of the Eastern Region tournament next Monday at Met Park against the Eastern District champion.

Since the Eastern District of last year split, spawning the Beach District, it was judged that only one Beach team could represent the district, instead of two from the larger Eastern District, which usually sent two Beach schools. Therefore, there is no Beach District tournament this year to decide who else would go to the regional.

The tournament last year was won by Bayside High, which went on to win the State Championship.

This year the Marlins finished with a 4-6 record. "We had a good pre-season," said Bayside coach Terry Morton, whose deft handling of personnel led to the state title last year, "going 7-2. But we lost a heartbreaker to Kempsville in the district opener, and then lost to Princess Anne in eight innings. Kellam was the first team to really beat us, and by then it was too late to get back in the race."

Princess Anne started out quickly this year, but lost four of their last six district encounters. Nevertheless, they finished in a second place tie with First Colonial.

The Patriots fielded a strong team this year, but got zapped early in the season by Princess Anne and Kempsville, and never made it up. Of course with Kempsville not losing more than once, ground was not easily made up by anyone.

Kellam too held their own, tied at one point for first with Kempsville at 3-1, but a loss to the Chiefs at that time did them in. Good seasons were enjoyed by pitcher/catcher Matt Simsen and Tommy Harrell of the Knights.

Cox finished in last place this year, but coach Tom Fisher's boys went out in style. They won two of their last three games, the last, a no-hitter thrown by Jon Rowe in a 6-0 win over Princess Anne.

Local schools to compete in 3rd Latin Olympics

The third annual Virginia Invitational Olympics will be held Saturday, May 21, 1977, at Manor High School, 1401 Elmber Lane, Portsmouth, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

These Olympics are field events for Latin students of the eight secondary schools in the Tidewater area.

This year's participants will be Bayside Junior High School, Bayside High School, Cox High School, Independence Junior High School, and Plaza Junior High School of Virginia Beach; Norfolk High School of Norfolk; Manor High School and Waters Junior High School of Portsmouth.

The Virginia Invitational Olympics were created by John W. Crute, Latin teacher at Manor High School, who hosted them originally. They are planned on the same premise as the ancient Greek Olympics first held in 776 B.C. in Olympia, Greece i.e.

a sound mind in a sound body. However, the events have been modernized, e.g. the frisbee throw has replaced the discus. The eight events in the Virginia Invitational Olympics are: girl's 44 relay race, boys' stick race, chariot race, tag of war, egg toss, frisbee throw, and a boy's and girl's obstacle course.

Similar to the ancient games, the Virginia Invitational Olympics begins with a parade and religious ceremony. This year the band of Manor High School will lead the Emperor and the chariot and teams from the participating schools onto the field. The Emperor of the Games, Professor Stuart Wheeler of the University of Richmond, will welcome the participants and guests. He will be carried on his royal litter by representatives of each participating school. Next the high priest of the Roman state, the Pontifex Maximus, Miss Teri Owens of Bayside High School, will offer a benediction in true Roman fashion. After sacrificing a "holy" chicken and reading the auspices, she will invoke Jupiter, king of the Roman gods and goddesses.

A special award will be given for the best chariot present. These have been designed and decorated by the students characterizing the students characterizing either their alma mater or a mythological hero. Chariots are judged on soundness of construction, general appearance, and originality.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge and lunch will be available on the school grounds.

For more information call Lorraine Guternuth, teacher, Bayside High School, 499-1285, or 497-4559, or Mr. John W. Crute, 397-0339.

Bayside netters advance

Both Lake, their number one player who accrued an 8-2 record during the regular season, hurt her right eye before the day before the match while playing with Cox' number one, Al How. A ball hit her eye, cutting it.

Nevertheless, Bayside won a close 5-4 decision over Maury of the Eastern District with Whitney Ginz, Peggy Schaefer and Lauri Anderson all winning in singles, and Ginz-Schaefer and Tracy Johnstone-Ann Bouche winning in doubles.

On Tuesday they advanced to the finals against Hampton. Coach Ellen Parker said she was optimistic about the return of Lake, who must be ready by Wednesday for regional individual competition.

New York Mets to play in Tidewater

The New York Mets are coming to town.

Yup. The team with Dave Kingman, Tom Seaver, John Milner and the rest are coming to Metropolitan Ball Park on Wednesday May 25 at 7:30 p.m., to play their AAA farmclub, the Tidewater Tides.

Major league baseball in Tidewater is a rarity, and an exciting evening should be in store. The superstars of today and the superstars of tomorrow doing battle. What a show!

Pembroke Mall

CBCBC raises big top at Beach

By MARK RICHARD

The world's largest and oldest circus under the big top, Clyde Beatty Cole Brothers Circus, set up quarters at Pembroke Mall in Virginia Beach, on Thursday, May 12th. The 150 ft by 360 ft striped Big Top, reaching a height of 55 feet, was erected by 50 experienced men and herds of powerful elephants. Thirteen thousand feet of canvas supported by 125 poles will provide seating for 4,000. The circus is literally a small town comprised of 200 residents and countless animals that travel the countryside on 27 show-owned trucks and as many private vehicles. Mayor Clarence A. Holland, MD, declared May 12-15, "Circus Days in Virginia Beach," as 100,000 free children's tickets were distributed by Pembroke Mall Merchants.

After driving all night, the circus trucks pull into the field in Pembroke Mall and begin laying out the tent boundaries.

Once the main tent poles are set, lines are secured between them onto collars.

The Big Pull is then on as scores of workers heave on support ropes all around the tent.

Beachers at ODU face tuition increase

The Old Dominion University has approved a tuition increase of $50 a semester for full-time Virginia residents and $85 a semester for full-time out-of-state students.

Full-time tuition for state residents will increase from $310 a semester to $360. Tuition for out-of-state students, graduate and undergraduate, will increase from $375 a semester to $460. The new rate for part-time students will be $30 a credit hour (up $4) for Virginia residents and $55 an hour (up $7) for non-residents. The last tuition increase at ODU was in 1975.

In a letter to be sent to students, ODU President Alfred B. Rollins, Jr., explained that the University's appropriation has been decreased by the Virginia General Assembly by six per cent for both this year and next. Also noting the results

School site dedicated

Rocco Lassiter, developer of Rosemont Farms, has dedicated to the city of Virginia Beach a 25-acre site for a school and a six-acre site for a park. That's about par for a $87-acre development like Rosemont Farms. What's unusual is the timing.

In mentioning the dedication at an informal session of City Council recently, Mayor Clarence A. Holland said, "This is the first time a developer has come forward prior to anything being put on record."

A spokesman for Lassiter's firm, Lassiter and Associates, said that usually the dedicated property is decided to the city toward the end of the job, after the houses have been constructed. This time, Lassiter decided to dedicate the property before the actual construction was begun.

The development, which will include various types of housing, is located east of the intersection of Kempsville and Indian River Roads, across the road from the Stumpy Lake Golf Course.

ford Elementary school. Accompanied by Mr. Garland Jackson (back left), Special Assistant to the Superintendent, the Board members spent several hours on May 12 at Louise Luxford as part of their regularly scheduled visits to the city's public schools. During the day, members

In Virginia Beach

Abortion percentages rise for unwed mothers

Virginia Beach women had a total of 1,067 abortions in 1975, with 759 or 71.5 per cent of them performed on unwed mothers.

In comparison one year earlier there were 874 abortions. Of those, 616, or 70.5 per cent of them, were illegitimate.

These figures were recently released by the Virginia Zero Population Growth Inc., and the State Health Department.

On the state level in 1975, a total of 6,304 of the 17,066 Virginia women who had abortions were under 20 and 345 of them were less than 15 years old. These figures are noticeably higher than the state's 1974 status. That year 13,594 women received abortions. Of these 5,206 were under 20 and 317 of them were in the under-15 group.

Although no figures are available concerning the number of Virginia women who had abortions performed outside the state, ZPG officials estimate the number to be in the thousands.

For women under 20 years of age, 93.7 per cent were not married to the father. Of all women receiving abortions, 74.6 were not married to the father at the time of the abortion.

Parade, music, to mark Armed Forces day

Saturday, May 21, is Armed Forces Day—a day set aside by Presidential Proclamation for the nation to turn its attention to the Armed Forces and their role in national defense.

Virginia Beach's Armed Forces Day observances fall into three main areas of interest—the Armed Forces Day parade, the Armed Forces Day combined military concert, and an open house program at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

This year's parade will be Saturday, May 21 at 10 a.m. Featuring 72 entries, the parade will begin at Atlantic Avenue and 5th Street. It will proceed north on Atlantic Avenue and conclude at 31st Street. Twelve military units representing all branches of the service will participate. The 54-piece ensemble will play a wide variety of music from contemporary symphonic pieces and pop hits to traditional military marches. The concert is free and open to the public.

Saturday, May 21, the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base will host open house activities. Gates open at 11 a.m.

The public will also be able to visit the historical sites located within Fort Story—the Old Lighthouse, the Cape Henry Cross and the Admiral de Grasse Statue site.

for a full day's festivities featuring Amphibious Training demonstrations, Patrol Boat rides, landing craft and LARC rides, demonstrations by the Virginia Beach K-9 Corps, static displays, and concerts by both the School of Music ceremonial band and the Atlantic Fleet 7 piece combo, "A Touch of Class." Included in the Fort Story celebration will be rides on the Lighter Amphibious Resupply Cargo vehicles (LARC), jeep rides through the training areas and an underwater diving demonstration and a parachute jump demonstration by Navy Explosive Ordnance Disposal Group Two. Other activities at Fort Story will include a display at Thomas Nelson field of the Navy's Navigational Aids Support unit, representing the unit's worldwide mission; and displays of amphibians and other military equipment. At Kings Grant Elementary

Carnival spells fun and profit

The students at Kings Grant Elementary school came to school on Saturday recently and they loved it.

Parents, brothers and sisters and other members of the community came, too, and they loved it. It was Spring Carnival day at the school from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Happy youngsters made their way from game booth to game booth, tossing bean-bags, breaking balloons and fishing to win a prize. At most booths, everyone won a prize whether they were able to hit the intended target or not.

The children's flea market featured toys and games for the younger set while the white elephant table had more appeal for adults. A book shop and plant shop were also popular with bargain hunters.

Magic shows were held throughout the day with magician Mark Lefler presenting a program of puzzling prestidigitation for intrigued audiences.

Hot dogs and drinks were on sale in the cafeteria kitchen under the management of Mrs. Peggy Simpson who runs the cafeteria at Kings Grant and Mrs. Adele Joyner who works in the kitchen. The two ladies volunteered their time on Saturday to help the PTA in their fund raising effort.

When the fun was over and the booths down and put away, Kings Grant PTA found that Spring Carnival is a fun way of adding to their coffers. The carnival realized a profit of close to $2,000 which will be used to purchase equipment for the school.

John A. Holland, Jr., of Virginia Beach, walked in to the Little Creek Naval Marine Corps Reserve Center the other day as a first class petty officer and walked out as a lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve. Actually the transition wasn't as simple as it sounds.

Citizen-sailor Holland's promotion from hospital corpsman to officer was the culmination of an idea planted by a friend in Vietnam in 1967, and came to bloom with Holland's graduation from Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tennessee.

When Holland graduated from high school in 1963, he enlisted in the Navy. He came out of boot camp as a hospital corpsman apprentice. Holland says, "I knew I wanted to be a corpsman, but never thought about being a doctor at that point."

In 1967, Holland, then a hospital corpsman second class, was sent to Vietnam where he met Lt. Thomas

Hayes, M.D. Doctor Holland relates, "(Dr. Hayes) instilled me with the desire and provided the initial encouragement that started me on the road to becoming a doctor."

Returning from Vietnam in 1969, Holland left the active Navy, joined the reserves and started undergraduate school at Hampton Institute. While in school, he performed his reserve duties as a corpsman at the Little Creek Reserve Center.

After completing his undergraduate work, Holland headed for Nashville for study at Meharry Medical College. Holland remained in the Navy Reserves, but was placed on the inactive list.

Since returning to the Tidewater area in mid-1976, the 33-year-old doctor has been a resident in family practice at the Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk. He resumed Navy training with his unit at Little Creek Reserve Center while waiting for his application for a Navy commission to be approved. While waiting he held the distinction of

Dr. Holland resides on Lake Edwards Drive in Virginia Beach, with his wife, Cheryl, and two children, three-year-old Johnalynn and two-year-old Michael.

Street sweeping

Innkeepers would rather do it city council told

By LEE CAHILL

Hotel and Motel owners along Atlantic Avenue want to sweep their own streets, so the City of Virginia Beach is going to let them.

It's not that the property owners enjoy street sweeping so much but that they like the loss of parking less.

The administration had suggested and council approved a plan to eliminate parking on the east side of the street every other day so that the street cleaners could get to the hard to reach places by the curb.

Councilman R. L. Riggs asked the city to reconsider its no-parking mandates because it was a hardship for the hotel and motel owners who depend on the curbsides for parking for some of their guests.

Motel owner Fred Strickland said that the Innkeepers Association opposed the parking ban and would rather clean up the street themselves. The Innkeepers represent 80 per cent of the innkeepers at the Beach and have 75 per cent of the rooms.

A full-color poster created by the Virginia Beach advertising agency of Davis & Company received a certificate of merit and was selected to be included in the 50th annual exhibition of the Art Directors Club of New York. The poster, entitled "Let Everything in Fight and Still Lose Weight," was created for Delmarva Weight Watchers Inc. by a agency art director Mike McMahon and copywriter Ian Byers.

"Just being chosen to take part in this national exhibit is quite an honor," says agency president Jerome R. Davis. "We were against the best works of some of the top agencies in the United States; and of the 1,000 entries submitted, only 200 were selected for the show."

The Art Directors Club exhibition will open in New York at the Union Carbide Building on July 12. Reprints of the exhibited works will appear in the Art Directors Annual, a collection of the year's best advertising.

Davis & Company is a regional, full-service advertising and public relations firm headquartered in Virginia Beach. The agency represents a full spectrum of clients, ranging from banking and real estate to manufacturing and retail accounts.

HOW to Write a Person-to-Person
Classified Ad that Sells!

GIVE ENOUGH INFORMATION

An ad that's too short becomes expensive if it doesn't sell your item. "Golf Clubs, 000-0000" leaves the reader with too many questions. What kind? What model? Condition? State the price or say "Make an offer."

STATE THE ITEM

Tell your readers exactly what you're selling right away. Don't bother with fancy features yet. They don't want to know it's "Wilson K28" until after they know it's a set of golf clubs.

MAKE SURE CUSTOMERS CAN REACH YOU

Just a phone number is enough if you will be home all the time the ad is running. If not, your caller may get discouraged and decide not to call back. By adding "After 6 P.M." your customer knows exactly when he can reach you.

GET TO THE POINT

Avoid long-winded language when short phrases will do. "Super deluxe, attractive blue and white Atlantic bag" can be shortened to "Blue and white Atlantic bag."
That way you can convey a lot of information while taking advantage of our low Person-to-Person rates.

BE HONEST

Don't omit obvious flaws or exaggerate the quality. "Never used" might get lots of calls, but "damaged number three iron" may get more offers. Your reader wants to buy from some-

well-written classified ad will sell just about any item or service you're selling.
The example above suggests a few ways to make your ad effective. But even the best ad won't do the job unless you put it in the right place. In our Classifieds. In the Classified, your ad will reach your best prospects at the lowest price. It will be read by ready buyers in your area, the ones most likely to come over and complete the sale. So when you're placing an ad for anything, make it count. By writing it the right way and putting it in the right place. In our Classifieds.

'Limit water use' city asks

SUN Public Affairs Writer

The City of Virginia Beach is asking residents to voluntarily limit their use of water between the hours of 6 a.m. and 9 p.m. for the next 30 days.

City Manager George L. Hanbury told City Council at an informal meeting Monday afternoon that if the voluntary limitation does not work, the city may have to resort to arbitrary restrictions.

The fault lies not with the supply of water, which, he said, would be adequate, but with the city's distribution system.

Hanbury said that the extended dry weather has contributed to the Beach's problems as residents use more water for their lawns and washing cars.

Residents are being asked specifically not to water lawns, wash cars or to backwash swimming pools. Utilities Director Aubrey Watts said that watering lawns is the most serious practice.

The city uses 25.3 million gallons of water a day during the summer while the distribution capacity is 25.5 million gallons which cuts things close.

Hanbury said the city's four water storage tanks hold 11 million gallons of water (10.45 million gallons exactly). Four new storage tanks now under construction will provide another 11 million gallons of storage with major pumping stations located at the tank sites on Shore Drive and Witchduck Road. Tanks are also being constructed at Kempsville and behind Wickes Furnace Store on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

The tanks were expected to be completed on May 15 but the date has been set up to June 15. Hanbury repeated that the scarcity of water is not a source problem but a distribution problem which the completion of the tanks and a favorable vote on the $39.9 million referendum coming up on June 14 will help solve.

Hanbury said people are using 1 1/2 to 2 million gallons of water a day just to water lawns and wash cars.

The biggest strain on the water system is between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m. so that if residents would limit themselves during that period, the water supply will continue to be adequate.

Hanbury said that he felt that if the general public were aware of the problem it would accommodate the city.

He said that car washes whose livelihood depends on water, would be excluded, and in most cases car washes recycle their water.

Councilman George R. Ferrell remarked that under the circumstances some people may consider it a good idea not to hook up (although the Beach has a mandatory hook-up ordinance).

Hanbury again said there was enough water, but it was a case of getting it to the people. People with wells, of course, could continue to use all the water they choose for their lawns or cars.

Council asks for ruling to solve summer problem

SUN Public Affairs Writer

With Memorial Day just around the bend, Virginia Beach is girding itself for the summer onslaught. It's a welcome onslaught but it brings with it problems just the same.

When two million people visit the resort strip during the three-month beach season, there are going to be problems. City Manager George L. Hanbury told Council Monday afternoon.

One of the major problems arises when illegally parked cars are towed from private property. Car owners face not only a fee to retrieve their vehicles but sometimes have to hunt around hours to find out where the car is. At times like this, Hanbury said, feelings run high.

When the car owner arrives at the scene as his car is being towed away, Hanbury said, there may be actual confrontations and confrontations are what Hanbury doesn't like.

Since some people have complained of the high fees charged by the private towing companies employed by the property owners, Hanbury suggested maybe some discount should be given in cases where the tow truck hasn't been called with the vehicle.

Hanbury said that property owners have every right to protect their property. "Our concern is when the towing personnel are discourteous to the general public or charge exorbitant rates," he said. Some people believe the city is in the towing business, Hanbury said, but the city can only tow cars away from public property where parking regulations are posted.

Hanbury suggested that towing agencies be required to post signs stating that towing is enforce, where the towed car can be found and what the rates are.

Hanbury's suggestion about a discount towing fee in cases where the towing has just begun met with little favor from Council. Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing said, "I think they're (the car owner) liable for towing for as soon as they leave their car there. There is no question in my mind. I've had them park in lots of mine. I don't think we should be passing an ordinance to protect the guilty."

Hanbury agreed but added, "I don't like to see a confrontation. I don't like to see private agencies carry arms. Once the police come in we're going to arrest both parties." He pointed out that the private agencies do not have the same protection from assault as a police officer who may be towing a car away.

Inspector Wilcox Chaplain said, "I want you to come down and see how mean they (the illegal parkers) are." Standing added that the vast majority of the property owners have signs posted, but that these are often torn down.

Hanbury said the city has no ordinance requiring the posting of signs. Councilman J. Curtis Payne said the license numbers of the towed cars can be given to the Second Precinct Police Station (at the beach) and car owners can find out where their cars are by calling the police.

Councilman R. L. Riggs said that people take hours and hours to find their cars.

Councilman J. Henry McCoy said that he realized the discussion concerned the beach, but "if we pass an ordinance we're talking about the whole city. You can hurt people in other parts of the city."

Mayor Clarence A. Holland instructed City Attorney Dale Bimson to bring back an ordinance which would incorporate the ideas of Council.

Replying to a question of Standing, City Attorney Dale Bimson said there is some authority for an ordinance which would set uniform fees on a city-wide basis.

Standing replied, "I think the fee should be punitive."

Revote 4-6

There's hope yet for water slide

SUN Public Affairs Writer

There's a good chance a water slide will be constructed at The Loop in Virginia Beach.

Virginia Beach City Council last week denied a conditional use permit by a vote of 6-5 to Water-Bogdan International, Inc. to construct a slide on The Loop. The Loop is on the west side of Atlantic Avenue, south of Third Street.

Monday afternoon by a vote of 4-6 Council voted to reconsider the permit request and by a vote of 9-1 deferred consideration until June 6 with proper advertising.

Since Councilman J. Henry McCoy made the motion to reconsider and will presumably switch his vote from no to yes, Water-Bogdan will most likely get its permit.

Those voting for reconsideration included the same five Council members who voted to approve the permit last week -- and McCoy. They were Mayor Clarence A. Holland, and Councilmen J. Curtis Payne, George R. Ferrell and Floyd E. Waterfield Jr. Those who opposed the reconsideration also opposed the permit and include Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing and Councilmen John A. Baum and R. L. Riggs and Councilwoman Marya Oberdorff. Councilman John B. Cromwell Jr., who also voted against approval of the permit, was absent Monday.

McCoy said he had second thoughts about his vote on the conditional use permit for the slide when he considered what would be a good use for the property. "Everything would generate traffic," he said, and Council voted too quickly -- just six days after the Planning Commission considered the permit. Since he voted, he said he's begun to think that the slide is not a bad idea and will "go along" with the beach front.

In 1975 Council had denied a use permit to The Loop amusement park and in casting his vote on the slide, McCoy had said that since the amusement park had been denied its petition (McCoy voted favorably then) the slide should be denied also.

Monday, he said, it was "a poor way to think." The problem with parking was a big issue in the denial, but McCoy pointed out that the applicant said he would acquire 150 parking places.

James R. McHenry, attorney for Water-Bogdan, said Monday that the applicant has tied down 150 parking spaces and expects to have a total of 200 -- 50 on the site and 150 offsite.

Thomas Kyros, an owner of the property said that Water-Bogdan might not be interested if the decision was delayed until June 6.

Neville B. W. Rich, director and general counsel for the company, said that it was "not a case of trying to force you," but that if the company had to wait that long, it "doesn't give us enough of a season to make it feasible."

McCoy voted with the majority on the waterslide because, he said, one of his reasons for reconsideration was that the first approval had been given too fast.

Griffin, apparently ready to make up his mind Monday, voted against the deferral.

Following the meeting, Rich said that his company would have to think about the Council's actions and reassess its situation. He said he was "gratified by the position Dr. McCoy has taken," and that if the company considered the project at the loop unfeasible, it would still plan to have a slide in Virginia Beach in 1978.

Baum was concerned about reconsidering the issue. He said in the past 15 years Council has never reconsidered a matter unless there were something like a legal basis for the move.

Polite signs for Beach

City Manager George L. Hanbury is making another contribution to good will during the hot summer ahead.

Whenever there is a great congestion of people, greater regulation is needed so that "we're constantly presenting the negative situation," he said.

It's time now to post all those "no, no's" but the city is going to kind of slither into them, instead of saying no surging, no pets, no dogs, and all the other no's, the signs will say first things like "Please Tan," "Please Swim," "Please Bathe" and so on illustrated with attractive graphics. And only second come the no's -- "No surging," "No Pets," "No Fishing," and so on, also illustrated with attractive graphics but with a line slashed through them.

Hanbury is hoping the soft approach will make the regulations more palatable.

Khediye clowns drew laughs and cheers as they ambled down Atlantic Avenue

Parade at Beach marks Armed Forces Day

The nineteenth annual Armed Forces Day parade was a treat for the residents of Virginia Beach and the many visitors who lined Atlantic Avenue from 5th to 31 streets Saturday morning.

The only Armed Forces Day parade in all Tidewater, the entourage featured 72 units.

Leading off the parade was a color guard from the U.S. Coast Guard followed by this year's grand marshal, Rear Admiral Jeremiah Denton.

Units from Khediye Temple in Norfolk were, as they always are, a colorful addition to the parade. Bands from most of the city's senior and junior high schools were impressive as were NJROTC units from Virginia Beach and Norfolk schools. Several bands and color guards from various branches of the Armed Forces were also on parade. Parab Bay Scouts and Junior Girl Scout Troop 138 of Virginia Beach represented the two Scouting organizations. Miss Virginia Beach contestants and the Neptune Princesses were attractive additions to the parade.

Detailed description and well-deserved praise for each of the marching units is impossible. It was a great parade. Even the weather was perfect as the parade moved along Atlantic Avenue. Many spectators took advantage of the sun's rays as they sat outside with their limbs laced in tanning oil.

By KEN CURLEY

Every year I launch into a diatribe about people who let their dogs run at large, menacing the public and leaving their "signatures" on lawns, shrubbery and what-have-you.

I have no patience for those who just turn their animals loose to roam the neighborhood by night or day. If the dogs cannot be watched or kept in an enclosed area, then they should either be given to someone who can watch them or they should be destroyed.

Let me make it clear that I am a dog lover. My wife and I are breeders of Miniature Schnauzers, and we have three of our own. My wife and I were co-founders of a kennel club.

It is because we care about dogs that we're so concerned. I don't think anyone should be subjected to having to wade through dog droppings or seeing their shrubs or lawns ruined.

But more important, no one should have to put up with a barking or growling canine that takes out after him perhaps attacks him. Watchdogs are great, provided they're on their own property. (And yes, our dogs have taken after people, and yes, we do regret it, and yes, we don't let it happen anymore.)

Now that spring is starting to blend into summer, more and more people will be out for walks, and the roaming dog problem in Virginia Beach will surely worsen.

bites and the primary victims of dog bites are children.

The Animal Control Department received 17,721 complaints from Virginia Beach residents. Most of the complaints were for stray dogs and cats in neighborhoods.

In 1976 there were 33 reported cases of livestock and fowl being killed by dogs left to run at large.

There were 2,213 animals destroyed during 1976. Very few were claimed.

L.E. Duvall, director of the Virginia Beach Animal Control department said that the house-to-house survey was made during February, March and April. During that time persons found having unlicensed pets were given a citation. Duvall said that the fine is generally $10 plus court costs for the first offense. The fines increase with repetition of offenses.

The dog that "would never bite someone" often does, and usually because it's an unsupervised animal.

Virginia Beach does have a 12-month leash law (or dog control law), and the animal control officers try to enforce it. It is unlawful, according to state law, to allow any dog to run at large and "at large" is generally interpreted to mean when the animal is not controlled by a building or fence, or when not restrained by means of a lead, rope, chain or cord, or when an unleashed animal is not under the actual physical supervision of its owner.

Please, dog owners, do the world a favor: Accept your responsibility to your dog and to your neighbors, and either keep the animal leashed or get rid of him.

George Savalas, better known as Stavros on the Kojak show, stated that Frank and Charlotte are as good as anyone he's heard in his vast travels. This writer is not THAT well traveled but did spend 16 years in New York, Washington and Miami Beach, and I agree the same conclusion.

Wait a minute. Such strong talk calls for substantiation. What makes them so outstanding? Each sings superbly alone. Put them together and you have DY-WO-MITE.

Frank COVERS the piano. Their repertoire is topflight (his simulated string-bass foot pedal is so real it's unreal). Each makes an impressive appearance. Their repertoire is imaginative, tasteful, and TOGETHER ("We were born and then we were married," says Charlotte). It would be easy to dismiss her timbournie and shaker playing as a mere dash of salt, but to these ears it is an integral part of their sound. That's it... sound. They would appeal to sophisticated people of all ages because they have a "today" sound as a rhythm, poppy, country, and they keep the tempo down and the words sweet.

Even why aren't they stars? They've had offers to record and be managed and travel, but a short sojourn "on the road" convinced them that they love their home. Why not? She's a Cancer and he's a Taurus. They have both a Beachfront condo and a house in their native Portsmouth. His fondness for luxury is also expressed by his interior decorating. If you visited "The Campagna" in the "White Heron" (now the "Four Seasons" in the "Royal Ritz") you've seen his work. It was there, in a piano-bar setting that they are their best, for this versatile gentleman is also quick with a quip. He even has several inventions which can't be discussed.

They often had their vision as they went. If you want to hear something out of the ordinary ask for "Wonderful" or "Calypso Calypso" or "Moonlight Feels Right," which catches you when it mentions the Chesapeake Bay. Their favorites include Eydie Gorme, Barbara Streisand, Sarah Vaughn, Jack Jones, Sergio Mendes, Bacharach, and Jackie & Roy.

When Frank broke his back years back, he did a "show must go on" and played in a huge body-cast, which evoked such sympathy that patrons all wanted to fill him with "emblematic fluid." Eventually his words began to slur, and Charlotte wondered "How can I roll this mummy home?" By the way, she looks devastating with her Cleopatra coiffure.

N.A.S. Ocean Officers Club was the setting for the Installation Dinner Dance of the Retired Officers Wives Association of Tidewater recently. Mrs. William Vose, outgoing President, installed the new officers, then turned the gavel over to the new president, Mrs. Raymond Newman.

Soft candle light, tables strewn with red roses, large bowls of floating candles and roses provided a soft and relaxing atmosphere for dinner and the installation. The new officers are as follows:

Mrs. Raymond Newman, president; Mrs. Harry Clark, first vice president; Mrs. Lloyd Bracy, second vice president; Mrs. Vinced McFadden, recording secretary; Mrs. John Delaney, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. A. Lina, treasurer.

With this installation the club has just embarked on its fifth year. It has a membership of 400, representing every branch of service and encompassing the Tidewater area.

Our mistake

Last week's SUN carried a front page photograph of a youngster from the World of Tomorrow who participated in a dance recital at Camelot Hall Nursing home. The youngster was incorrectly identified by our source as Ryan Carling. He was, in fact, Ryan Huskey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Huskey III of Broad Street in Virginia Beach. We apologize to Ryan and his parents for our error.

Bond figures

According to the Department of the Treasury News, at the end of 1976, it was estimated that Virginians own and hold $1,309,000,000 in U.S. Savings Bonds, an average of $232.74 for every citizen 18 or over.

5-minute spree nets Beach Woman $266.85

By MARILYN J. WEBER
SUN News Editor

Faster than rising prices! More rapid than a disappearing pay check! That's "Supershopper!"

Mrs. Kathryn Layton, wheeled a grocery cart up and down the aisles at Virginia Beach's Lynnhaven Giant Open Air Market last week picked up $266.85 worth of groceries in a five-minute shopping spree won in last week's drawing by the Chesna Drive resident in the super market's 38th anniversary celebration.

Rules for the shopping spree stated that Mrs. Layton must "shop" the store amidst regular customers and must not select anymore than two items in a category, that is: two hams, two cans of coffee, etc.

When she entered the store to collect her prize, Mrs.

Layton was happy and maybe a trifle nervous. Store manager Jim Cox offered her the opportunity to look around before she shopped, but she refused saying, "I looked everything over and I do all my shopping here so I pretty well know where everything is."

Commenting on her luck, Mr. Layton said "this is the first time I've ever won anything in my entire life!"

On the "go" signal from Cox, Mrs. Layton dashed toward the meat counter where she quickly selected two hams, two turkeys, a couple of roasts and her quota of several other cuts of meat and frozen shrimp. From there she proceeded to the coffee department where she tossed a couple of cans of the precious ground beans into her cart.

Customers in the store encouraged her as she passed and stayed well out of her way, watching enviously as she raced through a dream come true in today's world of ever escalating prices without a thought about which brand cost less or which package offered the best price per ounce.

As the minutes ticked away, the voice over the store public address system kept her informed, "Mrs. Layton, you have four minutes left... Mrs. Layton, you have three minutes left." She filled her first basket in approximately four minutes and as she rolled it to the front of the store she queried, "Should I just go to the check out stand, I've only got a minute left?"

"No, get another basket," Jim Cox encouraged her, "you can pick up a lot in a minute."

Smiling though slightly winded, she rolled one full cart and a second partially filled cart to the cash register of checker Joan Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robin Leigh Sherman, son.

"Did you have fun?" Joan asked, her eyes twinkling as she and other employees shared the Virginia Beach woman's excitement.

"Anything that's free is fun," Mrs. Layton said, smiling happily and fanning herself.

Close observers then began the guessing as the register clicked off the prices on the items in the grocery baskets.

"What do you think?" the shopper was asked. "About $200," Kathryn Layton estimated. "You can really pick up a lot in five minutes!"

Checker Joan Johnson would not guess until "I get to the meat." Before totaling her register, she, too, estimated $200.

Manager Jim Cox said, "More than that, I'd say $250." Another employee, Mrs. Ginny Allgood, guessed $300.

The machine was totaled and the register spit out the tape - $266.85. Mrs. Layton laughed joyfully and accepted the hugs and congratulations of onlooking employees and customers.

Student show impressive

By J. C. ASHLEY
Special to the SUN

Students from Virginia Beach public junior and senior high schools displayed their shop projects in the Annual Industrial Arts Show held recently at Pembroke Mall.

"We brought in as many projects as we could," said Bill Smith, a Lynnhaven Junior High school Industrial Arts teacher. "It really encourages our students (to have their work on display)."

Virginia Beach C.A.R. tops

Cavalier Society ranks high

After several years of hard work and hoping--Cavalier Society, Children of the American Revolution, finally came home with the big ope!

Cavalier Society of Virginia Beach has been among the top three societies in the state for the past two years, but this year at the C.A.R. state conference in Alexandria, Cavalier Society was judged the outstanding society in Virginia.

Children of the American Revolution, whose members trace their ancestry from colonial patriots who participated in or supported the cause of American independence, is an organization aimed at fostering the growth of patriotism among young people through programs in American heritage, government studies, conservation and other related categories.

Contributing to the outstanding rating which Cavalier Society holds are two of its very active members, Jon and Sam Huddleston. John, a past president of Cavalier Society, currently serves as First Vice President of the Virginia C.A.R. and Vice President for the Mid-southern Region of the National Society of the Children of the American Revolution. John's brother, Sam, is the immediate past President of the Cavalier Society and this year at State Conference was named the most outstanding member, non-state officer, for Virginia. Jon, a junior at Cox High School, and Sam, an eighth grade student at Lynnhaven Junior High School are the sons of Mrs. S. E. Huddleston of Twin Cove Road in Virginia Beach.

At the C.A.R. national conference in Washington, D.C. the members of Cavalier Society received a National Gold Ribbon Merit Award, ranking them among the top societies in the nation. The group also received a first place award in the treasurer's contest, in addition to the honor having one of its members elected to national office.

Others elected to office in Cavalier Society for the coming year, include: Mindy Moon, first vice president; Charles Kirkley, second vice president; Heidi Principe, chaplain; Mary Burcher, recording secretary; Ann Compton, corresponding secretary; Jodie Oakley, treasurer; Charles Nixon, Jr., registrar; and Graham Kicklighter, historian.

Sobering Thought

Day in and day out you find you need that extra drink. To help you through that meeting. To help you face the family. And everyday that extra drink becomes another extra drink. And it hurts. Write or call in confidence for facts on the program for the treatment of alcoholism. In a comfortable, caring atmosphere. Specialists can help you face the day without that extra drink. Isn't that a sobering thought?

Sign language

In response to a continuing interest and need within the community, Tidewater Community College, Virginia Beach Campus, will continue to offer the very popular sign language program this summer.

Begun during the spring quarter, these courses have been heavily subscribed by those individuals working with the deaf, or in public health, safety, and in the helping professions. On June 20, the summer program of three courses, two beginning sections and one advanced section, will begin. These spectrum courses earn two continuing education units and use no state tax dollars. Bob Daniels will be the instructor and the cost will be $25. Enroll by calling the Office of Continuing Education for reservation and further details at 497-3870, Ext. 143.

Canning workshop

The Adult Services Program of the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation will be offering a workshop at the new Virginia Beach Recreation Center. The first in a series of workshops held in conjunction with the VPI Extension Service, will be in canning and freezing, June 29, 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Registrations can be made by calling the VPI Extension Service at 427-4611.

YMCA programs

The YMCA is now accepting registrations for its Summer Program classes beginning in June. Classes will be offered in swimming, lifesaving, scuba diving, karate and judo. A special swimming and activity program will be featured which includes bus transportation to and from the YMCA. All classes are popular so early registration is advised. For registration and more information, contact the Norfolk YMCA at 622-5328. Classes are open to members and non-members.

AAA: Play away from traffic

"Don't let one careless moment turn a happy child," cautioned Ivan D. Mapp, Director, Tidewater Automobile Association. "This is the time for vacations and long evening hours of play. Consequently all children will have increased exposure to traffic."

The AAA spokesman urged parents to help plan an activity-filled summer for their children. "Boredom and lack of anything concrete to do leads to 'hanging around' and loitering on the streets," said Mapp. "Interesting school summer or church recreation programs are a good means of keeping children occupied. Older kids should be encouraged to select areas away from traffic and sidewalks. A young child who is engrossed in play can become a social statistic when his or her activities are on or near a street with moving traffic. They'll also gain insight into the reasons for playing away from traffic through your explanation.

Beach schools donate to SW Va.

Thirteen Virginia Beach elementary schools responded generously and quickly early this month to an emergency request for basic skills textbooks to be donated to schools in flood-ravaged southwest Virginia.

The need for surplus textbooks came to light early in May through Mrs. Anna Gordon Kellam, a Virginia Beach representative to the State PTA. Mrs. Kellam had learned that the State Department of Education had authorized southwest Virginia schools to use outdated basic skills textbooks until current-use books could be forwarded.

Mrs. Kellam informed Virginia Beach School Superintendent, Dr. E. E. Brickell, of the need for surplus textbooks, and after consultation with his staff, Dr. Brickell, turned over the task of coordinating the Virginia Beach donations to Assistant Superintendent for Business Affairs, Mr. H. S. Abernathy.

Abernathy and his staff relayed the request to all Virginia Beach elementary schools, and within two days, thirteen schools responded. The schools donated 4,067 math, science, health, reading and spelling textbooks. By the end of the week, the surplus donated books were turned over to the Tidewater Red Cross for shipment to southwest Virginia.

"We only had two days for the schools to respond, and that included pick-up," said Mr. Abernathy. "If we had had a couple more days, I'm sure almost every school in the city would have responded."

Faith will provide you with strength

God our Maker doth provide
For our wants to be supplied.
— Traditional Hymn

For some time, we have been regaled with dire predictions of recession depression and other ominous terms that depict a general worsening of our economic situation; all of which must cause many of us to wonder if our own source of life's basic needs might soon be in jeopardy. The fancy words would indeed appear to forecast a grim future when translated into terms of next week's groceries or next month's rent. Throughout history, in time of trouble man has always turned to religion as a last resort, even when it should have been his first. There is no better time than now to go to your Church and pray to God for His ever-present help and guidance.

Today's campaign

by Marilyn J. Weber
SUN News Editor

Eddy Dalton was in Virginia Beach recently.

Her visit to Virginia Beach was just part of a two day schedule which took her by plane from her home (the day before she arrived in Virginia Beach) to a coffee in Hanover from 10 a.m. to noon. Following the coffee, she spent a few hours at local campaign headquarters and then attended a reception and banquet at the Eastern Star state convention before addressing a convention session for that group.

Arriving at Norfolk airport at 11:30 p.m., she was driven to Virginia Beach where daughter, Kathy, 20, joined her for the night and the following day's activities. Kathy, a pre-med student at William and Mary had been at Virginia Beach with a group from her sorority. Eddy relates that mother and daughter "talked until about 2 a.m.," catching up on family, school and campaign news.

At 6 a.m., Eddy Dalton and daughter Kathy were up again readying themselves for an appearance on the Dick Lamb Show.

Following the television show, Eddy's Virginia Beach hostess and chairman of the "Hello Horizons" campaign, Shirley Sudduth, whisked the two back to the Beach for a stop at Camelot Hall Nursing Home where members of the Virginia Beach Republican Women's Club conducted a voter registration program. Mrs. Margaret Thomas, an assistant registrar for the City, was on hand, at the request of the club, to register residents at the home.

A luncheon at the Pine Tree Inn hosted by the Suburban Republican Women's club followed the nursing home visit and the afternoon schedule called for Virginia Beach Boulevard and the Crisis Intervention Home on 20th Street.

Throughout the day, Eddy remained happy and smiling to all she met but also observed and listened thoughtfully, learning about people, their needs and their concerns—information that will be important to her candidate-husband John N. Dalton.

It is a new way of campaigning. Voters no longer need only to shake the hand of the office seeker; they want to know about him and one of the most effective ways to present the candidate is with assistance from his family.

With John Dalton in the governor's race, campaigning does involve the whole family. Kathy, who visited Virginia Beach with her mother, 18-year-old Ted, who spoke on behalf of his father recently and was, according to Eddy, "just nervous enough to be believable"; 16-year-old John who enjoys "working the crowd" at political gatherings and even 13-year-old Mary who, with five elementary school friends, handed out over 100 bumper stickers in a shopping center parking lot near the Dalton's Radford home on a recent Saturday.

When Eddy left Virginia Beach after her day-long visit, she was still smiling, still on the job. It is more than a job, it's a way of life.

INTEREST EVERYONE
The varied contents of your hometown newspaper give it a readership that includes every age group.

This summer, visitors can enjoy a wide variety of activities and new facilities at many of the State Parks. Activities include swimming beaches with bathhouses, pleasure boat rentals (paddle, row, sail and canoe), boat docks with fuel, horse stables and restaurant and refreshment stands. Picnic shelters and tables are in most parks along with areas for hiking, fishing and nature observation.

New facilities at State parks include a new bathhouse at Pocahontas State Park in Chesterfield County and a riding stable at Hungry Mother State Park in Marion.

Besides new facilities and recreational activities at State parks, visitors can also enjoy educational services. Recreational and historical programs range from connected walks and hikes to paddleboat and horseback tours and to evening talks with slides and movies.

Other services include self-guiding trails, over-

Virginia parks open Memorial weekend

Thinking of a trip to one of Virginia's State Parks? Memorial Day weekend is the opening date for all State Park facilities for the 1977 season, according to Parks Commissioner Ben H. Bolen.

The 15 recreational parks and 4 historical attractions will offer summer-oriented activities beginning Saturday, May 28, through Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 5.

Because of last year's severe winter and President Carter's energy conservation program, a record number of people are expected to visit State Parks this summer.

"People will appreciate the outdoors more this year because of being housebound during the severe winter," Bolen said. "Because of this and increased emphasis on saving energy, I predict that people will visit State Parks in unprecedented numbers. State parks are prepared to welcome all visitors and we encourage Virginians to relax and enjoy the many outdoor activities available at these facilities."

formances by bluegrass bands and operation of visitor orientation programs at George Washington's Grist Mill in Fairfax County and the Southwest Virginia Museum in Big Stone Gap.

Park officials said additional activities in July include the popular Arts and Crafts events at Hungry Mother and Chippokes Plantation State Parks.

In cooperation with the Virginia Council of Churches, interdenominational church services are also held with Sunday morning for campers and cabin guests. A chaplain is on full-time duty at Claytor Lake, Hungry Mother and Shenandoah State Parks.

Overnight facilities include either cabin or camping accommodations. Eight State parks offer rustic cabins for rent until October 3, 1977. Each cottage, either log, frame or concrete, is completely equipped for housekeeping and rates are very reasonable.

For example, a one-bedroom cabin consists of a combination dining, recreation and sleeping room; a bedroom, kitchen and shower-bath, and will accommodate a minimum of two persons at $45.65 per week. One room and two-bedroom cabins may also be rented. Group cabins, located at Pocahontas State Park, are rented to organizations, and reservations may be made through the Richmond office.

Camping is available at 13 parks on a first-come, first-served basis or via reservations with Ticketron. Bolen said over 1,400 campsites may be rented from one to 14 days. Fees are $3.64 (tax included) per night for six people.

Park officials advise making early reservations because of expected heavy visitation. Reservations may be made at any State park or commercial Ticketron outlet operated for the Division of Parks by phoning (toll free in Virginia) 1-800-582-8022, (out-of-state) 1-804-489-0853, or by write-in to the Virginia State Parks Reservation Center, Box 62284, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23462.

Although most parks do not charge entrance fees, parking rates will be in effect beginning Memorial Day weekend at Claytor Lake, Douglas, Hungry Mother, Fairy Stone, Pocahontas, Shenandoah, Washington River and Westwood State Parks. Fees are $3.00 per car, $1.00 for a motorcycle (6-19 people), and $3.00 per bus. Chippokes Plantation, George Washington's Grist Mill and Natural Tunnel State Parks will have an admission fee of $.50 for adults and $.25 for children. Additional information on park facilities and/or activities may be obtained by contacting the Division of State Parks, 1201 State Office Building, Capitol Square, Richmond 23219 (Telephone: 804/786-2152).

Eddy listens and learns as "Skip" Wilkins, director of the Crisis Intervention Home talks about the work done at the home.

One of the dreams in this country is to be self-employed and have no boss except your own. One of the realities in this country is that being self-employed does not necessarily mean being successful.

Ken Adams, owner of Adams TV and Radio Sales and Service, has managed to achieve both. Ken began radio and television repair work in 1952 and has been at it since except for a brief stint in the Army in 1953 through 1955.

"Well, you know, everyone figures he can make it on his own and be a millionaire. That's not the way it turns out but I felt I could provide for my family better, I'd been working for others and I decided to go on my own."

Ken has been self-employed for almost eight years. He opened his first shop on Robbins' Corner where he stayed for three years. He then moved his shop to his present location in the London Bridge Shopping Center. In August, he will have been there five years.

Ken's only other employee is his wife Joan. She does the bookkeeping and the secretarial work for the shop. She is a Norfolk native and Ken is from Wileboro down in Carolina. They have four girls and two boys.

The Adams shop specializes in televisions and they mainly service what they sell. "We have become a neighborhood business," says Ken, "most of the people we serve know me on a first name basis." Their main lines include RCA and Zenith but the shop can repair any kind of set there is.

"I guess TV repair is a routine sort of thing, but I have had a couple of funny things happen to me," said Ken.

Recently he got a call from a retired man in Virginia Beach. "He wanted me to sabotage his wife's stereo. It seems she has a big system that she plays all the time. He's around the house all the time and he wanted me to fix it so that when she turned it on it would fizzle and smoke and have to stay in the shop a couple of weeks."

Ken turned down the job. "Once when I was working with someone else I got a call from Portsmouth," continues Ken with a smile, "and this lady had this old television set, the kind that had the removable glass in the front. Anyway, I was taking off the glass to clean out the dust and there was this fly that had gotten in there. She came into the room and asked me what I was doing and I told her I was cleaning out the dust and the insects and she told me to leave the fly in the set. When I asked her why she said she had a boarder who was in electronics who told her that the fly was put into the set at the factory to keep the termites out of the wood."

Ciola's: Palate pleasing cuisine

Dominick and Alice Ciola started serving palate pleasing Italian food to Tidewater residents 28 years ago at a time when Italian foods were not familiar to many.

Over the years they have maintained their high standard of excellence in preparing outstanding cuisine for customers who return again and again to Ciola's located at 1889 Virginia Beach Boulevard, to sample old world favorites and Dominick's own specialties.

"It's the sauce that makes the difference," according to their motto and that sauce is made from a recipe Dominick received from his mother, Mrs. Frances Meloni Ciola, who came to the Tidewater area from her home in D'- abruzzo, Italy. Many of the recipes used at Ciola's have been handed down from Dominick's mother and grandmother, others were first created at Ciola's by two early chefs, Angelo Victor and Tony Agnuso. The two, Angelo of Greek and Italian descent, and Tony of Italian descent, both from the "old country" did more than create their special dishes for restaurant patrons. They also taught Dominick to prepare and create so that, now, and for many years, he has been chef in his own kitchen.

At the present time, he has three young men assisting him. He is passing along his art to them.

Aside from the sauce, what Dominick does with his meat is out of the ordinary and accounts for the "out of this world" quality of Ciola's entrees. Dominick and Alice buy no "prefabricated" meats. Meat is purchased in bulk and butchered by Dominick ensuring cut and quality that is hard to get in many restaurants.

A glimpse at the menu should provide the necessary incentive for trying Ciola's if you haven't been there before. Osso Bucco, an old world treat, features shank of veal simmered many hours in Ciola's special sauce. Saltimbocca, another old Italian delight, features veal slices with cheese, ham, and mushrooms in wine sauce, and Broccoli presents top round steak, stuffed and cooked in tangy tomato sauce.

Among Dominick's original recipes is Steak Margherita, a secret of the house and utterly delicious. Steak "Wahab", another of Dominick's creations, features steak sautéed with mushrooms in sherry wine sauce.

Entries are priced from $4 to $14 and Ciola's does feature a children's menu. All diners include spaghetti and salad. And, we know of no sweeter way to end your dinner at Ciola's than with Spumoni, Italian ice cream with fruit and nuts made on the premises by Dominick.

When your taste buds suggest Italian, head for Ciola's.

5 Beach tracksters grab 6 state crowns

Wednesday, May 25, 1977

By BLAIR THURMAN
SUN Sports Editor

The Beach District, which consists of just six schools, made an impressive showing in last week's State AAA Track and Field Meet in Williamsburg.

In 16 men's events, the Beach claimed four state championships, with Cor' Ray McDaniels winning two, the mile and the 800. Jesse Williams of Princess Anne won the 100-yard dash title (he also placed second in the 220), and Bayside's Dan Krueger won the state championship in the shot put (also placing fourth in the discus).

In 14 women's events, the Beach got two championships—one in the discus by Bayside's Harriet Cook, and the other by Kempville's Judy Washington in the 100. The boys placed 14 individuals or relay teams in the top six in the state, as did the girls.

thurman

McDaniels' amazing double was the highlight of the meet, as he was the only performer to claim two individual championships. Having won the mile title first makes winning the 800 over a fresh field truly amazing.

Williams' win in the 100 was anticipated, as the Cavalier speedster was undefeated this season in 17 races. Six of them won in 9.4, but the finish was extremely close.

Bethyl's Eric Brown stayed with Williams, and at the finish, appeared to lean forward enough to win. With the crowd buzzing and the two top finishers waiting for the result, the officials inspected their photo-finish device and saw that Williams had in fact crossed the finish-line first, both he and Brown recording a 9.5.

"I knew I'd won," said Williams afterwards. "I didn't run well because I have a headache, but I won and that's what counts."

Krueger, like Williams, has not had to suffer the agony of defeat this season, winning the state shot title with a heave of 60-5. Remarkably enough, he was disappointed with his performance, which was more than four feet better than his closest challenger. "I wanted to win the state meet record (60-11 1/2)," he said. "I knew I was going to win the championship, there just wasn't enough pressure on me to get the record."

Krueger was satisfied with his discus throw of 170-2, his personal best, good enough for a fourth place finish. Teammate Mike McConnell threw the discus 165 feet for fifth place.

Meanwhile, Bayside's Harriet Cook was winning the state championship in the discus, setting a Tidewater record in the process. Her loss of 131-10 earned her the top honor in the state.

Also finishing in the top six for the boys were: Brian Riendeau of Cox in the shot put (54-9 1/2); Mike Felton of First Colonial, sixth in the 100 (10.1); the Bayside 800 relay team, second (1:28.1); Alan Butten of Bayside sixth in the mile (4:18.8).

Girls: Fawn Palmer of Bayside, fifth in the discus (122-10); Udra Herbert of Bayside, second in long jump, (17-8); Marilyn Smith of Princess Anne, sixth in the shot put (38-11 1/2); Judy Moton of Kempville, sixth in the low hurdles (10.8); Terri Joshua of First Colonial, sixth in the 100 (11.4) and fifth in the 220 (25.7); the Bayside 800 relay team, fifth (1:44.1); the Kempville 440 relay team, fourth, (48.9); Sharon Downs of Cox, sixth in the 800 (2:21.6); the Bayside medley relay team (1:49).

McDaniels wins two state titles

Senior runner only double winner in state

By ELAIN THURMAN

He looked like he was in pretty ragged shape at the race's conclusion, face contorted, chest heaving, and muscles tightening.

It was several minutes before conversation with this individual was even remotely conceivable.

"I was so tired."

Ray McDaniels

When talking was finally possible, when the face resumed its normal shape, when the legs once again were able to transport him from one place to the other, his awe at what he had done resembled a young child at Christmas.

"Two state titles on the same day," he managed to say, his smile dominating his countenance, "how 'bout that?"

How about that.

Ray McDaniels of Cox High, won state titles Saturday in both the mile recording a time of 4:11.6, and the 800, in 1:52.8, making him the sole double winner at the meet.

The two grueling wins culminated an eight-day period that saw him win the Eastern Region mile and 800, sign a grant-in-aid with East Carolina University and claim his double-honor on the state level.

Amazing enough that he won both races in the regionals, incredible at the states.

"I never really thought I'd win both," he said later. "That 800 was the hardest I've ever run."

"I was so tired..."

Running in a field strong with fresh athletes, McDaniels' chances of winning his second state title of the hot afternoon did not seem tremendous.

"I never thought he'd do it," said his coach, George McGovern, "but he's a dedicated kid, and he wanted it. 'It'll be a while before you see anyone run a double like that again.'"

McDaniels had fanned himself an 800 runner early in the season, but steadily improving mile times, and then the double win the regionals, convinced him to try for two.

But because of the fact that the mile is run before the 800, McDaniels figured to go all out for that event, so as not to go home empty handed. "That mile is the cake," said the exhausted McDaniels, "the 800 is just the icing."

Ready for tough competition

In a mild upset of sorts, the Kellam Road Ice Rink tied the Beach Mall Studio Rink team 3-3 during the last of a series of intra-rink ice skating institute of Amateur competitions held at the Kellam Road location.

The high spirited competition saw a bunch of new skaters competing in the special Pre-Alpha category, and indicates that future competitions will be tougher and have more competitors. The record number of 19 skaters ranging from ages six through 17 competed in Alpha, Beta, Gamma, Freestyle I and Freestyle II categories.

Al Grissino, President of Allman Recreational Enterprises, Inc. which owns both rinks, said "he was overwhelmed by the enthusiasm shown by the teams, by the music which accompanied the routines and by the upgrading of the competition with the first students competing at the Freestyle II level." The selection of the skaters was made by the fact that the students are working on perfecting their style as well as their skills. This is a major step forward in any program," Grissino said.

and Melinda Powers at Kellam and Robert Carter and Dave Parrott at the Beach Mall. He praised their work in scheduling time for their teams and devoting many hours in helping with competitor's routines. The ISA rules stipulate one or two minute routines only, and Grissino pointed out that it isn't easy to put all of the skills in a particular category in a short routine—especially for the younger students.

Grissino, the judges, instructors, officials, skaters and spectators alike were ecstatic about the Freestyle II competition. Marsha Sosenshine, a 17-year old student from the Kellam Road Rink, gracefully performed her routine to the strains of the Merry Widow Waltz and received enough points to place first in the competition. Grissino points out that this is difficult to do when a skater is skating against herself. Her would-be opponent for the competition, Melinda Powers, of Kellam Rink had to bow out of the competition due to an ankle injury. "From a management standpoint we have to be very pleased. The performance of this Skate On synthetic ice has continued to overwhelm us. We knew it was good when we put it down, but to be able to move students through six categories in eight months, and with so little cost to the skater, and with no little difficulty on our part, is just unbelievable. For the first time in the history of ice skating, we truly can bring ice skating to everyone no matter where they reside—no matter what their income status is. Because of this ice we can look for ice skating to be part of recreation programs in all communities in the world. I'm just glad that Virginia Beach is leading the way," Grissino stated.

The results of the competition were as follows:
Pre-Alpha 8 & under: Ist-Harold Mandach; 2nd-Jeff Jackson; 3rd-George McGuire.
Pre-Alpha 9-12 Girls: Ist-Amy Shook; 2nd-Sarah McGuire; 3rd-Carol Hackey; 4th-Dawn Robertson.

The next competition on tap for the Beach skaters is an Invitational Meet for rinks throughout Virginia scheduled for June 14, 1977 at 3:00 PM at the Kellam Road Neighborhood Ice Skating Rink.

Story and photos by BUD LOWE

Every band marching in this year's Armed Forces Day parade was truly a credit to the organization they were representing.

All the local high school bands for the Beach were present with the exception of Bayside High School. Bay-side was off to Toronto to compete in the Annual Marching Competition. The absence of Bayside's band and drill team was noticeable - they were missed.

When it was all over there were four marching units recognized for outstanding performance. In the Senior High Division it was again those fabulous Marching Cavaliers from Princess Anne High School in the first place slot, with the Marching Patriots from Firms Colonial taking up the second place position. In the Junior High Division it was Kempsville Jr. High taking first place and Independence filling the second place spot.

The Marching Cavaliers from Princess Anne are under the direction of Ron Collins for band and Sam Reynolds for Color Guard. Gary Wirt is Senior Drum Major, with Pat Kaiser and Laura Hockey as Junior Drum Majors. The Color Guard is under the leadership of Captain Gina Cook and Co-Captain Meta Peyton, with Chris Adkins as Captain of the Rifles.

First Colonials Marching Patriots are under the direction of Max Gananio for both Band and Color Guard. Bob Simon is the Drum Major and Carma Lewallen is the Band Commander. The Color Guard is under the leadership of Captain Gina Shukis.

The Kempsville Junior High School Band is under the direction of Emmette Forbes. Independence Junior High School band is under the direction of Howard Rule.

Other Marching Units from our schools to participate were: Kellam High School, Kempsville High School, Cox High School, Virginia Beach Jr. High School, Plaza Jr. High School, Lynnhaven Jr. High School, Princess Anne Jr. High School, and Bay-side Jr. High School.

From outside the Beach area we had two very good bands from Great Bridge High School in Chesapeake, and Craddock High School in Portsmouth.

Beach to join fight on costly unemployment

SUN Public Affairs Writer

Spending $7,500 to fight federal legislation they considered unfair to localities didn't sit right with four Virginia Beach Council members. But the remaining six present considered the expenditure the lesser of two evils and approved the appropriation to help fight the Unemployment Compensation Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-566).

The law forces states to extend Federal Unemployment Compensation Act benefits to most state and local governmental employees. Under the Act each locality contributes 3.4 per cent of the first $6,000 of compensation of each employee into the state compensation trust fund. City Manager George L. Hanbury said the cost to Virginia Beach in taxes, if the law goes into effect on Jan. 1, 1978 as scheduled, would be an initial payment of $450,000.

The National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, in conjunction with the International City Management Association wants to challenge the constitutionality of the Act of 1976. The two organizations are trying to raise $300,000 for the litigation fund of which the Beach share will be $7,500.

Vice Mayor Patrick L. Standing remarked that, "If the Virginia Beach share is $7,500, it boggles the mind to think how much money will be spent (to fight legislation which should not have been enacted in the first place). Are members of Congress so removed from what the people in the localities want?"

Hanbury said only cities with populations of 200,000 to a half million are being asked to contribute "and there are not too many of them." Hanbury further explained that prior to 1975 the Federal government, not municipalities, paid unemployment compensation. By requiring the localities to pay he said, Congress "is imposing itself on the domicile of the local government without providing the funds."

Nationally, the Act will cost municipalities billions of dollars. Unless the program is handled correctly there is a possibility of fraud, Hanbury said.

1st place Princess Anne High "Councilman Robert R. Cromwell Jr. said, 'Not only a possibility, but a probability.'"

Councilman John A. Baum said it was a case of the federal government imposing taxes "beyond our control." Mayor Clarence A. Holland said, "It can become a vicious cycle... To come up with $450,000 we would have to lay people off."

Standing, Cromwell, Councilman R. L. Riggs and Councilwoman Meyera Oberdorf voted against making the $7,500 appropriation. Mayor Clarence A. Holland and Councilman Baum, George R. Ferrell, John R. Griffin, J. Henry McCoy and J. Curtis Payne voted for the appropriation. Councilman Floyd E. Waterfield Jr. was absent.

Beach grant

Meeting in Richmond recently, the Virginia Council on Criminal Justice approved more than $2.5 million in requests for funding assistance from state and local level criminal justice agencies in the Commonwealth. Virginia Beach will receive a grant for providing drug and alcohol treatment services to the inmates at Virginia Beach City Jail. The total cost of the Virginia Beach project is $16,000, of which the local share is $800.

Church forms assn.

Parents of Church of Scientology members have joined to form a Family Association which will function as an auxiliary of the Church to "preserve and strengthen the role of the family in modern life."

Spokesman for the association, David Cain, Lt. Col. ARMY Ret., who has four children and one grandchild, said that the group will be working to draw other parents of church members closer together by promoting an understanding of the family as a basic and vital unit of society.

"These are difficult times for the family," said David Cain. "The family today is in competition with many institutions that collectively threaten not only its many vital, traditional roles, but its very existence. Yet the family is the primary building block of our culture, one that must be preserved and strengthened if this culture is to survive and flourish."

The Church has noted that in this century this culture has shown among its members a disturbing decline in respect for self and others, and that decline has paralleled the erosion of the family as the primary social institution. "We will work to reverse those trends," said David Cain.

Armed Forces parade

The best seat in the house at a parade has to be Grandma's lap. Bruce Clarke, 5, (left) and Job Clarke, 5, view the parade with their grandmother, Mrs. Evelyn Clarke. All three are residents of Virginia Beach.
